How to Shoot at Men.
The Frog's Ear.
We Need More People.
Once, It Was Oxen.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 15.

G. H. HOWLAND, of Miami, who knows human nature, is supervising a small gang of "short term" city prisoners, clearing brush and rubbish from a city lot.

Driving an automobile when intoxicated is the most frequent offense among the prisoners, all young.

"Do they often run away?"

"No," says Mr. Howland, "not often, and I can usually tell. This young fellow that I am, keeping near me," pointing to a pale-faced boy about twenty, swinging his heavy grubbing tool with savage energy, "was fixing to run away this morning. I could see it. I talked to him and told him he would only get picked up, and have to stay in a cell sixty days."

MR. HOWLAND, who carries a heavy automatic pistol, says:

"No, I wouldn't shoot any young fellow only guilty of a misdemeanor. I might fire a shot over the water," pointing to the bay, "to scare him. I wouldn't hit him.

"But in county and state gangs of convicts convicted of more serious offenses, running away means getting killed. First the guard sends a rifle bullet close to the running man's legs, so that he will hear the bullet. Then he puts a bullet in the ground close to his feet, with a second warning. If he doesn't stop then, he kills him.

"Yes, these boys would rather be here working in the sunshine and they are allowed $2.50 a day which comes off their fine. That one with nothing on above the waist wanted a sun bath. He had had it, and what a sunburn."

MR. HOWLAND, who is a philosopher, says real estate is going to come back in a way that will surprise all. Everybody in Florida thinks and talks about real estate. Mr. Howland lost fine properties in the big boom, but what he lost he will recover.

"What's the use complaining?" says he, "when everybody loses with you. You have no right to complain."

NEW YORK'S Academy of Science learns that a new living ear drum was grown in a frog made of skin from the back of another frog.

Scientists are interested, because the skin from a strange frog, in the environment of an ear drum that had been destroyed, turned to ear drum tissue and functioned normally.

Anti-vivisectionists will weep for "the poor frog" although that creature never knew what happened, or suffered pain.

Suppose it had been possible to do the same for the great Beethoven, whose life was made miserable by deafness that prevented hearing his own music, and hampered his genius.

HEARING AND happiness, for the giant Beethoven, would have been worth the lives of many frogs.

The Bible distinctly says that all creatures are not equal, which proves that all life is important, but, says St. Matthew, every sparrow that falls to the ground is counted, "Fear ye not, therefore, ye are of more value than many sparrows."

If we are worth more than many sparrows, how many frogs must we be worth?

THE TIDE of United States immigration has turned. At present more people are leaving the United States than coming into it, and the small quota of permissions allowing foreigners to come is not nearly filled. That is a bad sign for the United States.

This country was not built by aborigines, but by ambitious foreign men and women with courage to cross the ocean and come to an unknown land.

The first and second generation of immigrants, not the supercilious fifth or tenth generation, made this country. Recently we said to foreigners:

"We don't want you except in small numbers."

They now reply:

"Thanks, we don't care to come."

This country would dwindle rapidly if that should continue. With our millions of acres uncultivated, millions of bushels of wheat, pigs, steers, chickens that we cannot eat; millions of second-hand automobiles unsold; possible millions of new cars for which there is no market.

What we need is PEOPLE, ten millions more of them now, and fifty million more later.

Some, ignorant, think more population must mean lower wages. When United States population was under four millions, there was only one mechanic in the country able to earn as much as a dollar a day, all year round. They did better than that in 1929 with 123 millions in the country.

The trouble is that we have more of everything than the people can consume, so evidently we need more people to help us out, as consumers.

UNDER KANSAS law a farmer, sold out for debt, may always keep one yoke of oxen. When the law was written it was thought the farmer couldn't get another start in life if you took his oxen. An effort to change that law was recently voted down.

It might be changed advantageously by substituting "one automobile" for "one yoke of oxen." A woman's sewing machine and a man's automobile should be exempt from debt collection.

With an automobile you can go elsewhere and look for a

WOODIN LEAVES TREASURY POST: MORGENTHAU NAMED ACTING HEAD

Charges Dropped

JAMES J. DAVIS

U. S. Senator Davis, today cleared of all U. S. charges against him as the government dropped its remaining Moose lottery cases.

DAVIS CHARGES DROPPED BY U. S.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Outstanding charges against United States Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, in connection with an alleged lottery operated by the order of Moose, were nolle prossed today.

A similar case against the Senator resulted in an acquittal October 12.

The action was announced by Louis Mead Treadwell, chief of the criminal division of the United States Attorney's office, who also said that an indictment against the Western Union Telegraph Company, involving an alleged lottery by the Shriners in 1932, had been dropped.

Meanwhile, Conrad H. Mann, president of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, arrived in New York and surrendered to federal authorities to serve a five-month sentence on his con- a five-month sentence on his conviction for participation in an alleged lottery by the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Mann was accompanied by his attorney, Clyve Taylor, of Kansas City, and was met at the train by a man he identified as former Congressman James Morin, of Pennsylvania, "a very dear friend of mine."

SLAYS RIVAL AS HUSBAND LOOKS ON

Wife Shoots Woman She Had Lured Into Home

International News Service.

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 15.—Adopting the code duello, Mrs. L. W. Boone, 35-year-old mother of an 8-year-old child, today passed judgment on an alleged rival for the affections of her husband and shot her to death in the family's apartment as the husband looked on.

This strange drama of the old, old triangle, took place early today, and Mrs. Pearl Hall, 30, who Mrs. Boone charged had stolen the affections of her husband, went calmly to her death with words of endearment on her lips for Boone.

The shooting occurred in the small Boone apartment. Mrs. Boone and a friend, Mrs. Reitzell Morrison, had lured Mrs. Hall there with the statement that a friend of Boone wanted to see her.

HUSBAND AWAKENED

Boone, who had gone to bed, was awakened by his wife when the three women arrived at the apartment. Turning to Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Boone said:

"Tell him what you have been telling me."

She apparently referred to statements Mrs. Hall had made during the ride to the Boone apartment.

Mrs. Hall said to Boone:

"Hello Dan. She knows all."

Mrs. Boone said that as she went into the bedroom, she picked up a .45 revolver, and that Mrs. Hall kept her hand in a heavy fur coat.

During the dramatic scene in the apartment, Mrs. Boone said that Mrs. Hall "suddenly started toward me and before I knew what had happened, I had fired the pistol one time."

The woman slumped to the floor, dying. She murmured:

"Goodbye, daddy.'

TELLS OF SHOOTING

Boone, in statement to police, described the shooting as follows:

"I went to sleep and the next thing I knew was when I was awakened about 3:30 a. m. and saw Mrs. Hall near the bed at my side. My wife stood near the foot of the bed, close to the kitchen. Mrs. Hall said to me:

" 'Dan, she has got us.' "

"I said, 'What do you mean?' "

"She replied, 'She knows all about us.' I then asked her what she was doing there. She replied that she came over to finish it, or to end it, or to wind it up, I do not remember which.

"I turned back the cover to grab Mrs. Hall, as I did not know how she had got in my house or what she came there for.

"Before I could reach her, I heard my wife say, 'Go back and don't move another foot.' I did not know anyone had a gun."

At this point, Mrs. Boone fired once, the bullet striking Mrs. Hall in the left breast.

Neighbors Indicted In Recluse Slaying

NATCHEZ, Miss., Nov. 15.—(INS.)—The fantastic murder of Miss Jane Surget Merrill, aged spinster-recluse daughter of a one-time United States minister to Belgium, supposedly solved with the police slaying of George Pearles, Negro, was suddenly revived today when the Adams County grand jury returned murder indictments against two eccentric neighbors of the slain woman.

The indictments named Richard H. C. Dana, scion of the famous Dana family, and his middle-aged housekeeper, Miss Octavia Dockery, occupants of a ramshackle ante-bellum dwelling near the Merrill estate, known as "Goat Castle."

Wreckers Blamed For Crash of Train

BOONEVILLE, Ark., Nov. 15.—(AP.)—The engine of a westbound Rock Island pasesnger train overturned and several coaches were derailed here early today as a result of what railroad officials described as a deliberate attempt to wreck the train. Three persons were hurt.

KDKA Engineer Killed By 3,000-Volt Shock

Fifteen years ago, a 15-year-old boy, intrigued by the "new-fangled" wireless, started hooking up wires and gadgets and, all in all, had a lot of fun.

Early today that boy—grown into manhood, with a charming young wife and 5-year-old son—found death in the intricate setup of a modern radio station's transmitter.

He was William L. Harmon, 30, station engineer in charge of KDKA's transmitter at Saxonburg, killed when he came into contact with a 3,000-volt connection at the station shortly after KDKA said "goodnight" at 1 a. m.

Harmon apparently had been changing transmitter tubes for an experiment when the accident occurred. At the station were two operators, Gus Sadlon and Howard Edwards, who summoned Dr. W. W. Lasher, of Saxonburg, and rescue crews of the West Penn Power Company from Butler and Springdale. For more than five hours the crews worked in vain—Harmon was pronounced dead at 6:45 a. m.

He was the son of Herbert W. Harmon, of the physics department of Grove City College, where the youthful engineer had taught physics for two years prior to joining KDKA five years ago. He was a Grove City graduate.

COLD WAVE DUE TO HIT NEW LOW

Deaths, Suffering Grow As Icy Grip Spreads Through District

The cold spell which is spreading death and suffering throughout Pennsylvania continued to hold Pittsburgh in its grip this afternoon.

The weatherman warned that tonight the temperature may drop to 10 degrees—which would be a new low for the season.

Not only in this district but throughout the East and Middle West snow and cold winds combined to snuff out lives.

In Pittsburgh the thermometer dropped to its coldest point of the season and a 50-year-weather record was equalled. Auto accidents were numerous on the icy streets and all roads out of the city were reported iced.

In McKeesport Hospital one man died after being injured in an automobile accident blamed on the weather.

Three other deaths in Pennsylvania and three in Ohio were attributed to snow and cold.

SCORES OF AUTOS STALL

Scores of stalled automobiles, covered with snow and frost, dotted mountain highways.

Temperatures as low as seven degrees in Crawford County, and 10 in the heart of the Pocono Mountains, ranged to low twenties in other sections.

Snow, still falling, reached a depth of 14 inches in Warren County.

More than 800 men, with 112 plows and 263 cinder trucks patrolled highways, clearing drifts and spreading cinders on glassy spots.

MERCURY DOWN TO 15

At 8 a. m. the temperature in Pittsburgh was 15 degrees—coldest for this date since 1883, also coldest of the season.

Joseph Breon, 24, of Stewartsville, Westmoreland County, died in the McKeesport Hospital after being injured in an automobile collision Sunday on the Lincoln highway.

In Blair County, Samuel and Joseph Epstein, of Newark, N. J., died after their auto collided with another in the Cresson mountains. Edward F. Dunn, 60, of Altoona, was killed in a fall on icy steps at his home.

In Cambria County, a man who carried a card indicating he was Calvin C. Taylor, 30, of 1126 South Braddock avenue, Pittsburgh, was found in critical condition alongside the railroad tracks at Lilly. He was suffering from exposure. At the Pittsburgh address no one knew of him.

HUNTER MISSING

More than 100 men went into the forests near Kane, Pa., to search for Harry Mattison, 37, a hunter, of Ludlow, Pa., missing since Monday. Woodsmen fear he may have died of exposure.

In McKeesport a man was found lying in Jerome street suffering from exposure. He was taken to McKeesport Hospital and listed as Neal Carr, 40, of 2302 Highland avenue, McKeesport.

Two men who fell on the ice-covered streets were taken to South Side Hospital. They were Andy Kusherski, 39, of 61 Gregory street, and Patrick Malone, 55, of 200 South Twenty-first street, police reported.

Kusherski suffered a probable skull fracture and Malone received a cut on the face.

Suffering cuts on the head when the automobile in which he was riding skidded and crashed into a telephone pole in Duquesne boulevard, Duquesne, Frank Fechap, 21, of 87 Orchard streeet, McKees Rocks, was treated at McKeesport Hospital. Harry Kanoza, of 20 Rosemont street, McKees Rocks, driver of the car, escaped injury, police said.

Milk Price Fixing Injunction Denied

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(INS.)—A petition for an injunction to restrain Secretary of Agriculture Wallace from fixing milk prices under authority of the AAA was denied in District of Columbia Supreme Court today by Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue.

The petition was sought by the Capital City Milk Producers Association, representing a group of Pennsylvania dairy farmers. Notice of an appeal from the decision was filed.

'One Good Actor'

LILLIAN GISH

Miss Gish, who turned out to be one of the "two good actors" that Eddie Dowling, a friend of the President, was to bring today to the White House with a film he wanted President Roosevelt to see. Invited for dinner today, Mr. Dowling turns out to be the other of the 'good actors.'

POLLS 'HUDDLE' TOLD AT TRIAL

Members of the election board of the Ninth District, Third Ward, "went into a huddle" after the Roosevelt landslide at last year's election became apparent and ousted all Democratic watchers, several watchers testified today in the congressional vote fraud trial.

This was coupled with testimony purporting to show that at least 29 straight Democratic ballots were missing from the ballot box which was opened yesterday in the Federal court room by representatives of both sides.

SIX ON TRIAL

Five members of the election board and an election constable are on trial before Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, charged with conspiracy to violate the election laws.

Louis Butera, 1725 Bedford avenue, a Democratic watcher, testified that after the board had counted the head of the ticket showing 180 votes for Roosevelt against 85 for Hoover, all Democratic watchers were ordered from the polls in the Letsche school.

He was corroborated by George Hathazy, of 1613 Bedford avenue, and John F. Burke, of 1 Ridgway

PINCHOT RUM BILL CHANGE OPPOSED

Easing of Restaurant Curb Not Acceptable To Governor

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Nov. 15.—Gov. Pinchot's state liquor store bill, the keystone in his program of liquor control and license, is already unsatisfactory to the Governor because of a single amendment.

Even should the Legislature make no more changes in the bill, it is intimated that it would not be accepted by the Governor if passed in its present form. The Governor has sufficient votes to support a veto.

While Mr. Pinchot refused to comment on the amendment, reducing from 1,000 to 500 square feet the necessary floor area of any restaurant or hotel dining room which could be licensed to sell wine and whisky, some of those in his circle who usually speak with authority intimate he would use his veto and charge that authors of the amendment were in reality voting for a return of the old saloon system.

OPPOSED BY ALLEGHENY

Philadelphia and Allegheny County representatives were back of the change, which would make almost any present beer parlor eligible to license.

Even this victory was not sufficient to satisfy them, and the bill was a subject of a protracted conference yesterday afternoon, and is to be considered again next

VANDERBILT SON DIES IN CRASH

International News Service.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Nov. 15.—William K. Vanderbilt III was killed today in an auto accident while driving from Miami to New York.

According to word received here, young Vanderbilt drove his automobile into a trailer parked at the side of the Coastal highway, near the village of Ridgeland, S. C., 90 miles south of here.

He died a few minutes after arriving at Ritter Hospital in Ridgeland.

His cousin, Erskine Gwynne, escaped with slight injuries. Vanderbilt's chauffeur, J. W. Guppy, suffered a broken leg.

Hospital authorities immediately telephoned Vanderbilt's father in New York. Young Vanderbilt had gone to Florida a few weeks ago with his father on the latter's yacht, and the elder Vanderbilt had preceded him to New York.

Acting-Secretary

HENRY MORGANTHAU, JR.

Mr. Morganthau, today the choice of the White House for the acting-secretaryship of the U. S. Treasury as Secretary Woodin continues an indefinite leave of absence.

HEINZ TO SEEK RECOUNT

With the lead of John Heinz, Democratic candidate for Sheriff, cut to 34 votes by the Return Board, Democratic counsel today said they planned to ask the courts to recount a number of ballot boxes of districts in the county.

The fight between Heinz and Frank I. Gollmar, incumbent, has see-sawed since election day.

The Return Board had completed canvassing to the Seventh District of the Fifteenth Ward—a total of 96 districts so far. Among the districts Attorney A. L. Wolk will ask recounted, he said, are one in Etna, one in Tarentum, three in Rankin, and half a dozen elsewhere.

The return of the Eighth District of the Seventeenth Ward remains a prize of perhaps crucial value. All yesterday morning was given by Return Judges Ambrose B. Reid and W. Heber Dithrich to hearing members of the board tell how two masked and armed thugs stole all their split ballots.

The Democrats wanted all of the 551 ballots to be counted, the missing ones on testimony from the board as to what they contained. The Republicans would have liked the whole box thrown out.

But the judges ruled that the ballots actually in the box should be counted by the board and the return made, with a statement of incompleteness. The inclusion of a count for the missing votes is a matter for later litigation.

McNair Trains Guns on Police Force, Chamber of Commerce and G. O. P.

'Jimmy Coyne Might Be City Manager,' He Laughs

Just what picturesque William N. McNair, Pittsburgh's Democratic Mayor-elect, is going to do when he's inaugurated became clear enough today to chill the spines of thousands of staunch Republicans.

Hints of special audits, promises to tease the Republican dominated Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce 'most to death, suggestions of a gunless and courteous police department and thoughts of taking the police department off the payroll of the racketeer held the spotlight.

These coming on top of the now famed single tax theories of the perennial candidate, clarified the situation a little.

And rising above all the discussion of policies was the question of who will form the cabinet, which will put the policies into effect. Of the men he wants for his cabinet, McNair says:

"When I ask my friends to take certain offices I think they'd be good in, they say they're too busy They don't want to take the responsibility of putting their good advice into practice.

"They're all afraid of being 'put on the spot,' that's what's wrong with them. Oh, no—they wouldn't hold office for the world. They want me to take the blame if their ideas are no good."

Although there is some doubt that the city manager plan for Pittsburgh can legally be discussed in the present special session of the Legislature. McNair hazards that:

"A little thing like that won't

SECRETARY'S ILL HEALTH BLAMED

Dean Acheson Quits Simultaneously as Under-Secretary

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin will take an indefinite leave of absence from his cabinet post, and Henry Morgenthau, Jr., will be appointed acting secretary, the White House announced today.

The reasons prompting Woodin to retire from the Treasury, it was said, concern his health. He is suffering from a chronic throat infection and has been away from Washington for some weeks.

Dean Acheson, of Maryland, who has been under-secretary of the Treasury, is also retiring, it was announced, as he desires to return to private business,

RESIGNATION REFUSED

Secretary Woodin submited his resignation to President Roosevelt on October 31. He wanted to retire definitely from his post,

After three days' consideration of the matter, President Roosevelt wrote him and suggested that instead of resigning outright he take an indefinite leave of absence. To that, Woodin assented.

CODE VIOLATORS WORRY NRA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Hugh S. Johnson took to President Roosevelt today a report that compliance with codes and the Blue Eagle re-employment agreement is not working successfully and means must be taken quickly to secure more thorough enforcement.

This conclusion was reached by the NRA administrator on his 10-day swing around the Mid-West, which he said today he considered highly successful from every point of view.

At virtually every city where he spoke, he obtained reports on conditions. The overwhelming consensus was that non-enforcement stood as the greatest immediate hazard to NRA's part of the recovery program.

Taylor, Steel Head, Calls on Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation, conferred briefly today with President Roosevelt. He said his call was merely to pay his respects.

NEW EXPOSITION SEEN HERE AS GROUP SEEKS CHARTER

DOWNTOWN SITE HELD LIKELY CHOICE

City May Close Lease On Point Building; Debts Audited

New plans for an exposition building for downtown Pittsburgh are seen in the application for a charter by the Greater Exposition Society on file today in Common Pleas Court.

At the same time it became known that the Western Pennsylvania Exposition Society as an organization will have no part in a new building project.

Incorporators asking for the new charter set forth that they desire to erect buildings to house manufacturing and industry, hold conventions, conduct sports, restaurants, parking of automobiles and engage in other activities.

ACT ON DEBTS

P. M. Chamberlain, who has been urging the construction of a $6,000,000 structure on the site of the old Exposition Building, today at his office in the Jenkins Arcade announced that he is connected with the new corporation.

City records show that the lease of the city on the present Exposition Building may be closed at any time by the city paying the amount of the recorded debt of the Western Pennsylvania Exposition Society.

City Controller James P. Kerr has auditors at work to determine the exact amount for which a settlement of the debt could be made.

Should the new organization seek a renewal of the grant on the Exposition property, the matter would be up to City Council. Chamberlain today declined to comment on his course of action.

NEW GROUP NAMED

John L. Porter, president of the Western Pennsylvania Exposition Society, stated that the society has not approved the building project at the Point proposed by Chamberlain. He said:

"The Western Pennsylvania Exposition Society has had nothing to do with it. If some of the life members want to become connected with the new society, that is up to them."

The new group asks a 50-year charter. Listed directors are Paul A. Robinson, of Bolivar, Pa.; F. T. Trobaugh, Moon Run; Clyde A. Armstrong, New Kensington; Kenneth G. Jackson, 4628 Bayard street, and Donald W. Ebbert, Miami avenue, Mt. Lebanon.

SCHALL BOOED ATTACKING NRA

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Senator Thomas D. Schall was booed by a University of Minnesota audience yesterday as he gave an address attacking the national recovery program.

The Republican Senator from Minnesota first encountered some audience disapproval when he made a reference to "Frankenstein Roosevelt" in talking about war debts which he said the President was canceling.

Another outburst came when he said Lincoln and Washington would "turn over in their graves" at NRA activities, which he asserted were being pushed "with the government controlling the newspapers, radio and movies." He stopped and then said:

"Oh, I know it's hard, boys, but you've got to hear the truth."

Thereafter he was not interrupted.

ACHESON MUM ON RESIGNING

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Undersecretary of the Treasury Dean Acheson, who is resigning Saturday when Secretary Woodin leaves and Henry Morgenthau, Jr., steps into the Treasury post as acting secretary, had "nothing to say" today after President Roosevelt announced his resignation.

Acheson was asked specifically whether he was in accord with present financial policies of the administration and to this query, too, he replied there was "nothing to be said."

Acheson, upon leaving the White House, stated:

"I think the President has said all that is necessary."

NRA AIDE SEES BIG TEST HERE

Pittsburgh, the industrial capital of the United States, is being watched by the nation as the testing ground of the NRA program to establish co-operative relationship between capital and labor on a sound footing, according to Frederick Vining Fisher, national field representative of the National Recovery Administration.

Fisher, who will address a public meeting at 7:45 o'clock tonight in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium, under the auspices of the local chapter of National Association of Cost Accountants, said:

"NRA is all that the businessman has thought about for months. But the public yet hasn't grasped it. They look to it as an emergency measure to put men back to work. But it actually is marking the end of an old economic era.

"It is the end of bitter competition and antagonism between labor and capital.

"As for a dictator, we were in danger of some such thing a year ago, but today, that danger is past, unless we fall with NRA. The people are the dictators today. The only alternative of NRA success is Fascism or Communism."

Tailors Nominate Trio to NRA Board

Three representatives of the Independent Retail Cleaners and Tailors of Allegheny County were nominated to the local NRA board of the cleaning and dyeing industry at a meeting last night in the Roosevelt Theater Hall, Center avenue. They are Harry Feldman, Stanley Scwartz and Joe Lefkowitz. Their names will be presented for confirmation at a mass meeting to be held tomorrow night in Moose Temple.

Messengers' Wage In NRA Code Stayed

Pending hearings by President Roosevelt, a provision of the retail drug store NRA code which provided minimum wages for delivery boys has been stayed by an executive order, according to M. F. Bierbaum, secretary of the Pennsylvania Retail Druggists' Association. C. Sterry Long, assistant deputy administrator, retail section of the NRA, made public the ruling.

ICKES TO RETAIN OIL CONTROL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Secretary Ickes, the oil administrator, last night told the oil industry that he had no intention of relaxing his control over federal efforts to re-establish an industry that had failed to govern itself.

Ickes gave this notice in a statement commenting on reports that Wirt Franklin, chairman of the planning and co-ordinating committee of the oil code, had urged oil men to appeal to the secretary that "control of the industry be vested completely with the planning and co-ordinating committee."

At the same time the secretary announced that J. Howard Marshall, asistant solicitor of the Interior Department, had been sent to California to investigate reports of violations of production control allocations. Ickes reiterated that all such violators would be dealt with "swiftly and severely in the courts."

Blue Eagle Stays Up Board Here Rules

Once the Blue Eagle goes up, it stays up, Frank Harper, executive secretary of the local NRA compliance board asserted today. And it cannot be taken down without permission, he added.

Business men who find it impossible to meet the requirements of the Blue Eagle and stay in business, may get relief by applying to the local board, which in turn confers with Washington.

GREEN BATTLES BUILDING CODE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—With Hugh S. Johnson due back in the Capital today from his western swing, the controversy between employer groups and labor over the construction industry master code grew to new intensity.

Stepping for the first time into a long exchange of accusations and countercharges between the Construction League, code proponent, and the building trade unions, William Green, American Federation of Labor president, in a statement last night charged the league with issuing "unfair and unwarranted accusations." He said:

"Labor is not blocking the construction code or any other code. Labor has not threatened a general strike or any other strike. But it will not approve or support a code for the building construction industry that is unfair, impracticable and unjust."

Green demanded a separate code for building construction, in which he claimed 90 per cent unionization.

CITY SUBMITS JOB PROGRAM TO U. S.

Lang Asks $2,200,000 For Program to Give 3,281 Work

By JOHN P. COWAN
Sun-Telegraph Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Civic improvement projects which would give immediate employment to 3,281 persons in Pittsburgh for three months were presented to the Federal Civic Works Administration today by Public Safety Director Edward G. Lang on behalf of Mayor Herron, of Pittsburgh.

The work calls for a gross expenditure of $2,200,000, of which $1,229,000 would be spent for labor. The city asks for the entire amount to be provided from federal funds.

The work program is classified as follows:

Surfacing and draining unimproved streets, $600,000, employing 1,026 men for three months; construction of sewers, $500,000, employing 735 men; pipe line construction, $500,000, employing 600 men; park and playground work, $500,000, employing 800 men; replacement of wooden steps and boardwalks, $100,000, employing 120 men.

Director Lang pointed out that his program includes off-job labor which would materially increase the estimate of the number of persons employed. City Solicitor Charles Waldschmidt is a joint representative for Pittsburgh. They were joined by Representative Henry Ellenbogen and former Representative Edmund F. Erk.

Ickes Sees 4 Million Jobs Under Civil Works Fund

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Secretary Ickes today characterized the new $400,000,000 civil works fund as a means for holding back the line of unemployment this winter until major projects under the $3,000,000,000 Public Works Administration can get fully underway.

Addressing the governors of 20 states, the mayors of 150 cities and more than 200 other officials, gathered as a relief convention, he told of plans aimed to hire 4,000,000 men until February 1 through allottments under the $400,000,000 fund.

Harry L. Hopkins, the civil works administrator, previously had urged that relief funds be used to pay actual wages for work done in addition to this sum.

Officials will meet with President Roosevelt at the White House during the late afternoon.

Hopkins set minimum wages under his fund for three subdivisions of the country. These provide that unskilled labor in the southern zone shall be paid not less than 40 cents, with a 45-cent minimum in the central zone and 50 cents in the north.

Skilled labor which may be necessary on the projects will be paid $1 an hour in the southern zone; $1.10 in the central zone and $1.20 in the north.

ROCKEFELLER 'GIFT' BARED BY OIL MAN

Probe Calls Cutler To Explain $448,000 'Santa Claus'

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—A multi-headed Santa Claus, reflecting the visages of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Harry F. Sinclair and a group of New York bankers beneath his white whiskers, was produced today at the Senate banking inquiry as the father of a $448,000 gift to William S. Fitzpatrick, oil magnate, in 1928.

Fitzpatrick, while president of the Rockefeller-controlled Prairie Oil and Gas Company, was paid this sum by Blair & Co., New York bankers, while negotiations were being conducted to merge that company with the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Company. About $300,000 of the gift came from a Sinclair Oil syndicate and $148,000 from profits on the sale of a part of the Rockefeller interest in the Prairie company.

REWARD FOR SERVICES

Fitzpatrick said Bertram Cutler, a Rockefeller executive, first suggested the gift as a reward for his 25-year service in the Rockefeller company. He thought Blair & Co. paid him at the suggestion of the Rockefeller interests.

Elisha Walker, former president of Blair & Co., later testified it was paid so the bankers could retain the "good-will" of Fitzpatrick after they bought into the Prairie Company. He denied the Rockefeller interests knew anything about Fitzpatrick getting a share of the Sinclair deal.

SUMMON CUTLER

Walker declared all participants in the Sinclair deal agreed to the Fitzpatrick gift because they also belonged to a group which purchased the Rockefeller stock in the Prairie Company.

This contradicted the previous testimony of Sinclair, Arthur W. Cutten and Albert H. Wiggin that they never knew why Fitzpatrick was "cut in" on the Sinclair deal.

This rambling description of Fitzpatrick's "Santa Claus" served to confuse the committee. It decided then to call Bertram Cutler, the Rockefeller executive, to get a clearer picture of the white-whiskered gentleman.

M'CLURE PERIL TOLD BY RAIDER

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 13.—(AP.)—A former state policeman who named State Senator John J. McClure as the active head of a liquor "protection" ring is authority for the statement that the post had its physical as well as legal dangers.

Edgar A. Davis, self-styled private investigator for the Senator, who is on trial with 75 others on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws, testified yesterday of saving McClure from being shot by an enraged bootlegger.

The witness said that while a group of Philadelphians were protesting to him about a raid that was made on their alcohol plant in Chester while they were paying "protection," McClure walked past.

One of the men whipped out a pistol and started for the Senator, saying:

"I'll kill him."

Davis testified:

"He was just going to pull the trigger when I grabbed him."

"Figuring to talk him out of the idea of killing McClure, I asked him to whom he was paying protection. He said he was paying John Ryan $300 to take care of the still."

Ryan, a defendant, is described by the government as one of McClure's political lieutenants.

" 'Well,' I said, 'if you're doing business with Ryan, go down and kill him.' Then I took the gun away from him."

Davis testified that he became a detective to help McClure enforce his rule as head of the "ring" and that the Senator used to give him lists of places to raid after they failed to pay up.

Roosevelt Guest

MRS. ELIZABETH ROOSEVELT

WHITE HOUSE GETS GUESTS

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Elliot Roosevelt's former wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Donner Roosevelt, and her baby son, William, arrived at the White House yesterday for a two-weeks' visit at the invitation of the First Lady of the land.

The President's youngest grandchild was immediately introduced to "Sistie" and "Buzzie" Dall, children of the President's only daughter, Mrs. Curtis B. Dall, who are spending the winter in the executive mansion.

Mrs. James Roosevelt, the President's mother, will accompany him to Warm Springs Friday for the annual Thanksgiving celebration. Scores of turkeys sent to the White House for Thanksgiving dinner will be shipped to Warm Springs to be served to everyone connected with the Warm Springs Foundation and to many of the townspeople as well.

'SOUND MONEY' BLOW SEEN

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The resignation of Dean Acheson and the leave of absence of Secretary Woodin, of the Treasury, today came as a surprise to Wall street and was regarded in the financial district as a blow to the "sound money" group.

The surprise came from the fact that only on Monday Secretary Woodin, following a White House conference, vigorously denied he was in disagreement with the President on his monetary policies, particularly that on gold buying.

This, Woodin said, went for himself as Treasury Secretary and for the entire Treasury Department.

In announcing his blanket support of the President's whole money program, the Secretary said he would issue a statement this week explaining the whole program and its aims at home and abroad.

Wall street speculation centers on whether this statement had anything to do with the sudden retirement of the Secretary and the resignation of his chief assistant, Acheson.

WOODIN TAKES 'INDEFINITE LEAVE'

Morgenthau Appointed Acting Head of Treasury

The Secretary will leave here the last of this week for Arizona for an extended stay. At his own request, the White House stated, Woodin will not receive his cabinet salary.

His long absences from Washington undergoing treatment for his throat have led to frequently recurring rumors that he would resign, and rumors that he was out of sympathy with the President's fiscal policies.

These were always promptly denied, sometimes by the White House and at other times by Secretary Woodin himself.

The White House made public two letters exchanged between the President and Woodin.

WOODIN'S LETTER

The first, dated October 31, in New York City, was addressed to Mr. Roosevelt and said:

"My Dear Governor:

"It is so cheering to hear your voice over the telephone that I always feel better after talking to you.

"Last August, after a severe illness, I took up with you the question as to whether on account of my health I should relinquish the position I now hold in your cabinet. You suggested that I try remaining away from my desk for a few weeks and, as far as possible, forget the Treasury, in order to give my system a chance for a full recovery.

"Unfortunately, I am not exactly built that way, and it has been impossible for me, on account of the great responsibility I feel, to refrain from being almost as active in the affairs of the department when away as when I was actually at my desk.

"I have tried faithfully to carry out your suggestion, but it has been a failure, as evidenced by the relapse which I have just suffered. Therefore, I feel that I must tender my resignation and seek complete rest and a change of climate.

"My physicians have told me that unless I do this they will not be responsible for the outcome.

"I cannot express the intense regret I feel in writing you this letter. I have been so happy in serving you and, if I only could continue, I would be the most grateful of all people.

"You will know that every policy of your has had and still has my devoted support, and I have never doubted that you are the one man that can lead this country out of its difficulties.

"Gratefully yours,
"WILLIAM H. WOODIN."

ROOSEVELT REPLY

The President's reply, dated November 2 at the White House, was as follows:

"Dear Will:

"I do not need to tell you that I am deeply grieved at the thought of your not continuing, but, at the same time, as I have told you, I would not for anything in the world injure your health by any insistence on my part that you carry on the impossible task of running the Treasury Department and simultaneously giving full obedience to the doctor's orders.

"The first consideration is your complete rejuvenation and this can only be accomplished by giving up all work for the next few months.

"If you will do this, it is not only my hope, but also my sincere belief that in a few months you will be able once more to give to the government the fine, unselfish service which all of us in Washington have so greatly appreciated.

"We need you back again, and the country needs you back again.

"For this reason, I am going to ask you to withhold your resignation; to take a complete leave of absence and to do all you can to get full health and strength without any responsibility or thought of work.

"I hope that you will do this for me because of my own personal affectionate regard for you and because of the very great services which you have given to our country during a critical period of our history.

"While you are away, I can well appoint someone with government and financial experience to be acting secretary.

"Very sincerely yours,
FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Fires Rifle at Radio Of Neighbor at 2 A. M.

The neighbors ain't gonna keep Carl and his family awake all night with their confounded radio and card-playing.

No, sir, not Carl Negley, of 808 Ninth avenue, Brackenridge.

At 2 o'clock this morning, when Carl and his family, who reside on the first floor of an apartment house at that address, found sleep impossible, he fired one bullet from an army rifle into the second floor apartment of John Grundy. The bullet came within a foot of the radio as it sped by and through the roof.

The Grundys, alarmed by the gunplay, called Brackenridge police, and Patrolman Roy Hanna took Carl to the bastile. He confiscated Negley's rifle and is holding Carl for a hearing scheduled for tonight on charges of discharging firearms within the borough limits and shooting with intent to kill. The officer quoted Carl:

"I don't care if I get 10 years. I couldn't stand it any longer."

Negley said the neighbors' radio and their incessant chatter during a card party drove him to his rash deed.

But Mrs. Grundy retorted that the Negleys, too, played their radio late.

Senator Called 'Yellow' In Vote Probe Uproar

International News Service.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 15.—Two-fisted Senator Tom Connally (Dem.), of Texas, branded as "yellow" by Senate Investigator John H. Holland, hit back at his accuser today, rapped Louisianans as "cowards" and precipitated a near riot in the Senate sub-committee investigation of the John H. Overton election.

As the probe entered the third day the Texas Senator, chairman of the committee, declared:

"I'm fed up with these silly, asinine and false accusations.

"This committee is trying to get at the truth of the matter—not just the vague accusations of some nincompoops in back alleys.

"Furthermore, if anybody's afraid it's some of you cowards in Louisiana."

The accusation of cowardice threw the crowded courtroom into an uproar. Spectators leaped to their feet, shouted derisive epithets at the Senator and shook their fists.

One voice, above the clamor, yelled:

"Come outside and say that."

Connally reached for the heavy wood mallet and pounded so furiously for order that the hammer broke in half.

At this the spectators broke into lusty laughter. Policemen rushed forward to break up the disturbance.

Connally's heckler would not downed. He yelled:

"You're yellow. Come outside and call us cowards."

The spectators joined in screaming:

"Give it to him."

GARAVINI, SLAIN IN DUEL, BURIED WITHOUT CHURCH RITES

WIDOW WEEPS AT HACKER'S GRAVE

Sleuths Among Small Group of Friends At Cemetery

The doors of the church were closed to the slain Andy Garavini today.

The William Penn way hacker, who was shot dead in a gun battle with Iggy Swartz, downtown bookmaker, was buried in the Calvary Cemetery, but the church services were eliminated.

GIVEN BLESSING

The Rev. Cherubino Viola, of St. Peter's Catholic Church, in Fernando street, where services were to have been held for Garavini, explained that there could be no church funeral for a divorced man.

He said they could not give a church service to "anybody who led so scandalous and sinful a public life," but that they would give him a blessing.

Garavini was long regarded as the boss of "Rum Row" in William Penn way.

However, services were held in the expensively furnished home in Seminole Hills in Mt. Lebanon, to which Garavini took the woman he married a few months ago—the woman whom police say was unwittingly responsible for the feud between hacker and gambler.

WIDOW SOBS

Garavini's widow, who divorced Swartz shortly before she married Garavini, had to be assisted to her husband's grave. She cried bitterly as a priest from St. Peter's Church pronounced a blessing while two altar boys stood at his side.

At the cemetery were a small group of Garavini's business and hacker friends and two homicide detectives. Most of them had come in five big hacks owned by Garavini.

Mrs. Garavini was an eyewitness to the battle between her husband and ex-husband, staged outside the William Penn Hotel. In fact, the police say she picked up a revolver and hurled it at the fleeing Swartz after Garavini had slumped to the sidewalk, dying.

Swartz and Garavini had feuded for months, the gambler accusing the hacker of breaking up his home, according to the police.

Swartz, charged with the killing, is being held without bond. His ex-wife probably will be the principal witness at the Coroner's inquest.

ICEBERGS TRAP EXPLORERS

International News Service.

MOSCOW, Nov. 15.—Trapped between colossal icebergs heading for destruction in the Bering Straits, a group of noted Soviet scientists aboard the icebreaker Chelyuskin today wirelessed an appeal for aid.

For almost a month, the wireless revealed, the vessel has been caught fast between towering walls of ice, drifting slowly in the general direction of the Bering Straits. All efforts by those aboard to free the ship from the vise of ice have failed.

Soviet icebreakers in Arctic waters have been instructed to render all possible assistance with the aid of Soviet planes sent out from Wrangel Island.

The planes are reconnoitering the scene and attempting to find a navigable passage through the ice.

CLOSE HEARING ON 5-CENT BUS

Applications by the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company to operate feeder buses through Beverly Heights and Mission Hills, Mt. lebanon, received a final hearing before Examiner William E. Best, of the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission here today.

After receiving the assurance of Philip Fleger, company attorney, that the service would begin as soon as applications are granted, attorneys representing Mt. Lebanon Township Council and citizens of Beverly Hills united in urging granting of the charters.

GIRL GRILLED IN KIDNAPING

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Federal authorities today questioned Miss Helen Terry, 25, arrested here by police in a surprise raid as a suspected accomplice in the $100,000 kidnaping last June of William Hamm, Jr., millionaire St. Paul brewer.

The woman was questioned closely by Melvin Purvis, local chief of the Department of Justice Bureau of Identification, and William V. Blaul, deputy chief of detectives.

Miss Terry had been sought since it was disclosed by Hamm that a young woman had charge of the Southern Wisconsin hideaway in which he was held captive for four days.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 15.—(INS.)—Federal prosecutors, a little haggard after three days of hard going, today entered the final rounds of their fight to put Roger Touhy, Chicago gang leader, and three of his henchmen in prison for life for the kidnaping of William Hamm, Jr., wealthy brewer.

Spokesmen for the government said they would put 12 or 13 more witnesses on the stand, including, they hope, John Factor, another alleged victim of the Touhys.

FIND NEW CLUE IN KIDNAP HUNT

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—A new search for Brooke Hart, 22, missing son of a wealthy San Jose merchant and who has been reported kidnaped, was started today by police. They acted upon information furnished by Mrs. Harry Schwartz, operator of a Hollywood cafe.

Mrs. Schwartz reported a young man who closely resembled newspaper pictures of Hart appeared at her cafe last night and asked for food. She said he was hatless, wore a white sweater and appeared to be in a daze.

A San Francisco clue apparently had exploded as the hunt for Hart entered its sixth day today.

A former San Jose roadhouse owner, who allegedly had made threats to "get old man Hart for $50,000," was questioned by police in San Francisco last night, but they said his story convinced them he had nothing to do with young Hart's disappearance. A business controversy with the elder Hart was said by the authorities to be the basis of the alleged threats.

Murder Trial Centers On Nurse's 'Confession'

Death on Gallows Asked by State; Woman Testifies

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., Nov. 15.—(AP.)—An attempt by the state to introduce an asserted confession of Miss Fred Weltz is looked for in her trial on a charge of slaying Francis J. M. Grace on the grounds of his estate last September.

In his opening address to the jury, the prosecutor said he would ask the death penalty for the former nurse and prove the slaying of the shipping family member was premeditated.

Helen C. Roberts, Grace's nurse at the time, testified yesterday that Miss Weltz said after the shooting:

"I have my reasons."

Miss Weltz pleaded not guilty to the murder charge and also pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity.

Prosecution witnesses were allowed to give their testimony with little objections from the defense, represented by Attorneys James Duggan, Pittsburgh, friend of the Weltz family, and Stanford Smith.

Woman Kidnaper Begins Life Term

MILAN, Mich., Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Kathryn Kelly, serving a life sentence for the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping, today donned a blue gingham uniform and began her life as an inmate of the new federal prison here.

Mrs. Kelly, whose husband, George (Machine Gun) Kelly, and mother, Mrs. Ora Shannon, also are serving life terms for their part in the kidnaping, was brought here late Tuesday from the Cincinnati workhouse.

5 & 10 HEIRESS 'COLLECTS'

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—To those who may be worrying themselves sick over what to do if they should inherit 10 or 20 million dollars, the manner in which the former Barbara Hutton met the situation will be of interest.

The granddaughter of the late F. W. Woolworth, who turned a five-and-ten cent idea into plenty of millions of dollars, came into her one-third share of the fortune yesterday upon arriving at the age of 21, and gave a little party last night to celebrate, and who wouldn't?

The former Miss Hutton—she is now the wife of Prince Alexis Mdivani—had a pink birthday cake, and was host to 22 small tables of guests at dinner. The eighth and ninth floors of her father's town house on Fifth avenue were given over to the party. An orchestra played Gypsy music, and some voices from the opera provided further entertainment.

State-Wide Drive For Old-Age Pension

A state drive for old-age pension legislation by the present Legislature will be opened by the Fraternal Order of Eagles at 148 meetings the night of November 23, in branch lodge gatherings. Members of fraternal organizations, boards of trade and charitable organizations will be invited to attend.

The principal local meeting will be held in Pittsburgh Aerie auditorium, 431 Third avenue. John F. O'Toole, chairman of the Eagles' pension committee, has charge of the arrangements, while Senator Frank J. Harris will inaugurate the legislative drive.

SPINELLI MAKES FINAL APPEAL

ROME, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Attorneys for Giuseppe (Big Mike) Spinelli, carried their appeal against extradition of their client to Minister of Justice De Francisci today, in a final effort to prevent his trial for murder in the United States.

The counsel, Mario Vanelli and Saverio Castelletti, told the minister of justice that the government should reverse the recent decision of the Italian Supreme Court approving the return of Spinelli to the United States.

He argued that the implicit denaturalization of the former Pittsburgh man, which formed the basis of the Supreme Court's decision, was not admissable and that the naturalization question demands a government decision.

Spinelli is wanted in Pennsylvania in connection with the massacre of Arthur, James and John Volpe, bootleggers, in Pittsburgh, July 29, 1932. A request by the United States for his arrest and extradition from Italy brought immediate action from the Italian authorities.

Heiress Gives Up Count, Stays With Husband

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Mrs. Merry Fahrney Parker-Pickering Eiszner, 22, heiress to the Peter Fahrney millions, has decided to give up her intention of marrying Count Giorgio di Giorgio, deported Chilean nobleman.

Instead she will live with her new husband, Frank V. Eiszner, it was announced today from the hospital where the young heiress is recovering from serious injuries suffered in an automobile crash, which terminated her early morning elopement Friday.

Eiszner's brother, Donald, a former Williams College athlete, was killed in the crash.

Eiszner, standing beside his bride's bed, verified the announcement which repudiated Merry's earlier assertions that she would speed to the side of Count di Giorgio even though New York authorities had sent him away to Cuba.

From the hospital, Mrs. Eiszner denied that her elopement had been resorted to "spite" her parents because of their objections to Count di Giorgio. She explained:

"I've known Frank for five years. Our marriage was not contracted on the spur of the moment. I'm glad that we can live together happily without any more of this publicity."

Hospital attendants only 24 hours ago reported that the vivacious Mrs. Eiszner had cabled her love to the count in Havana and had called him by telephone to explain she would join him soon.

POLICE WATCH STRIKERS BAR MEAT TRUCK

Union Delegates At City Hall Demand Pickets' Release

While police looked on without interfering, striking meat workers halted a refrigeration truck carrying a five-ton meat shipment of the Dold Packing Company, Buffalo, N. Y., on the North Side today and compelled its diversion to a storage house.

Fifty strikers in automobiles followed the Dold truck and called on the driver to stop. He pulled into a gas station at Troy Hill road and East Ohio street to avoid threatened violence, he told police. Motorcycle officers, summoned, made no attempt to arrest the strikers some of whom had clambered into the truck.

MEAT STORED

The shipment was consigned to Pittsburgh stores, according to Sam Cowan, of Crafton, local representative of the Dold Company, and had been sent without knowledge of the company a strike was in progress here.

Under escort of motorcycle police and automobiles filled with strikers the truck was taken to the Federal Storage Company's plant, Fifteenth and Pike streets, and unloaded.

Shortly afterward, police arrested five men alleged to have stopped a retailer's truck near the Ninth Street Bridge and compelled it to turn back. Lodged in North Side Police Station on disorderly conduct charges were Leo Lucas, 1733 Wharton street; Charles Rohe, 122 Monastery avenue; John Callaghan, 425 North Aiken avenue; Louis Milletary, 161 Virginia avenue; E. Weiterschausen, 110 Milroy avenue.

More than 75 men and women strikers gathered at City Council chambers for a hearing this afternoon at whisch leaders were to present three demands. According to Spokesman Harry Rich, union executive board member, the strikers were to ask Council to demand release of arrested pickets; to provide strikers the right to picket, and for Council to prevent plant owners from hiring deputy sheriffs.

COMMUNISTS LINKED

Promoters of the strike today were linked with the Communist controlled Trades Union Unity League with national headquarters in New York. Officials of the League said the Packing House Workers Industrial Union is directly affiliated with the League.

A. C. Jewett, executive secretary of the NRA Regional Labor Board, was out early conferring with both sides and trying to arrange a conference. Dr. Thomas S. Baker, chairman of the board, is seeking to have the strikers return to work pending mediation.

A hearing was to be held this afternoon by Judge George V. Moore on the petition of State Senator Frank J. Harris, receiver, to enjoin the union from interfering with operation of the William Zoller Company and Oswald & Hess Co.

Counsel told the court that employes had been assaulted and ignition of trucks destroyed so as to prevent deliveries.

Judge Moore directed that personal service be obtained on Edward Stohl, president of the union, as well as other officers and members.

$100,000 WILL FIGHT LOST

The will contested by the widow and children of Patrick Golden, Carnegie nonagenarian, was admitted to probate by Deputy Register of Wills W. F. Berger today.

The will, made five days before the aged man's death, disposes of an estate valued at $100,000 and provides that it shall be divided share and share alike among his children and their heirs, excepting only a son, Robert Golden, who is to receive an extra $10,000.

A previous will and the one favored by the widow and children, provided bequests of $2,500 each to William John and Mary Golden, grandchildren, and specified that two other grandchildren, Vincent Joyce and Gladys Joyce Kennedy, had "already been taken care of."

Under terms of the later will the grandchildren share their deceased parent's share.

Younster's Version of Orchard Shooting Told Jury

Eight-year-old Bryant Cook climbed into the big witness chair in Criminal Court today to aid his uncle, Willard R. Bryant, 36, on trial for the fatal shooting of John A. Drab in the Bryant pear orchard, just off Jacks Run road.

Fearlessly, he faced Assistant District Attorney John F. Haggerty and answered questions simply and emphatically. He turned towards the jury as he testified:

"He shot up into the trees and didn't mean to hit the man. Then when the man fell, he went up and rubbed his circulation."

Smiles greeted this simple testimony. Another question explained the man's "circulation." Bryant tried to revive the bullet victim, then when he failed to respond, called the hospital and police, the boy testified.

The case was expected to reach the jury late today. The defense argument was started shortly after the noon recess.

Bryant, on the witness stand in his own defense when court adjourned last night, said he fired a .22 caliber rifle over Drab's head, when ordering him off the premises. He said he ran to the stricken man when he fell with a bullet through his head, and then called the Suburban General Hospital.

Dr. D. A. Atkinson, Burgess of West View, and expert rifle shot, called as an expert by the defense, expressed the opinion that the little bullet had been deflected from a branch of the tree into Drab's head.

Bryant said the old orchard was posted with no trespassing signs and said he told Drab and Joseph Kotich, his companion, to get out before he shot.

LINER RUSHES TO SHIP'S AID

VALENTIA, Ireland, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Ships steamed today from all directions to assist the little British freighter Saxilby, whose crew of 27 men had taken to lifeboats after waging a losing battle against a storm 300 miles off the Irish coast.

Leading the rescue efforts was the great liner Berengaria. Hearing the distress call from the little cargo ship, she changed her course and rushed toward the last reported position of the Saxilby.

The Dutch steamer, Boschdyk, also in the vicinity, turned from her course to search for the disabled freighter and her crew.

The American steamer Westeldara, which had been hove to for safety in the storm 70 miles away, sent word she, too, had got under way and was struggling through the smashing seas in search for the Saxilby.

Nearer the Saxilby, but unable to aid, is another British freighter, the S. S. St. Quentin, with her steering gear disabled.

The big British cruiser, H. M. S. Exeter, at sea for trials, reported she, too, was hurrying into the area. She intends to assist the St. Quentin.

TONE PERSISTS IN WOOING JOAN

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—"I'm a distance runner. I have asked Joan to marry me, and I will keep on asking her, forever."

That was the way Franchot Tone, screen actor, summed up the situation today as it concerns his oft-reported romance with Joan Crawford, glamorous movie star.

As for Miss Crawford—it appeared she hasn't said "yes," but also she hasn't said "no."

She merely smiled as Tone proclaimed his intentions.

The screen pair came here from Hollywood yesterday. Joan alighting alone from a train, was met by admirers and reporters. She asked:

"Mr. Tone? Oh, yes. He was on the train, but he got off at Albany to see some friends."

But within a few hours Tone and Miss Crawford were seen on Fifth avenue and later had dinner together at their hotel.

Officer 'Shinnies' Pole But Cat Comes Down

A number of residents of Bellevue got their usual rest today, partly because Patrolman William Darling braved the cold and snow, but more so because a cat "got good sense" and decided to leave his cold and snowy perch on a pole when he saw that the arm of the law was after him.

Darling sat in the warm Bellevue Police Station hoping that there would be no calls for him on such a nasty night. The telephone rang and the desk sergeant who answered it was informed that there was a cat on a pole at South Euclid and Lincoln avenues.

As Darling and the sergeant argued the ethics of the case, two more calls, more urgent than the other, demanded the rescue of the kitty.

On arriving at the scene Darling found a large group trying to entice the bedraggled cat, who had been on the pole for an hour and a half, to come down.

Darling shouldered his way through the crowd and started up the icy pole. At the same time the cat started down. Just before they met kitty jumped and scampered away in the darkness.

Darling returned to the warm police station to meditate on why people should worry so much about a stray cat on such a cold night.

PLAGUE SPREAD TOPIC HERE AT HEALTH MEET

The disease responsible for the recent death of Texas Guinan—amoebic dysentery—is to be discussed tonight at a public health meeting in the Hotel Schenley.

The meeting will be under the auspices of the Allegheny County Medical Society, in observance of Pennsylvania Health Day.

CAUSED DEATH HERE

It was announced late yesterday by Dr. P. E. Marks, chief of the city's infectious disease bureau, that amoebic dysentery caused the death of a man in Pittsburgh during the latter part of September.

The man, whose name Dr. Marks did not reveal, was a transient who came to Pittsburgh from Chicago. While in Pittsburgh he lived at a welfare organization's headquarters, according to Dr. Marks.

Officials of the county medical society planned to have one of the guest speakers discuss the ailment tonight because reports indicate the existence of a large number of cases throughout the country.

SYMPTOMS TOLD

The society today issued the following statement regarding amoebic dysentery:

"The onset of amoebic dysentery is often extremely insidious, the first symptoms being attacks of diarrhoea alternately with constipation.

"Moses cases tend to improve after a time if untreated, but recur with greater severity after a short interval."

SLEEP SICKNESS TALK

Climaxing the observance of the day Dr. Howard A. McCordock, of St. Louis, will tell "The Story of the St. Louis Sleeping Sickness Epidemic."

Other speakers on the program, a portion of which will be broadcast from 9 to 10 p. m. over Station WWSW, will be Dr. Logan Clendening, of Kansas City, and Dr. George W. Grier, president of the Allegheny Medical Society.

Radio talks over WJAS by Dr. C. Howard Marcy, director of the Pittsburgh Tuberculosis League, and over WCAE by Dr. James D. Heard were scheduled today. In addition, Dr. Clendening was to address students of the Frick Teachers' Training School, and Dr. Alexander H. Colwell, students of the Pennsylvania College for Women.

BUNDESEN ASKS EPIDEMIC CARE

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago Board of Health, last night made an appeal to guard against the spread of amoebic dysentery, first discovered in Chicago.

Dr. Bundesen said a national survey had found 19 deaths and 186 cases in the United States and Canada since July. He said 193 carriers of the disease had been found.

He first revealed the prevalence of the malady last week with the statement it had been traced to Chicago Loop hotels and restaurants.

Dr. Bundesen, speaking over a nation-wide network of the Nationad Broadcasting Company, asked the nation's health officials and the public to take every precaution and to seek medical attention as soon as the first dysentery symptoms appear.

The journal of the American Medical Association in its issue this week also pointed out the danger from the disease.

New York Woman To Lecture Here

Mrs. Marie B. MacDonald, of New York, lecturer for the American Turnerbund, will speak tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the Norse room of the Fort Pitt Hotel. Her subject will be, "What German-Americans Should Do."

The meeting is under the auspices of the German-American Federation of Allegheny County, the Steuben Society and the Pittsburgh, Allegheny and Allentown Turnvereins.

West Penn Internes Hold Annual Frolic

200 Physicians Recall Training Days at Hospital Here

Interneships at the West Penn Hospital dating back 50 years were recalled by more than 200 physicians and surgeons as they attended their first annual reunion of internes at the hospital yesterday.

Included in the ranks of former internes were six fathers: Drs. Thomas F. Kirk, W. H. Ewing, T. N. McKee, Francis A. Aarons, C. H. Ingram and R. E. Roos, and their sons, Drs. Don Kirk, J. C. Ewing, T. Craig McKee, Francis A. Aarons, Jr., C. H. Ingram, Jr., and R. E. Roos, Jr.

The oldest interne present was Dr. J. J. Buchanan, of the class of '81, of Mercy Hospital staff, who reminisced on the history of Pittsburgh's hospitals. The main speaker of the day-long reunion was Dr. Cyrus R. Sturgis, professor of medicine and director of the Simpson Institute of Medical Research at the University of Michigan.

A full schedule of surgical operations, a demonstration in the cardiac clinic, a medical clinic, a display on dermatological cases, a tumor clinic and a nutrition department exhibit of special diets were listed.

A committee composed of Dr. A. C. Williamson, Dr. F. R. Bailey and Dr. L. G. Beinhauer was in charge of arrangements. Meetings were held in both the hospital and the nurses' home. Dr. L. W. Swope, chief of staff, presided.

Philip S. Hudson Dies at Narberth

Funeral services will be held at the Samson funeral home in Neville street, Thursday afternoon at 2:30.

Senator David A. Reed will speak on "Russian Recognition" at a dinner of the Business and Professional Women's Club of McKeesport in the Penn-McKee Hotel, McKeesport, tonight.

TUBERCULOSIS CURE DOUBTED

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Dr. Kendall Emerson, managing director of the National Tuberculosis Association, said today that "evidence is lacking" that the findings of Dr. Stephen John Maher, internationally known student of the disease, "will have any value in providing a serum or cure for tuberculosis."

Dr. Maher, in an address at Shelton, Conn., announced experiments in which tuberculosis germs were turned into harmless bacteria which produce an acid lethal to the tuberculosis germ. Dr. Emerson said:

"The national reasearch committee of the National Tuberculosis Association is not familiar with Dr. Maher's work. His paper is interesting and will stimulate studies in other laboratories.

"It must be borne in mind that laboratory experiments are not always borne out in human experience. Mutations in form of the tubercle bacilli have been recognized and studied for many years."

RULES DRAFTED FOR ELECTION AT MINES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Instructions for conducting the largest industrial election ever held in this country were issued yesterday by Senator Wagner, National Labor Board chairman, to govern voting next week at the "captive" coal mines of Pennsylvania.

Fifteen thousand workers in 28 mines will elect six representatives at each mine to deal with their steel company employers in negotiating a labor agreement. Senator Wagner said:

"The instructions speak for themselves and faithfully followed out, will insure a free and peaceful election."

The twelve "captive" companies whose mines are open or ready to re-open are: Inland Collieries, Indianola, Pa.; Consumers' Mining Company, Harmarville; Republic Iron and Steel, Russellton; National Mining, Muse; Allegheny Coal and Coke, Brackenridge; Sharon Limestone, Mercer; H. C. Frick Coke, Pittsburgh; Pickands, Mather and Company, Mather; Shannopin Coal, Pittsburgh; Crucible Fuel, Rices Landing; Weirton Steel, Pittsburgh, and Vesta Coal Company, Pittsburgh.

The labor board will have 15 representatives in the field so representatives in the field on the two days needed for elections at all these mines.

Text of Labor Board's Mine Election Order

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The text of the National Labor Board's call for an election of employes' representatives in the "captive" coal mines of Western Pennsylvania follows:

1—An election under the direct supervision of the National Labor Board will be held during the week of November 19, 1933, to elect representatives of the employes of this mine. The exact time and place of the election will be posted at this mine not later than the day before the election is to be held.

2—Every employe who was on the payroll of the mine during the pay period preceding the cessation of work will be entitled to vote. Foremen, superintendents, supervisors and members of the office force are not eligible to vote in this election.

3—Each employe will be given a card by the Company, showing his name and payroll number. The National Labor Board supervisor of election will check this name and number against the payroll list, so that proper identification may be made of those eligible to vote.

4—Six representatives will be elected for each mine.

5—Candidates for representatives shall be nominated on a petition signed by not less than 10 employes of he mine. No group of petitioners shall be entitled to nominate more than six (6) candidates for representatives.

6—Nominations to be placed on the ballot shall be delivered in person or by mail not later than 12 o'clock noon on Monday, November 20, 1933, to the representative of the National Labor Board at the William Penn Hotel, Pittsburgh, Pa. Nominations received after 12 o'clock noon on Monday, November 20, 1933, cannot be printed on the ballot.

7—The election shall be by secret ballot.

Each employe will yote for six representatives. Spaces will be provided on the ballot for employes to write in the name, or names, of any representative or representatives for whom they may desire to vote and whose names have not been printed on the ballot.

8—Any dispute affecting the right of any employe to vote shall be decided by the representative of the National Labor Board in charge of the election.

9—There shall be no intimidation or coercion of employes of any sort. Any necessary assistance to voters not able to understand the ballot shall be given only by the government representative supervising the election.

10—No person other than the election board appointed by the National Labor Board shall be within fifty (50) feet of the polling place except for the purpose of voting. There shall be no congregating of employes near the voting place.

11—It is expected that all parties concerned will observe order and refrain from any acts which might prevent any employe from exercising his own choice freely and without interference.

PINCHOT'S WIFE DEFIES BOARD

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 15.—Defying a second refusal to permit her to use the Vandergrift High School building, Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, crusading wife of Pennsylvania's Governor, planned today to journey to the Western Pennsylvania community and deliver an address on the NRA and President Roosevelt's recovery program.

Mrs. Pinchot had asked the Vandergrift School Board recently to reconsider its denial of her request to speak in the high school there. The board, however, remained adamant. She explained:

"Four members of the school board, I understand, are employed by the steel industry, which would tend to explain their servility to the steel magnates. I am told the school board met behind locked doors—afraid to let the light of day in on their deliberations. Such action shows more clearly than anything I can say that they realize how bad a situation they are trying to cover up."

CUBAN REBELS PURSUED

HAVANA, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Government troops were fighting or trailing rebel bands in at least six provinces today in a vigorous drive to stamp out what threatened to become a serious movement.

Five casualties were reported in a sharp engagement of 35 loyal soldiers of Col. Fulgencio Batista's army with a rebel band near Bayamo, in Oriente province.

Advices from Santa Clara said soldiers and rebels clashed near the town of Lara. Several of the rebels and Antonio Cruz, a farmer, were wounded.

New bands were reported operating near the towns of Placetas, Manajuanabo and Camajuani.

In the capital, Col. Batista announced he would gradually release all political prisoners, with the exception of those seized in the Atares fortress, capture of which terminated last week's two-day revolt.

DUKE'S LOTTERY CASE UNDECIDED

LONDON, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Whether the Duke of Atholl's mystery fund was illegal or a loophole in England's 270-year-old lottery laws remained a mystery today after a hearing in the Bow Street Police Court last night where the magistrate reserved judgment on the grounds that he needed time to write the important decision.

The duke, one of the leading figures of the British peerage, rested his case on a plea of not guilty, and his attorney, Norman Birkett, said the defense would call no witnesses.

The decision is expected in about two weeks.

The 66-year-old defendant was accused of violating the lotteries act in connection with his scheme to save for British hospitals a part of the money that annually goes to the Irish sweepstakes.

job. Without it, you are helpless.

THE DUCK shooting season opens on Thursday and the government's biological survey says please kill the plentiful kinds of ducks, pintail, mallard, black ducks, and spare canvas backs and red-heads.

Duck hunters are also asked to retrieve crippled birds, which unfortunately is not always possible. You learn that "at least 7,500,000 birds are crippled and lost annually," and this is wrong, not merely because the wounded birds suffer pitifully, but chiefly because it means a decrease in the stock of breeding birds.

TETRAZZINI, magnificent Italian soprano, is quite old, and her husband, very young, asked an Italian court to give him control of her fortune, which was $5,000,000, to keep her from squandering it.

The young husband says his musical wife "evokes spirits with dramatic gestures, falling in ridiculous contortions on soft carpets."

He also accuses his wife of giving away too much.

The court decided that, as Tetrazzini earned the money she has the right to keep or spend it, and further spirits, however "evoked," may be less expensive and more satisfactory than a young husband for an old lady.

THIS COUNTRY, alone among civilized nations, could be independent of every other, having everything, from walrus herds in the North to citrus groves in the South.

And we have all kinds of weather. On Monday the temperature varied from 5 below in Minnesota, to 110 above in Santa Ana, Cal.

Those with fashionable modern nerve diseases, neuritis, arthritis, etc., should try what a really hot winter sun will do for them, before swallowing too much medicine.

SOVIET YIELDS TO ROOSEVELT DEMANDS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Soviet Russia has yielded to President Roosevelt's demand that an understanding be reached on all the outstanding questions between the two nations before diplomatic recognition is extended, International News Service learned today.

The discussions are now in the stage of negotiating an understanding on these questions which include debts, damage claims, propaganda and protection of Americans in Russia.

The slow progress in the discussions is due to the fact that Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet foreign commissar, is obliged to communicate constantly with Moscow on the various questions to be settled.

However, the Soviet has indicated a willingness to compromise and unless a hitch occurs it is hoped a final understanding will be reached sometime next week.

President Roosevelt and Litvinoff conferred again this morning.

The press of the President's other engagements shortened the conference, but the Soviet minister remained at the White House for a time talking with Norman Davis, America's roving ambassador.

Soviets Hold Religion No Snag to Recognition

MOSCOW, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—If the question of religious freedom for Americans in Soviet Russia is all that is delaying American recognition, officials here see no reason why the matter should not be settled quickly to the satisfaction of the American government.

This was the comment here today as the progress of conversations between Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff with President Roosevelt at Washington was discussed.

No foreigners incur difficulties in the large centers in this country in practicing their own religious beliefs and attending church services, it was pointed out.

Despite contrary impressions in some places abroad, many churches still function in Soviet Russia and indications are they will continue to operate as long as there is a demand for them.

KRESEL GUILTY IN BANK CASE

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Isador J. Kresel, the fiery little lawyer who in 1930 crusaded with Samuel Seabury against corruption in the magistrates' courts, was convicted today of aiding and abetting in the misapplication of more than $2,000,000 in funds of an affiliate of the defunct Bank of United States.

The eminent attorney—he has often been called one of New York's most talented criminal counsel—was emotionless when shortly before 7 o'clock this morning the Supreme Court jury which for two months had heard testimony in the case returned its verdict.

Just before the case was given to the jury at 12:15 a. m., Judge George H. Taylor had delivered the longest charge ever heard in a New York court, nine hours being required. Judge Taylor remained on his feet during the entire delivery of the charge, an unusual procedure in New York courts.

Curwood Daughter Admits Separation

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—A "friendly separation" from her husband, M. C. Loutt, aviation manager for a Pennsylvania oil concern, was admitted today by Viola Curwood, daughter of the late James Oliver Curwood, novelist, who said they had "an agreement to disagree."

M'NAIR PLANS CHILL HEARTS OF G. O. P.

bother them. Maybe I'm not going to be mayor after all.

"Maybe I'll find they've made Jimmy Coyne city manager.

"This is Mellon's home town, isn't it? He owns the Legislature, doesn't he? Well, anything can happen."

But whether he's to be mayor or not, McNair's done a lot of thinking about what he'll do if he is.

He has, for instance, unearthed a clause in the city charter providing that the Mayor and his cabinet of department heads "shall hold regular public meetings" once a month to discuss the city business.

READS CITY CHARTER

The charter, he points out, provides that at the cabinet meetings uniform rules for conducting business and hiring, discharging and promoting employes shall be drawn up. And McNair says:

"They never did that, but I'm going to do it. What do you think of that?"

Then he points to another clause in the charter providing that the Mayor may at any time name three independent persons to examine the books, records and papers of any employe, bureau or department. And when he's inaugurated, he says:

"I can audit the books of the police department right off the bat if I wish."

The Director of Public Safety, for years a mere figure-head in the city political setup, is going to be the "big shot" under McNair, and the superintendent of police will sink into subordinate place.

And the director, McNair says, will be responsible.

FARM BOYS AS POLICE!

McNair wants a good police department, but he rejects the idea of an Army officer for director.

"No, that's not the idea. I want a friendly and sympathetic police department. I'm not so crazy about discipline. What I'd like to do—but I can't, of course—is to bring in some of the Mennonite farm boys from down home for policemen.

"The cops around here seem so hard-boiled to me.

"And I don't see any reason why they have to carry guns. I don't think they do in London, do they? Why, they ought to be friendly fellows.

"They'd soon enough stop these gangs if they weren't tied up with them."

MAY CALL NETTIE

And to divorce the police from the gangs, the new Mayor asks:

"How do you think it would work to call in Net Gordon and the rest—and the bootleggers, and gamblers and numbers writers and tell them to come to the City-County Building.

"Why couldn't we tell them we'd let them run for six months without bothering them if they didn't pay a penny to the police. And we could tell them to report to us if any policeman asked for anything and we'd fire him.

"That'd stop it.

"Why, during my campaign old people who'd kept stores all their lives came in to see me and actually cried because police said they had to have slot machines in their stores or sell moonshine and give the policeman half the profits.

"And if they wouldn't do it, the cop would put a jug of moonshine on the floor and raid the place. Those were people who never did anything like that before in their lives, mind you."

So the new Mayor's going to stop all that by raiding any joint that pays a policeman for protection.

AIMS AT TRADERS

While he's at it, McNair thinks he'll devil the Chamber of Commerce a bit. He's suggesting that Pittsburgh be made a free port—that foreign goods be allowed landing in Pittsburgh free of tariff:

"Think of the warehouses that'll be required to handle the business. It'll double the land values around here over night. Factories will move in here to fabricate the imported raw materials.

"There'll be a limit to the amount of goods that come in. The number of boats that can come up the river will be the limit. Only river traffic—no entrance by rail, that's the idea.

"It would end unemployment around here right away."

The Chamber of Commerce has the duty, McNair points out, of furthering Pittsburgh's prosperity so:

"I'm going to call up Frank Harper (Chamber secretary) as soon as I get some time and ask for a hearing on the free port idea."

McNair wants the Chamber to indorse the free port idea and urge it on President Roosevelt, who has powers to modify the tariff laws.

IT'S A BIG LAUGH!

Not that he thinks the Chamber will indorse his scheme, but:

"If somebody comes to me for a job, I'll tell them:

" 'Go see the Chamber of Commerce—I told them how to get you a job. Ask them why Pittsburgh business isn't good.' "

It's a big laugh to Pittsburgh's next Mayor as he says:

"I'm a free trader and this is the heart of protectivism. Just think how the high tariff Chamber of Commerce'll feel when we put it up to them like that."

But while the Mayor-elect leads from the shoulder with statement, he's doing lots of heavy thinking about the state of the city.

Some of his more touchy advisers are already decrying his so-called "lack of dignity," but it doesn't worry McNair. He is bound to carry on without becoming a "stuffed shirt," and if his friends or his enemies don't understand that—well, he infers, that's their hard luck.

HIS NEW SECRETARY

And his first appointment—that of Percy R. Williams as his secretary—yesterday, illustrated the firmness of his intentions.

Williams, once secretary of a church group here, is secretary of the Henry George Foundation and an old single-taxer—recruit of one of McNair's old outdoor single-tax meetings.

Unassuming, he had been slated tentatively for the job of chairman of the Board of Assessors.

But McNair needed a secretary in a hurry to countersign the signature plate with which the Mayor indorses city warrants and checks, so McNair asked Williams if he wanted the job and Williams did and another unostentatious Democrat was in the limelight.

McNair to Speak On Single Tax Plan

Mayor-elect William N. McNair will speak on the single tax plan at a meeting of residents of the Turtle Creek Valley in the Union High School, Turtle Creek, Friday evening. Frederick C. Howe of the United States Department of Agriculture also has been invited to speak.

Spot and Midnight, Soon to Part

MIDNIGHT, 2 MONTHS OLD — SPOT, 1 MONTH OLD

Dinner time at the Swanton household, 209 S. Negley avenue, as two tiny musketeers lick their chops over the same bowl of milk—and why not? Spot weighs a pound-and-a-half, fell over in exhaustion on the only two attempts he's made to bark like the big dogs do.

Ohioan Wins Job As Mayor, Loses $1,200 Yearly

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 15.—(AP.)—This little lesson cost $1,200 for Ora Breckinridge, Republican postmaster of Grove City.

He won the election for Mayor, and the $300 a year it pays.

He lost his federal post, being disqualified as postmaster when his name appeared on the ballot for Mayor. As postmaster he received $1,500.

Reed Calls for 'New Deal' In Republican Politics

Senator Presents New Vote Recipe To G. O. P. Women

HARRISBURG, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Giving the Republican party a new recipe for political success, United States Senator David A. Reed lists more attention to the individual voter and to the quality of candidates as its principal ingredients.

He told the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women last night:

"We have been paying too much attention to organization and too little to the quality of the candidates we pick and the type of argument we choose to support the candidates."

Hastening to add that he meant "no reflection" on Mayor John S. Herron, defeated Republican organization candidate in Pittsburgh, the state's senior Senator stressed the need for stronger appeals to independent voters if the party hopes to name Pennsylvania's next Governor and United States Senator.

In a tribute to President Roosevelt, Reed said he is "trying to be a little more patriotic than were our Democratic adversaries in their treatment of Mr. Hoover."

New Screen Hero Bound to Be Aviator

The screen hero of the next decade will be the aviator, Al Williams, "speed king of the air," told the Pittsburgh Advertising Club, at its noon meeting yesterday. Wild West movies are losing their appeal to the public, he added.

The youth of today is looking to the air for its thrills, Williams said, and predicted that the progress of the past decade will be eclipsed by the next.

M'NAIR URGES FREE TRADE ON RIVERS

About 500 key men of Pittsburgh industry today were pondering the two Democratic propositions offered them by William N. McNair, Mayor-elect, last night at the "fair practices dinner" of the Better Business Bureau in McCreery's dining room.

The city's newly elected executive announced he would confine his talk to "more business" rather than "better business" and advocated a reduction of building taxes in the city and the abolishment of duty on river traffic to stimulate industry.

Of free trade on the rivers he said:

"We have three rivers here and there's not a boat on them. If Pittsburgh were to be made a free port they would become crowded overnight, and the city soon would be a leading merchandising center."

'SLUMS IN CITY'

Charging that Pittsburgh had the worst slum conditions of any city in the world, McNair advocated a wholesale tearing down of old buildings to make way for a huge building program.

Of the reduction of building tax, he said:

"When a man builds a home the assessor comes around and finds him guilty of committing an improvement on his property. The more money taken by the city in fines—I call them fines—the more money is taken away from the merchants.

"A removal of the tax on industry would encourage industry. The practice of taking toll from enterprises that put men to work must stop."

B. J. Cassady, president of the bureau, outlined the services of the organization. He introduced the toastmaster, Arthur C. Kaufmann, a director of the bureau, who said:

"We all were high-hat and cocky, but we are now willing to discuss abominable practices which are ruining our businesss and for which we are responsible. I believe if every business had striven for better merchandise rather than business volume, we would have created more good and more employment."

NRA DISCUSSED

The NRA and its relation to business was discussed by Harry Van Horn, of Columbus, president of the National Association of Better Business Bureaus.

The businessmen were urged to co-operate with the recovery measure by William P. Witherow, president of the Welfare Fund. He said the NRA was eliminating bad business practices and increasing business volume.

Sound business principles of the NRA were discussed by H. J. Kenner, director of the Bureau of Complaints for New York state.

Following the speaking program R. W. Elton, manager of the bureau, conducted an open forum in which questions relating to the management of the bureau and its investigation of questionable enterprises were answered.

VOGT 'GRILLED' BY M'GOVERN IN SHORTAGE

The statement of County Commissioner C. C. McGovern that Prothonotary John Vogt would be held responsible for the apparent shortage of more than $73,000, which the Commissioners' auditors reported finding in searching the records of Vogt and his predecessor, William B. Kirker, featured the meeting of the Commissioners and Vogt yesterday.

The auditors' report stated that when Vogt succeeded Kirker, the latter's books showed a balance of $120,506,97. They further reported that Vogt's records showed the receipt of only $46,858.45 from Mr. Kirker, when he took office in 1920.

Explaining the difference of $73,648.52, Mr. Vogt said:

"As the books were kept there is no certainty that they were right. I took what the bank books showed were on deposit."

McGovern then asked:

"When you knew about this did you report it to anyone, the Controller or to any county official?"

'NOT COUNTY MONEY'

Vogt answered:

"No, it was not county money. It was money of litigants. We always took for granted what the bank books showed. I just followed the usual custom of the Prothonotary."

Attorney O. K. Eaton, representing Vogt, pointed out that had Kirker had $120,506.97 on hand when he was succeeded by Vogt, the present Prothonotary would have surely had demands made upon him by litigants for payment of the money held by him.

Commissioner C. M. Barr then questioned Eaton as to whether Kirker's bondsman could be held for any shortage. Eaton said he did not believe the former bondsman could be held.

McGovern then interruped:

"We can't hold the former bondsman, but we can hold the Prothonotary. We must hold him unless some better explanation is made of the money."

VOGT'S STATEMENT

When the session opened Vogt read a lengthy statement. He stated that the auditors had reported finding a difference between his fee books and the payment to the county treasurer in the amount of $309.52. Mr. Vogt stated his office has taken in more than $2,000,000 since 1920 and it is very likely that this amount was returned in refunds. He also points out the auditors claim the admitted assets are less in the sum of $5,017.90, than the cash book balance. He stated he did not believe there was any such difference and declared he felt a complete audit would show that the whole difference is due to errors.

Vogt admitted he was unable to explain withdrawals of three checks, two for $1,000 and one for $650 in 1925 and 1926. He stated he did not remember for what the withdrawals were made, but said they were legitimate payments.

McGovern reminded Vogt that when the auditors had first started to examine his records he had only told them of one general bank account and did not tell them of an account in the Dormont Savings and Trust Company. Vogt explained he at first believed the auditors only were interested in the county money due from collected fees. He said the account in the Dormont bank was litigants' money. When questioned by McGovern he admitted he was a director of the Dormont bank. He said he had approximately $40,000 on deposit there.

McGovern asked Vogt whether it was the custom for the Prothonotary to take the unclaimed funds and money of litigants, and to this Vogt replied he did not know what the other prothonotaries did.

McGovern, who did most of the questioning, stated that he would like some time to study the statement of Vogt, which was turned over to the Commissioners. McGovern then suggested the matter be brought up again at a later date.

As Vogt turned to leave, McGovern said:

"By the next meeting try and tell us of the $73,000."

Vogt's answer was:

"That will be a hard nut to crack."

PINCHOT LIQUOR BILL CHANGE OPPOSED

Monday at a meeting of all Republican members.

There is no controversy over the various liquor tax bills. They will be passed finally in the House tomorrow. The Senate is expected to similarly facilitate them so the state will be able to dip into millions of dollars of revenue December 5.

But the license bill is to receive no such speedy approval. Dr. Joseph G. Steedle, of McKees Rocks, acting with some Philadelphians, forced yesterday afternoon's conference after Republican party leaders had predicted the bill would be through the House by Thursday.

FINAL FIGHT DELAYED

So awry was this prediction, that probably no effort at all will be made to bring it up tomorrow. It was given first reading today, but will be held back so that amendments can be inserted from the floor unless some harmonious arrangement is reached next Monday.

The House, in a short session, perfunctorily passed on second reading the other liquor bills, then adjourned until 11:30 tomorrow.

By forcing delay on the license bill, Steedle gained time for members to talk together over the week-end.

The McKees Rocks member is unalterably opposed not only to state stores, but would take the authority to license dispensaries of any kind out of the hands of the Governor. As an alternate to licenses by the Alcohol Permit Board, Pinchot-appointed, Steedle would put licensing in the hands of zone commissions, with perhaps 10 zones established in the state.

BI-PARTISAN BOARD

These zone commissions would be named by a bi-partisan central board of two Republicans and one Democrat, elected in joint session by House and Senate.

This is certain to be fought by the Governor, and will not have the support of the Democrats. The latter are watching the Republican confusion with interest. Some Democrats, when the thing eventually comes to a vote, unless the Steedle proposals become part of the Republican program, are disposed not to vote on the subject at all. They will declare the liquor bill to be the product of Republican factional conferences, and let the Republicans nurse their own baby.

Speaker Grover Talbot, in yesterday's conference—State Chairman Martin asked that it be called that instead of a Republican caucus—approved the state stores plan, but Gen. Martin, after first being represented as expressing similar sentiments, said he had not tried to influence members.

DRIVE FOR BROOKS PLAN

Behind all of the dickering and trading lies a concerted effort by some substantial groups, including many Philadelphians, to bring back the old Brooks high license system, with the courts in charge. Though the Governor has said emphatically and openly that he would veto any bill of this nature, the Brooks champions persist, some of them apparently not yet realizing that when the Governor threatens veto on liquor matters he means it.

The same wrangle occurred on the beer bill last winter and spring, with the Governor eventually getting most of what he wanted.

When the Republicans conferred yesterday they had not been apprised of the fact that the floor space amendment would not be accepted.

Neither had they heard from representatives of the Pennsylvania Hotel Men's Association and the Crusaders, the militant wet organization. Both are as dead against the amendments as is the Governor.

This will be a new phase for discussion next Monday.

As certain as anything about the Legislature can be, there will be some vigorous efforts to insert other amendments, and it will be some time before a license control bill finally is adopted. The harmony which was predicted for this legislation already is out the window.

5 Pinchot Liquor Bills Scheduled for Passage

HARRISBURG, Nov. 15.—Republican leaders have agreed to push through the House this week five bills in the Pinchot liquor control and taxation program.

These measures are the Witkin bill for a permanent tax of $1 per proof gallon, 30 cents per rectified gallon, and one cent per unit of proof wine in gallons on liquors manufactured or imported after repeal; the Cordier bill for a $2 per proof gallon tax on all liquor manufactured or stored in Pennsylvania before repeal; Spann and Zimmerman bills amending the beer act, and the Wilson document increasing permit fees for breweries and distilleries.

A caucus called by Gen. Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, indorsed the measures which the Governor estimates will produce $53,000,000 in revenue before January, 1935, and amend existing beer and permit laws to conform to post-repeal conditions.

The indorsement, with 139 Republicans among 208 House members, insures early enactment of these bills. The House will act finally Thursday: The Senate may act as early as next Tuesday.

First Bonded Winery In State Gets Permit

HARRISBURG, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—The Alcohol Permit Board today announced the first permit issued this year for a bonded winery. It was granted to August Weinberger, Scranton.

Three brewery permits were issued: Lackawanna Beer and Ale Company, Scranton; William Gretz Brewing Company, Philadelphia, and Jones Brewing Company, Connellsville.

3 Soldier Bonus Bills Ready for State Assembly

HARRISBURG, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—State soldiers' bonuses, based on the period of service and limited to $200, are proposed by bills drafted by Representative Frederick Myers, Republican, and indorsed by the American Legion.

The three measures, to be introduced in the House next week, would start distribution of the $50,000,000 bond issue approved by voters at last week's election.

One bill provides payments to soldiers of the World, Philippine, Boxer Rebellion and Spanish wars, at the rate of $10 for each month of service. Another sets up the machinery for paying the bonuses, and the third provides for issuing the bonds.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 15.—The Gelder bill, first of a series sponsored by the administration to enable Pennsylvania to participate in the National Recovery drive, was passed finally in the Senate by a 43-to-0 vote today.

The bill, which would authorize the Highway Department to borrow money from the federal government for construction of bridges, was sent to the House immediately.

The Coyne bill providing for cancellation of contracts between governmental agencies and persons whose costs have soared under the NRA was reported out of committee and passed on first reading in the upper branch.

The Senate then adjourned until Monday night.

Coal Police Ouster, Utility Tax Offered

HARRISBURG, Nov. 15.—(INS.)—A bill to repeal the industrial police act of 1929 was introduced in the House today by Representative John J. Kane, Allegheny.

Representative Thomas J. Gallagher, Allegheny, sponsored a bill making the real estate of public service companies subject to taxation.

'GRUNDY MAN' IN CHARGE OF LABOR BILLS

HARRISBURG, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—A flurry of speculation today accompanied the announcement that "a Grundy man" has been named head of the important House Labor Commitee, which will consider the much-discussed Pinchot "sweatshop" legislation.

Warren Van Dyke, state Democratic chairman, said the appointment "obviously is an attempt by the Republican state organization to defeat President Roosevelt's recovery program in Pennsylvania by killing recovery legislation in committee."

Speaker Grover C. Talbot announced appointment of Representtive Wilson L. Yeakel, Bucks, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Representative George C. Metzier, Allegheny, organization Republican.

Yeakel is a lieutenant of Joseph R. Grundy, former United States Senator and long affiliated with the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association. Grundy forces in the Legislature are expected to oppose the minimum-wage, maximum working hours program as framed by the administration.

The Governor's proposals on strike mediation, abolition of "company-paid" deputy sheriffs and other industrial regulations also may be headed for the Labor Committee.

Gov. Pinchot and Mrs. Pinchot worked for months on an industrial legislative program.

Recounting the failure to pass housing bills in the regular session, Van Dyke said:

"The Legislature is still under the domination of the Mellon-Grundy-Vare leadership.

"These men either have not learned the lesson of last week's election, or intend to ignore it with the same effrontery that the Republican organization leadership has displayed in defeating the will of the people in the past."

Sweatshop Probe Reports Due Next Week

HARRISBURG, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Labor legislation—the anti-sweatshop bills for which both Gov. and Mrs. Pinchot campaigned widely this year—will come into the special session of the Legislature Monday.

The legislative commission that investigated sweatshops will submit both a majority and a minority report, Senator Mason G. Owlett, Potter County, disclosed today, but declined to intimate who will comprise the minority group. Those familiar with the course of the turbulent inquiry were almost unanimous in predicting that Mrs. Pinchot will be one of the dissenters.

During the hearings at Pittsburgh and other industrial cities, Mrs. Pinchot clashed frequently with other members of the group and with manufacturers' representatives who testified.

REVOLT BREWS; VARE TO RETURN

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—While reports of a revolt in the Republican organization against the leadership of William S. Vare gained momentum today, his friends were informed Vare would return from the South to confer with leaders on the political situation.

Vare, Republican national committeeman, went to his winter home at St. Lucie, Fla., the day after the election in which Republican organization candidates in Philadelphia were overwhelmed in a Democratic victory. It was said then he would return within two weeks.

Several ward leaders have declared Vare's leadership should end. Some suggested the leadership should be intrusted to Mayor J. Hampton Moore; that an advisory board satisfactory to all elements in the party should be appointed, and that a committee of five of the Republican City Committee be given the leadership.

POLLS 'HUDDLE' TOLD AT TRIAL

street, also Democratic watchers at the general election last November.

Hathazy testified that Charles P. Betters, one of the six defendants, an inspector, had marked several ballots apparently on that portion of the ballot containing names of legislative candidates.

He added:

"Then the board went into a huddle and ordered everyone out. I told them I wanted to stay and see the rest of the Democratic votes counted, but they put us out."

N. D. Zimmerman, a special investigator of the Department of Justice, testified that a count of the ballots in the box showed only 16 straight Democratic ballots.

NUNS TESTIFY

Forty-five government witnesses, including eight nuns of Roselia Foundling Asylum, had testified they had voted the straight Democratic ticket.

First Assistant United States Attorney James I. Marsh intimated in his questioning today that several government witnesses may have been tampered with.

Several had testified before the grand jury they voted the straight Democratic ticket. Today they told the jury they also had voted for John Scorza, Republican nominee for the State Legislature.

Scorza is a brother-in-law of Alderman John J. Verona. Of Mrs. Lucia Dicarolia and Thomas Taylor, Negro, Marsh demanded:

"Did you talk to anyone about this case after you testified before the grand jury?"

Both denied discussing the case with anyone.

Mrs. Dicarolia testified she voted for Scorza because he had been a schoolmate of hers.

The defendants are Mike Wendell, judge; Carman Bosco and Charles P. Betters, inspectors; James Stuhlfire and Louis D. Petty, clerks, and George Taylor, election constable.

They were indicted by the federal grand jury which conducted the probe of alleged vote cheating in the Thirty-second Congressional District, where the election of M. J. Muldowney to Congress, is being contested by Mrs. Anne E. Felix.

Under direct examination by Earl F. Reed, special government prosecutor and Assistant Prosecutor Marsh, witnesses yesterday testified to having placed a crossmark opposite the Democratic party column, or opposite the name of Franklin D. Roosevelt for President. Some said they marked both.

Under cross-examination by Attorney Sebastian C. Pugliese, of defense counsel, many of the witnesses were asked if they had not made other crossmarks on the ballot. In a few instances witnesses could not remember if they had voted for other than the straight Democratic ticket. Several who appeared to have a "lapse of memory" had their recollection recalled when Attorney Marsh produced a record of their testimony before the grand jury. Defense counsel did not cross-examine the nuns.

Pinchot Deputy Ban Approved by League

The League for Social Justice today wired Gov. Gifford Pinchot their complete support of his plan to prevent corporations from paying for deputy sheriffs, and likewise commended his statement that the unemployment relief rate in the state is "too low." The league, its secretary, Miss Rose Stein, announced, believes privately paid deputy sheriffs should be abolished by legislation.

County Borrowing Amendment Trails

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Amendment No. 6, allowing counties to increase their borrowing capacity, is running behind by more than 2,600 votes in returns received from last week's election. The official count may be required to decide the fate of the amendment.

Returns from 6,010 of the 7,925 districts in the state, show that it was opposed by 362,034 voters and favored by 359,347.

All other amendments with the exception of No. 2, show substantial majorities. No. 2, which would have assessed highway improvements on abutting properties, was defeated.

WEATHER RIGHT FOR STEAMING DISHES

Soup Suggestion In Recipe Contest Welcomed

After a day of dreary rain or biting snow such as we've been having during the past few weeks, wise housewives of the Pittsburgh district know their families will thoroughly enjoy a piping hot dish.

Nothing takes away that fatigued feeling more effectively and quickly than a bowl of delicious soup, Prudence Penny will tell you. Mrs. C. Stevenhagen, of 1439 Coal street, Wilkinsburg, prepares a Holland pea soup which not only her family, but the judges in the Sun-Telegraph recipe contest consider especially good.

Letters keep pouring in from countless women who are making wise use of Prudence Penny's prize recipes and daily hints. They are sending in their own suggestions and at the same time are looking for cooking aids provided by other women's recipes.

Fifteen dollars in prizes are awarded daily by the judges to the best recipes, one $5 prize and the rest $1 prizes. Send in your best at once to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

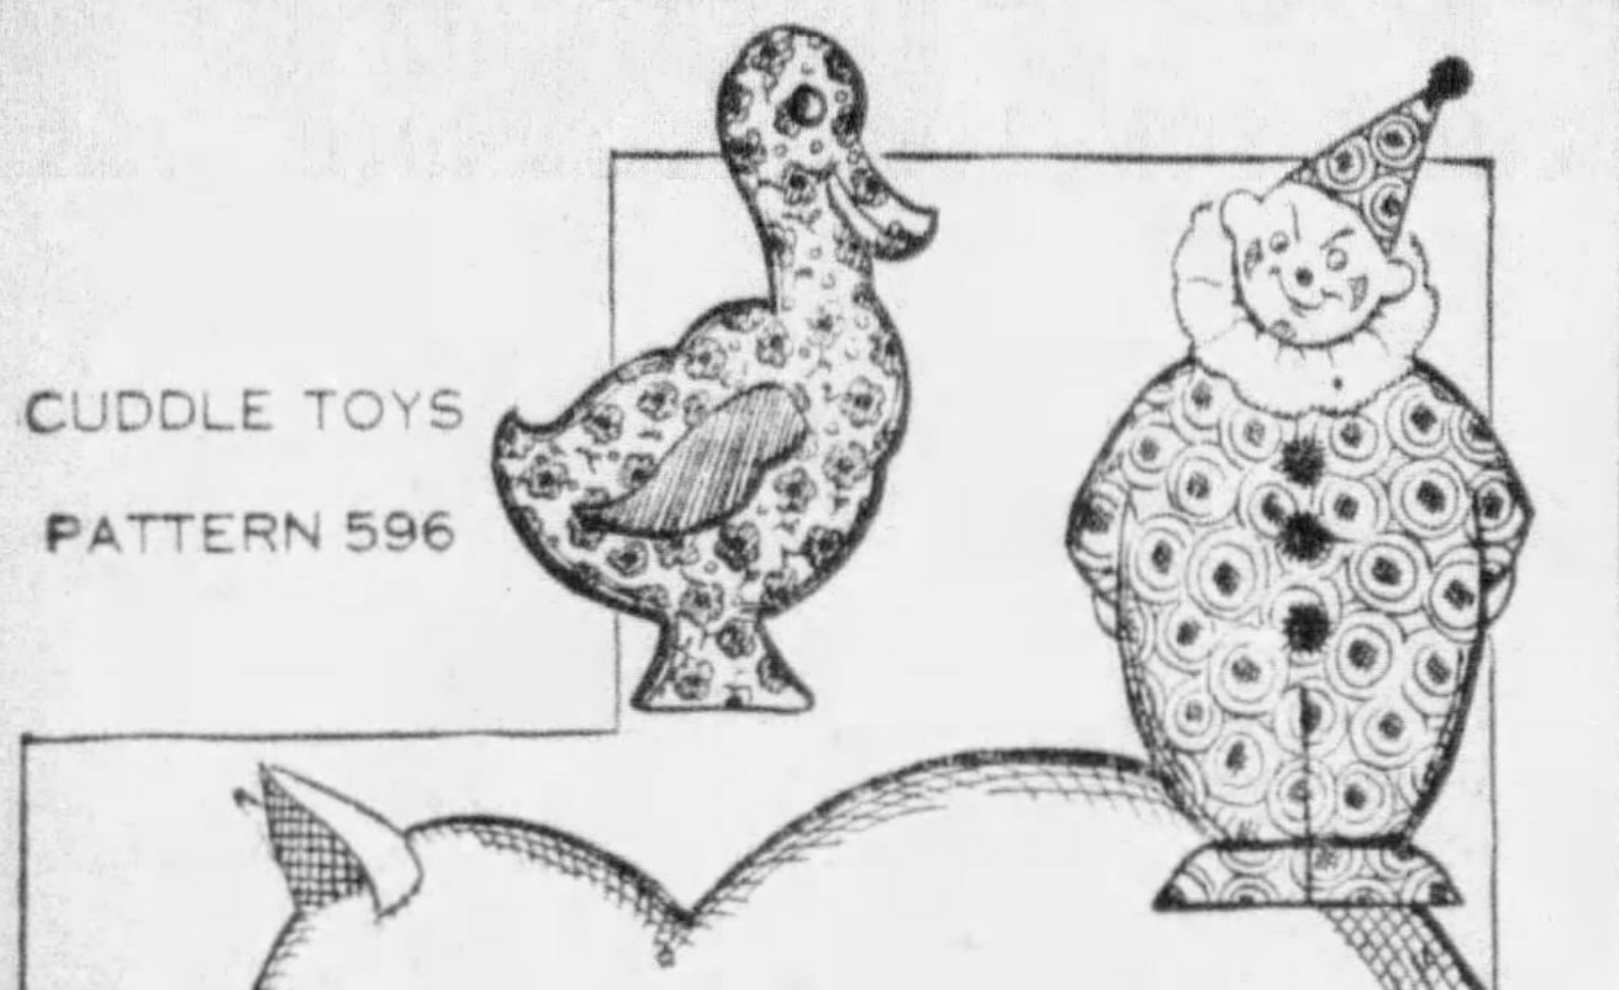
LAURA WHEELER DESIGNS



Make These Toys As Gifts

What tiny tot does not love to cuddle some toy and better yet to have a drowsy cat as a cuddle pillow? This pussy would certainly lure any tot to close his eyes and start napping. The clown, of course, is wide-awake as clowns should be. But he will do for after the nap and can be in some very gay print. His head can either be sewn on to the body piece or appliqued on. The duck, of course, is the baby's favorite, and his floppy wing in a contrasting material will catch the little one's attention. These animals are made of but two pieces except the clown, whose face is added on and the duck whose wing is separate. This collection of cuddle pillow and toys is a gay addition to our previous collection of dog pillow, bunny and elephant that has found so many friends.

Pattern 596 comes to you in a transfer pattern of one cat pillow about 12x16 inches; one clown about 10 inches high and a duck about 9 inches high when done.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

He "figures" there is something rotten about the world you and I handed to him. It looks to him as though there is a good deal to be learned about how to order things so that he and his brother don't have to beg for an overcoat.

His mother taught him honesty and reliability. She spanked him once when he went swimming instead of to school because, she said, you had to know what was in books. She had always worked too hard without any decent reward but so long as his dad had a job and the rooms they lived in weren't too awful, Barney could believe in his mother's teaching. Besides, he has native honor.

Because of that very honesty of his young mind, he now begins to wonder just what there is in what he has been taught. Books may be all right, but they don't tell you what this is that is happening at home, nor what to do about it. They have had to move into the worst neighborhood they've ever lived in. His mother doesn't seem like herself. She doesn't seem to care any more whether he is in the house at nine o'clock or eleven, whether his hair is combed when he starts for school, or whether he goes to school. His father is at home all the time, cursing his luck, cursing everything.

And Barney wonders. There are any number of ways open to him. Joe-Down-At-The-Corner asked him to help out in a small robbery—had told him he was just the kid for it. Barney was expected at Brashear Settlement that night and turned Joe down. But perhaps another time? Still, Barney "figures" again, there ought to be some other way—

Fifteen percent of the Welfare Fund for 1934 represents the budgets of those organizations of Allegheny County which day and night are devoting all their energies to the guidance of young Barneys . . . the settlement houses, the 'Y' and the Scouts.

The world of tomorrow—our children's world—lies very largely in the hands of sturdy-minded youngsters of today who have had an unfair deal. They can build better than we, or they can destroy all that is good, depending on which way they take.

If we can help them to gain a clear and steady eye, courage, and true understanding—if we can do this for the thousands of Barneys in Allegheny County who are our promise of the Future, is any gift too great?

NEW BANK PLAN SUPPORTED IN SHARPSBURG

Consent of approximately 80 per cent of the depositors has been obtained for organization of the Farmers and Mechanics Bank of Sharpsburg, according to R. A. Burkhart, cashier.

The plan calls for the chartering of a new bank to be known as the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Sharpsburg with a total capitalization of $155,000.

Slightly more than 55 per cent of all deposits would be released immediately upon the opening of the new bank, and the remaining 45 per cent would be secured by assets of the old bank. Deposits less than $25 would be released in full.

James C. Chaplin, president of the Colonial Trust Company, who has been appointed to the Federal Appraisal Board, is to furnish the Reconstruction Finance Corporation with recommendations on what loans shall be advanced by the R. F. C. to help state banks closed since the first of the year in this district.

In addition to reorganizing banks, efforts are being made to bring many Pittsburgh banks under the provisions of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. Examiners and assistants are being appointed to take in banks not in the Federal Reserve System.

Among the appointments announced from Washington were B. A. Holmquist and Adam H. Schultheis, of Pittsburgh.

W. VA. HUNTERS BAG 2 BEARS

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 15.—(AP.)—The slaying of two bears, both of good size, were reported by hunters today.

Willard Irons, of Pheasant Mountain section of Tucker County, got one weighing 250 pounds, while out hunting for wild turkeys with two companions on Petit Creek six miles from Parsons.

Herman Sharp, of Valley Head, reports killing one weighing 235 pounds in the southern part of Randolph County while he and three other marksmen were on a hunting expedition.

Junior Patrol

Feed the birds this winter, fellows.

And do everything you can to help them become more numerous! Birds are some of the best friends we have. In the summer they eat bugs, flies and gnats which would cause us a lot of trouble. And how could we do without the songs of birds either! The world would seem a very funny place indeed if our feathered friends didn't warble their little songs.

Of course most birds go south during the winter, but many of them stay up north here right through the cold season. Their feathers get heavier and warmer so that they have heavy overcoats to wear during the winter, but they find it hard to find things to eat in the snow and ice.

Now here's a swell letter from Eugene Wurm, of 732 Stanton avenue, Millvale.—All about birds. Read it—

"I am a member of the Junior Patrol and also a bird lover. While talking about birds, we have a regular feeding station in our yard. My father took a lid from an old garbage can and laid it in the middle of the yard full of water. Every morning about seven birds are always on duty for their breakfast, and especially their bath.

"We have several kinds of birds, including starlings, sparrows, red birds and ground chippeys. Sometimes there are as many as 12 starlings alone. As soon as my father whistles and gives them their feed they come from all directions.

"They first go in the water and get washed and then they eat a hearty meal."

Boy, your birds must be a lot of fun, Eugene. Wonder if a lot of our Junior Patrols wouldn't like to start a bird feeding station like your. Just as soon as the birds found out about it, they would come from far and near and you could have all the fun of watching them have a good time. What do you do if the water in your bird bath freezes, as it must do this cold weather?

Now that real flowers are so scarce and don't grow out of doors anymore, we are wondering if any Junior Patrol members have thought of making artificial flowers. You could tie them into cute nosegays, maybe even perfume them, and they would make dandy Christmas presents. Some fellows we know make artificial butterflies, too.

Three Gershwin Pieces In Sunday Bill

George Gershwin, noted composer and pianist whose genius has elevated the popular song, will appear in Syria Mosque Sunday night as guest artist with the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra.

Soloist

George Gershwin, pianist and composer, will be guest soloist at the first concert of the season by the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Antonio Modarelli, in Syria Mosque Sunday night.

The young composer of the music to many of George White's "Scandals," "Girl Crazy," "Oh, Kay!," "Of Thee I Sing," and a host of other famous musical hits, will be featured here in a presentation of the three compositions which have brought him greatest fame, "Rhapsody in Blue," "An American in Paris," and his "Concerto in F."

Gershwin's performance, in which he will be accompanied by the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, directed by his personal conductor, William Daly, will occupy the entire second half of the concert program.

Antonio Modarelli, conductor of the Pittsburgh Symphony, will wield the baton during the first half of the concert, in a presentation of Beethoven's "Egmont" overture and Tschaikowsky's Fourth Symphony.

No Separate Vacations In Pact

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 15.—The newlyweds, Frances Dee and Joel McCrea, already have solved one of the thorniest problems of Hollywood married life.

Miss Dee

They will be the first film couple to have simultaneous vacations guaranteed in their contracts.

There will be no need for them to battle the studio as Ruth Chatterton and George Brent recently did for the privilege of getting away from screen work at the same time. There will be no chance of Joel being disappointed as Norman Foster was a few weeks ago when he couldn't take Claudette Colbert with him to Hawaii.

In October of each year, Frances and Joel simply will point to their contracts with Fox and R. K. O. and board a train or airplane for the little inn in the Berkshire hills, where they spent their honeymoon.

"Indian summer there is beautiful," says Joel. "No matter what differences a couple might have in Hollywood, a month in the Berkshires should straighten them out. Frances and I already have reserved the same cabin for next October."

* * *

Here's repeal for you. Until a week ago, the casting office at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contained the names of 180 practical bartenders, men who could actually mix, as well as look, the type.

The other day, for a scene in "Going Hollywood," they wanted to make a closeup of a bartender's hands concocting a drink. Not one of the 180 was available.

By the time this is printed Randy Scott will be headed for his home in Charlotte, N. C., en route to New York, where he'll join Cary Grant and sail for England.

Mr. Scott

You've read, perhaps, that Randy and Vivian Gayo (Sari Maritza's pretty manager) are interested in each other. The other morning, in a single line, a trade paper predicted their impending marriage. By noon both Vivian and Randy had received calls from florists, caterers, jewelers, real estate men, railroads, steamship companies and even ministers wanting to help them arrange their wedding, honeymoon and future residence.

Some people will do anything to get into the movies. Majestic Pictures ran the following ad last week in a local paper:

"Wanted by motion picture company: A girl with experience as a professional co-respondent or with first-hand knowledge of collusive divorce, in the East or elsewhere, to act as technical director of certain scenes. Production starts immediately."

They received more than 100 replies.

* * *

Reporters and photographers who rushed to the train to see Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone off for the East, apparently overlooked another news item. Ivan Lebedeff, a swell person if you get to know him, was bidding a tearful Wera Engels goodbye. The German actress, disappointed in Hollywood, is headed for New York to read the scripts of several plays. She may continue on to Europe, where she has offers from UFA and British International.

Lillian Gish, Dowling Roosevelt Guests

President Roosevelt will lay aside cares of state this evening long enough to witness a preview screening of the first Arthur Hopkins-Eddie Dowling screen production, "The Great Adventure," which is slated for early Paramount release. The President and Mrs. Roosevelt will entertain Lillian Gish, who is featured with Roland Young in the production, and Eddie Dowling at dinner at the White House before the screening. Recently completed at the Astoria studios, "The Great Adventure" is from the Arnold Bennett stage play of the same name, based on Bennett's popular novel, "Buried Alive." Arthur Hopkins directed, in association with William DeMille.

Weird

Gloria Stuart has the leading feminine role in "The Invisible Man," story of a chemist who makes himself invisible, coming Thursday to the Warner.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Cornelia Otis Skinner, who will occupy the stage of the Nixon for the last three days of this week in three groups of dramatic sequences, began her career as a delineator of character while she was at school. Other students were her first audiences, and she discovered her talent as an individual entertainer in this way. She learned that audiences in the theater would relish the same type of entertainment through the reception given to "The Wives of Henry VIII," first of the three monodramas written and acted by herself. Later she brought out "The Empress Eugenie," and this year she has added "The Loves of Charles II," in which she will open her engagement Thursday night.

* * *

During the season of grand opera in the Nixon next week the San Carlo Grand Opera Company will be heard in a different work at every performance, eight in all being listed for the six nights and two matinees. The opening attraction will be "Aida." Popular prices will prevail throughout the engagement and seats will be on sale tomorrow.

'Henry VIII' Is Held In Fulton

"The Private Life of Henry VIII," has proven such a popular attraction in the Fulton that it will be held for a second week that will begin tomorrow. Charles Laughton, stage and screen artist, plays the much-married Henry in a story that has both comedy and drama, produced with elaborate settings and an all-English cast.

Kreisler The Versatile Here Tomorrow

Fritz Kreisler, the great violinist who will come to Pittsburgh tomorrow, after an absence of three years, for the opening May Beegle concert in Syria Mosque tomorrow night, is a pianist as well as a violinist. He also is a painter and he once gave up his violin career entirely intending to become a physician. He has composed many small pieces for the violin as well as two operettas, "Apple Blossoms" and "Cissy."

He has a rare collection of violins, and will play his famous Guarnerius violin at his concert in the Mosque Thursday night.

'Pagan Love Song' Demanded

The most popular song Ramon Novarro ever sang, if his fans in England are to be taken as criterion, was "The Pagan Love Song." During his recent concert tour of the British Isles he was never permitted to leave the stage without singing the number at least once.

Final Payment

IT WAS a very beautiful thing, Henry Wilson's loyalty and devotion to his employer. It had its beginning many years ago. At that time, Henry was a clerk in the small town bank of which Arthur Blake was president and manager.

Henry was never to forget the morning he was summoned to Mr. Blake's office. He had gone in with dread, for he half-guessed what was coming.

"Wilson," Mr. Blake began, "word has come to us that you've served a prison sentence—that you're an ex-convict. I assume that this is true."

Henry sighed.

"Yes," he admitted, "yes, it is true."

The other man nodded.

"Well," he murmured, "unfortunate things happen to all of us. I trust that you won't let it ruin your life. I have high hopes that you'll make good here."

Henry gulped.

"You mean," he stuttered, "that you'll let me stay?"

Mr. Blake smiled.

"It all depends on you," he said. "I believe you'll come through with half a chance."

At that particular moment, Henry Wilson would have gladly cut off a limb had Mr. Blake even hinted at such a thing—and he would have considered the loss well worth while.

"I'll make good," he promised hoarsely . . .

From that time on, Henry's existence centered upon but two things. One was his job. He worked diligently and conscientiously, and he was scrupulously honest. When he was 35, he was promoted to the position of teller. And on that day, he was the happiest of men.

Henry's other main interest in life was the Blake family. He had never married. All his affection was devoted to Arthur Blake and his son, Jim. Henry couldn't have been prouder of the boy if he had been his own son. He and the elder Blake shared plans for Jim's future. When his father would become too old for active business, the boy was to take over the reins.

Thus, when Jim finished college, he went to work at the bank. He was to serve his apprenticeship as Henry's assistant.

In many ways, Jim was a strange lad. He was moody and taciturn. At certain times he refused to speak for hours. But in spite of all his faults, Henry loved him. For he was Arthur Blake's son.

Once or twice a year, Henry was invited to dinner at the Blakes'. It was an event to which he looked forward for days beforehand, and remembered for months afterward.

There we find him, a little nervous and tongue-tied, but an extremely happy man. The dinner wasn't exactly brilliant. In fact, it might be called dull and stodgy. But for Henry, sitting at the same table with the people he loved, it was a very great occasion. There was only one thing that marred the perfection of the meal.

Jim, seated at the foot of the table, was unusually silent. Henry noticed that he was drinking a great deal, and that with each drink he became more morose. As soon as the meal was over, he hurried upstairs with no word of explanation. And for many minutes, Henry sat looking at the door through which he had gone. Finally he arose and murmured that he must speak to Jim.

He found the boy in his room, his head sunk in his hands.

"I don't like to intrude," Henry began timidly, "but I know something's troubling you, Jim. If I can——"

Jim groaned deeply.

"You can't help me," he sighed. "Nobody can."

"You must tell me," Henry insisted. "You must let me help you."

"All right," he barked, "but you mustn't tell anyone. I've done something terrible. I've used some of the money at the bank. I'm a thief—do you hear? But I couldn't help it. I had to have it. Tell me, Wilson, what can I do?"

As soon as the first shock was over, Henry patted his arm.

"There," he soothed, "don't worry, Jim. I'll find some way out of this."

The boy was babbling incoherently, and Henry gave up trying to comfort him. He picked up his hat and coat and went out quietly. He was thinking deeply. Thinking of Jim. And of Arthur Blake. Jim's father would never be able to stand this blow. Jim was his pride and joy.

Henry told himself that he would have to do something. He was almost smiling when he arrived at his lodging house. At last, after all these years, there was a chance to repay Arthur Blake for his kindness.

Henry scribbled a note hastily. It was a short note, but it explained that there was money missing from the bank's funds and that he had used the cash for his own purposes. He begged Arthur's forgiveness, and he said goodbye. Then he stepped to a small closet and drew out a bottle. A bottle on which red letters marked the word "Poison." . . .

Jim was very late for work the next morning. At the time when he was usually at his desk, he was seated in the office of the town's leading physician. The doctor gazed at the boy in puzzled fashion.

"If you ask me," he said, "I'd say it was a case for a psychiatrist. Maybe Frued would have an answer for it. I can only tell you, Jim, what we've both known all along. You don't belong in the banking business. I know you're doing it for your father's sake, but it's criminal for a man to be working at something he hates so bitterly.

"That may explain it in some measure. That may be why every time you have too much to drink, you are obsessed with this insane idea that you've stolen some of the bank's money." . . .

Beauty Contestant In Variety Bill

The Variety, dark this week, will reopen under the management of George Jaffe, Sunday night, November 19, with a midnight show. "Burlesk Revue," with a cast of 50 people, will be the opening attraction. Heading the principals will be Lola Bartrum. Following an appearance in the "Follies," Miss Bartrum was "Miss New York" in a national beauty contest in 1931. Miss Bartrum recently has been in vaudeville and is making her debut in burlesque.

SANTA PARADE PRIZES GROW

Additional prizes, bringing the total to 40, have been offered in the "Santa Claus" parade, to usher in the Christmas season here the morning of November 25.

Thirty-six awards will go to contestants of all ages for the best depictions of comic characters, and four to non-professional bands and drum corps.

Mayor John S. Herron will officially welcome Santa Claus to Pittsburgh on the steps of the City-County Building as the climax of the pageant. Besides competing drum and bugle corps, six bands will accompany the floats and costumed paraders.

Sponsored by civic and business interests, the parade headquarters are in 1916 Oliver Building.

Pair to Lose Home As RFC Blocks Federal Loan

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 15.—(AP.)—An elderly couple faced the loss of their little home today because of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's refusal to accept federal home loan bonds.

The couple, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Reid, who live at 10 North Providence avenue, were to have been the first home owners to receive help from the Home Loan Corporation.

Arrangements were being made when the Guarantee Trust Company, a restricted bank which holds the mortgage on the Reid home, informed home loan officials that it could not accept home loan bonds.

The bank officer explained that the Reid mortgage had already been pledged with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for a loan, and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would not accept home loan bonds for its redemption.

SET SCHOOLEY FUNERAL

Intimate friends of Roy D. Schooley, former city treasurer and once a powerful Republican leader in Allegheny County politics, will act as pallbearers when Schooley is buried tomorrow in Smithfield Cemetery after funeral services in the Homer E. Leslie funeral home, 7135 Bennett street.

The services, which will be at 1 p. m., will be in charge of the Rev. Henry P. Eckhardt, pastor of St. Andrew's Evangelical Lutheran Church.

Schooley died Monday night in his home in Maripoe street after a two-year illness.

Playwright Actress Sued in Death Crash

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—A $250,525 damage suit, naming John Huston, 26, playwright son of Walter Huston, film actor, and Greta Nissen, actress, as defendants, was filed today by Raoul Roulien, Brazilian motion picture player, whose wife, Tosca, was killed in a traffic accident in Hollywood last September.

Bat Full of Pep After 4 Months In Cupboard

CHARLEROI, Pa., Nov. 15.—(AP.)—As rival to buried-alive frogs and other "death-defying" creatures, Charleroi offers a bat, unharmed by four months "entombment" in a cellar cupboard.

Last summer Mrs. Albert Hostengle filled up the cupboard with canned goods and preserves and locked it. She heard a noise on the bottom shelf, but thought nothing of it.

Yesterday she opened the cupboard and out flew a large bat, alive and full of pep. She says it couldn't have got in the cupboard during the four months, and she's sure it had nothing to eat — the canned goods weren't touched.

IRISH WARNED IN COMMONS

LONDON, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—The Irish Free State has been warned it must accept the responsibilities if it would continue to enjoy the privileges of membership in the British commonwealth of nations.

In the House of Commons yesterday, J. H. Thomas, secretary for dominion affairs, described as "a fresh repudiation of the Anglo-Irish" agreement three government bills now before the Irish Senate.

The measures, passed by the Dail Eireann, would provide for abolition of appeals to the privy council, transfer of authority over monetary appropriations from the governor-general to the executive council, and deletion from the constitution of the provision relating to royal assent to bills.

BANK EMPLOYE INDICTED

Richard D. Hill, former teller of the First National Bank of Swissvale, was indicted by the federal grand jury on a charge of embezzling $12,829.09 of funds of the bank.

Albert Hunter, alias Brother Albert, a Negro, of New York, a theatrical promoter, was indicted under the Mann act. He recently brought a troupe of white and Negro chorus girls from Cleveland to Pittsburgh. He was arrested two weeks ago in a raid by police at a Center avenue hotel, where he and some members of the troupe stayed.

There were 23 other indictments, in which defendants were charged with various offenses against the government, including 11 indictments under the national prohibition act.

GALA NBC BIRTHDAY PROGRAMS

Black Crows In Final Program

By AIRCASTER

Tonight marks the termination of the four-week contract of the Two Black Crows as entertainers on the Waring program.

It may also mark, and I hope it will, the end of the policy of bringing additional talent into the Pennsylvanians' picture.

With the prospect of Waring getting an additional spot for sponsor, I can think of no more original stunt on the part of the patron than that of allowing Waring and his gang to have the full time and the full spotlight.

"I'm sure the customers would like it a lot better.

Do It Again!

WCAE's "dedication" program Monday night was one of the most clever and original bits on the air in all time.

A parody on the recent run on dedicatory broadcasts, theoretically jumping from China-to-Sweden-to-England-to-Germany and back to America again for the commercial plugs, Ed Harvey, the m. c., accomplished the impossible—made the audience, included a jaded Aircaster, laugh loud and long.

Ernie Holst, arriving in Pittsburgh to play for the diners and dancers at the big hotel, saw his first snowfall in years.. Ernie and his band have played in Florida the past five winters.

Ham and Grapefruit

Tony Wons says the difference between a grapefruit and a radio "ham" is that the grapefruit can get into the public eye without the help of a press agent.

NBC and Elsie Lichtenstuhl, WJAS stylist, have something in common today—a birthday—only Elsie is three times as old. NBC is seven.

George Givot, the Greek dialectician, has signed up for a West Coast series of broadcasts beginning November 16.

B. A. Rolfe staged the last commercial broadcast at 711 Fifth avenue.

Ed Sprague, not supposed to relieve Tony Wakeman as KDKA sports reporter until December 1, is already on the job. Until Sprague finishes out the month at WWSW, he will be heard on both stations.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

A new commercial series, labeled "The Mystery Solved," is billed for the first time tonight at 8.

Paul Gannon sings an all-request program during his "Songs at Eventide" at 6:45.

Other features: Jeanne Dix's early evening songs; Joey Bova at 6:15 and Eddie Peyton's Frivolities at 11:30.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello ladies and gentlemen:

Little Glen Dermon, of Brookline only has to see the first flurry of snow to get ideas about sled riding.

He's the first to bring up the subject of roping off the streets. It might not be a bad idea to get started early this year so that when a good coasting day arrives we'll all be ready for it.

Suppose the sled riders and their parents let me know by letter what streets they want protected and we'll take the matter up with the proper city department so that they will be prepared to take care of us.

We had a picture of Maxim Litvinoff in the paper and in passing I mentioned that he didn't carry out our impression as to what a Russian looked like, (perhaps because he didn't have a beard).

A Russian globe trotter called to tell me that the Soviet Commissar isn't Russian at all but that the beginning of his name means Lithuanian. The 'off' makes it sound Russian.

Stay-at-Home Husbands Present a Problem

If you had a husband like the hero of this story, what would you do with him?

Rita'd like to know,

She hasn't had him long, but she's already beginning to wonder if maybe he isn't a Bad Bargain. No; he doesn't beat her. He doesn't drink, or play the ponies. He isn't out of work—and he even helps do the dishes. But—

Dear Miss Robinson—

Please help me. You've helped so many that I am hoping you can straighten me out. I can't go to any of my friends or my family for advice, because I don't want them to know the way things are.

I am 22, and have been married for seven months to a man of 31. He really doesn't look more than 26, and acts about that age.

LOTS OF WORK

We have a lovely three-room apartment which we furnished, and I work my head off keeping it just so. He helps me once a week with the general cleaning. I work in an office where I am alone, and sometimes I feel like it is a cell.

After work I come home, shop, cook supper (and not out of cans, either). After supper there are the dishes. He helps me with them and then sits in the living room and reads or listens to the radio, while I straighten the house, mend, iron, etc.

I don't mind all this work. I love to keep house—if he would only appreciate it but he doesn't. He thinks I have it easy, and says it would be harder staying home and maybe having a baby. And don't think I don't want to stay home. I'd love it. It is his idea, for me to keep on working.

We bank my salary, which is $25 a week. We live on his, which is $35—pay all expenses, including his insurance, and even put money in a Christmas Club. I don't spend very much on clothes. I had a lovely trousseau, and have enough linen for many years to come.

DOESN'T GO OUT

I am very economical, but I love to dress and look well. I also love to go out for a little fun now and then—to movies, walks or an occasional dance or good show. And what makes me so mad is that he hasn't taken me out of this apartment in a month.

I love him very much, and he loves me. We get along wonderfully except for one thing. He is an only child, and I am beginning to think he is a very selfish one. For the minute I mention going out, or seeing any of my girl friends, or having anyone in to visit, there is a quarrel, and he doesn't speak to me for days. That makes me miserable, nervous and eventually sick.

What on earth ails him, and what should I do? Please help me. I will be looking for your answer. RITA.

What ails him? You've named it yourself, Rita — selfishness. But that's not an abnormal disease. We all have it. We all must meet it. And it's just one of those little problems that confront every wife and every husband when they take on the Big Job of marriage.

If it hadn't been this, it would have been something else, honey. Living with any human being is just one Doggoned Nuisance after another. So you might as well grin—and get busy.

Make up your mind, first, that you can't change him all in a minute. He has spent 31 years getting this way, and he won't snap out of it in a second. But he can start, and he'll start willingly if you'll use the good little bean—and plenty of taffy.

SHOULD TELL HIM

So put it up to him, as from one good sport to another. Tell him exactly how you feel about this niggardly way of living; exactly what it's doing to your love and respect for him. Show him that it's Bad Business from every angle; that it will end in bankruptcy, both of heart and pocketbook.

If you can't tell him these things without crying or getting mad (and most of us can't,) why, write them. Write them lovingly, but with a wallop. Make him see you're not fooling.

Then let him find the letter waiting for him some night when he comes home.

And where'll you be? Any place but there! Out to a movie, or off to a girl friend's. Out and off—and don't hurry back. Let him have five or six nice, long, lonely hours to think it over. Then walk in.

And if he storms and raves, and won't see reason?

Why, walk right out again, sister!

Use NRA tactics! If your big, spoiled boy won't do "collective bargaining" and won't give you a fair deal—just give him the works. And keep on giving them, until he steps into line.

Hard advice? Is it half as hard, little girl, as watching your home and your lives go on the rocks without effort to save them?

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Good Result of an Unorthodox Bid

Mr. Thomas H. Avery, of Le Roy, N. Y., always prefers to bid the shorter suit first when holding two suits of bidable length. Expert opinion is that such bidding is unsound, except when the hand itself is so weak that its holder does not wish to show a higher ranking suit at the range of two and thus force partner, who may prefer the lower ranking suit, to bid three as a matter of preference. However, Mr. Avery's propensity for bidding the shorter suit first, coupled with the bad play of the Declarer, brought him a most unusual result on a hand he played defensively.

South, Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable; North-South part-score, 60.

North:
♠ A 8
♡ A 9 4
♢ K Q J 7 6 2
♣ J 7

West:
♠ 9 7 6 4 3
♡ 10 6 5
♢ 9 8 5 4
♣ 4

East:
♠ 10 5
♡ Q 8 3 2
♢ A 3
♣ K Q 9 3 2

South:
♠ K Q J 2
♡ K J 7
♢ 10
♣ A 10 8 6 5

Mr. Avery

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠ (1)	Pass	2 ♢ (2)	Pass
2 N T	Pass	Pass	3 ♣ (3)
Double (4)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—Unquestionably, a bid of one club ordinarily would be much better with South's hand as it permits the exchange of information at the range of one and at the same time the hand is strong enough to justify a bid of two spades should partner respond to the Opening bid with one notrump.

2—North's hand contains 3½ honor tricks and ordinarily would justify a Force. However, North decides that a mere Takeout is sufficient, due to the part-score, to insure further bidding, and is not anxious to make a Forcing Takeout because of the shortness of the spade suit bid by his partner.

3—A dangerous Overcall. The hand, it is true, contains two-plus honor-tricks, but it appears hopeless from the standpoint of defense and may result most disastrously, as, in fact, it did.

4—Here Mr. Avery reaps the rare reward for his unusual bidding.

The Opening lead was the singleton diamond Ten, which was won with the Ace by East, who then made the mistake of seeking to clear the club suit. Obviously, with his extremely weak holding, the only manner of playing the hand to minimize losses is to attempt to make as many of the trumps as possible.

South won the trump lead with the Ace, and then laid down the spade King. North properly overtook this and returned the small spade, which South won. As all the spades were in sight in his own hand and the Dummy, Mr. Avery now led his small spade, upon which his partner played the Knave of trumps, forcing East's Queen. East still was intent upon the establishment of the trump suit, so led a small trump, which South won with the 8, returning the spade Queen. This was the Declarer's last trick, as Mr. Avery was now able to draw his last trump, and the North and South partnership then won the remaining tricks.

The penalty for bad overbidding and equally inaccurate play totaled 2,700 points.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Typhoid Fever Is a Preventable Disease

Not long ago I was dining in a restaurant specializing in sea food. My dinner companion hesitated to order clams. When I questioned him he said that only that morning he had read of an outbreak of typhoid fever caused by infected mussels and clams. My friend was correctly informed but he was not familiar with all of the facts concerning the case. The outbreak he referred to had been traced by the health department to clams and mussels dug by a family who lived near contaminated waters. Digging of shellfish was prohibited in this area because of sewage pollution of the water. Despite these warnings, the diggers obtained a catch of mussels and clams and shortly afterwards were stricken with typhoid fever.

Dr. Copeland

Health authorities repeatedly warn against the dangers of eating shell-fish from sewage-polluted areas. Inspectors are constantly on the watch to prevent the marketing of such shellfish. You can be assured that if you purchase shellfish in a reliable fish market, or order them in a clean restaurant, they have been inspected and come from an approved source.

As a result of this supervision and rigid inspection, typhoid fever is now a rare disease. It is a preventable disease and will eventually be completely eradicated. It is prevented by the purification of water and careful inspection of all foods and food handlers.

All persons who handle food are required by law in progressive communities, to be examined at periodic intervals. In this way typhoid carriers, or persons who harbor the germs of typhoid fever, are located and prevented from spreading the disease. Typhoid carriers are a danger to the health of a community and every effort is made to place them under proper supervision.

Not so long ago typhoid fever was a serious menace to mankind. With the discovery of the typhoid germ and improved methods of sanitation, the disease is now entirely within the control of the health authorities. It is seldom that we hear of an outbreak of typhoid. When it does appear it can be traced to negligence, as in the case I mentioned.

In addition to hygienic measures, and rigid inspection of water and food supply, typhoid fever can now be prevented by the inoculations of the so-called "triple vaccine."

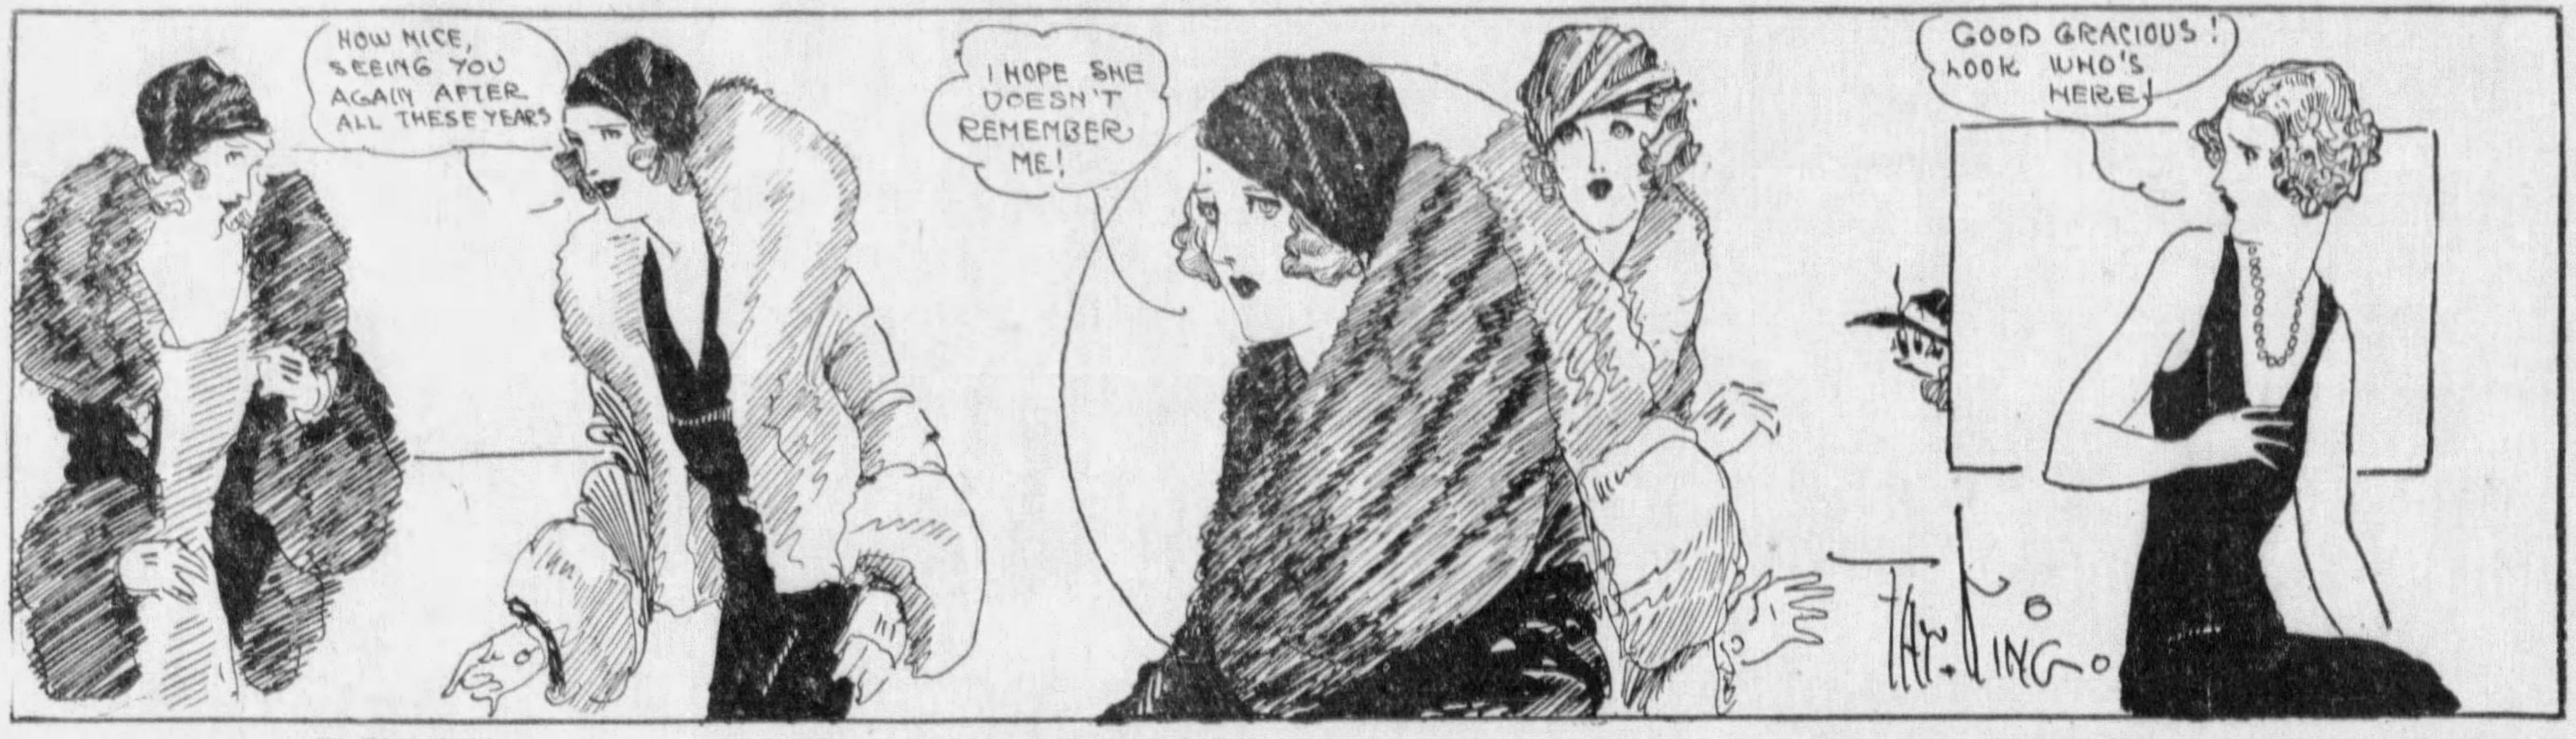
Fay King Cautions Against Remembering Folk Too Well



HOW NICE, SEEING YOU AGAIN AFTER ALL THESE YEARS
I HOPE SHE DOESN'T REMEMBER ME!
GOOD GRACIOUS! LOOK WHO'S HERE!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

When I was quite young, I received a bit of valuable advice from a pleasant fellow who I later learned was somewhat of a crook.

Seeing him in a hotel lobby some time after our first acquaintance, I greeted him cordially.

"You're a good kid," he said. "And I want to see you get along. So take this litile tip from me—never remember anybody first! A big guy may not like it, and a bad guy, if he likes you, won't speak when it might hurt you; see?"

Since then I've always let any man or woman I recall make the first move toward the past.

Time brings many changes, and often persons are more grateful for one's "forgetting" than for one's remembering!

Given in Marriage -:- A Sequel to Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Mary Surprises by Accepting Avis Arlen

I could have sworn that I heard the echo of Philip Veritzen's query in the silence that, for the fraction of a second followed the words, "Are you willing that Miss Avis shall be one of your bridesmaids?" In that infinitesimal portion of time I found myself tensely gripping the arms of my chairs as I waited for Mary's answer.

I was fairly certain, of course, what it would be. Noel's father had just consented to alter his costly and elaborate scheme for their wedding trip, in order to give his son and Mary the five days' honeymoon of their own planning upon which they so counted. Mary could hardly refuse this request, no matter how bizarre or distasteful to her it was.

I wondered if I were allowing my prejudices to play hob with my imagination, or did I see in Philip Veritzen's eyes a distinct gloating over the mental distress which he must have known was Mary's, while she hesitated for the fraction of a second over her answer to his question.

But my wonder was lost in admiration when Mary, with head flung high, and a smile playing around her lovely mouth, answered with just the right degree of enthusiasm.

"Willing!" she exclaimed brightly. "I'm more than willing; I'm delighted. It's just too sweet of her to offer to be one of my attendants. But where can I get in touch with her? There will be a lot to arrange about gowns and things, to fit in with the other attendants."

PLANNING SOMETHING

I sat up with a jerk which I hoped Philip Veritzen did not see. Mary had planned to have no attendant except Marion as maid of honor, while Ronald was to be Noel's best man.

But I could see that Mary's keen brain was planning something, because of this thrusting upon her of Avis Arlen, and it behooved the rest of us to catch her cues and return them in such fashion that Philip Veritzen would not guess that anything out of the ordinary was in progress.

Mr. Veritzen's eyes narrowed slightly.

"I did not know your preparations were to be so elaborate," he said. "I understood you were having a very small, informal wedding, with but few guests."

Mary flashed a sparkling smile at him.

"It is small," she said, "but it's like those revolutionary armies where everybody is a captain or something. All the youngsters in the gang are going to do something. You see, this is the first time I ever got married, and I hope it will be the last, and I want to have it as nifty as possible."

VERITZEN BAFFLED

"This will involve a certain type of gown for Miss Avis?" Philip Veritzen said stiffly.

"Yes, I am afraid it would," Mary said. "You see, it would have to match Carolyn's, but—" She shot a quick, furtive look of appeal to me.

I answered promptly, though blindly, hoping that my response would approach the correct one.

"I think we shall be able to do it in time, if we can get at things early tomorrow morning," I said, "and of course it will cost Miss Avis nothing, as we are furnishing the gowns for the attendants."

"That is not necessary," Mr. Veritzen said quickly, "I—" I put up a protesting hand.

"There can be no other way," I said decisively. "Now for details. Will you excuse Miss Avis from her duties in your office until the wedding is over?"

Mr. Veritzen let his keen glance rest first upon Mary's face, then upon mine. I had the mirthful, malicious consciousness that we had baffled him; that he had looked for something else than this ready acquiescence in his disconcerting plan.

"Willingly," he said, and I reflected that, as far as Avis' value to his organization was concerned, he no doubt could excuse her for all time.

"She will be at your disposal," he added. "Where do you want her to report to you?"

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Sandwiches and Spoons

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I would like a little information concerning open face sandwiches. Is it proper to eat open sandwiches with the knife and fork, or with the fingers? We had quite a discussion on this topic.

2—When is it proper to use coffee spoons? R.

1—If we are a guest at a party and the hostess has conveniently provided us with a knife and fork with the open-face sandwich, we should use it. It is definitely the best way to eat a sandwich of this kind, careful and punctilious.

If we are the hostess of the party we should by all means place a knife and fork with this kind of sandwich. In this way we graciously show that we have in mind the convenience of our guests. If our guests don't wish to use the knife and fork . . . very well, but if they do want to be careful eaters, here are the silverpieces to co-operate with that wish.

2—We use after-dinner coffee spoons whenever we serve coffee in the small after-dinner or after-luncheon coffee cups. We don't use them with the regular size coffee cups, for their small size is obviously inappropriate with these large cups.

"I just DREAD to think of WINTER coming!"

"HOW I WISH WE HAD GAS HEAT!"

"I DREAD the coming of winter because for me it means six months of hard work playing nursemaid to the furnace. It means endless climbing up and down the cellar steps—constant attention to the furnace—and the never-ending shoveling of fuel and ashes. And then all we get is a varying temperature, which everyone knows isn't healthful, and a house that is dirty and dusty and takes a lot of extra cleaning every day. How I wish we had Gas Heat!"

Automatic Gas Heat eliminates completely all this disagreeable drudgery. One match is your kindling for the entire winter—and the thermostat takes care of your furnace 24 hours a day—and maintains a constant, uniform, healthful temperature without a bit of attention on your part.

And here's good news for everyone. You can now install Gas Heat in your home, without one cent of investment for equipment, on the new Burner-Rental plan. No investment—no installation charge—and only a small rental per month. See your Gas Company for details—or send the coupon below:

Mrs. Lawrence's Move Stresses G. O. P. Unrest

By MARK SHIELDS

Mr. Shields

HARRISBURG, Nov. 15.—The disturbed feeling within the Republican party following its defeats in municipal and county elections last week, together with the demand from many quarters that the party leadership and management must adjust itself to new times and new ideas, has been communicated to the feminine contingent.

This has become manifest in the meeting of the Republican Council of Women, which concludes here today.

It was dramatized by the refusal of Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence, of Pittsburgh, to continue to serve as an officer of the council.

In declaring she would not serve as third vice president, to which position she was slated for reelection, Mrs. Lawrence said she lacked time to give to the work of the council.

But from one of the directors of the council, which Mrs. Lawrence helped to organize several years ago, it was learned that the real reason was a protest against the lack of independence marking the political philosophy of those directing strategy.

* * *

Swayed By Machine More Than By Pinchot

Despite the fact that the president of the council is Miss S. M. R. O'Hara, a deputy attorney general, serving through appointment to state office by Gov. Pinchot, the council in its political attitudes has more closely followed the reaction and conservatism of the Republican state committee than the liberalism of the Governor.

Mrs. Lawrence has been active in the various Pinchot campaigns since 1912, when her father, the late Senator William Flinn, became associated with the Governor in the Roosevelt Bull Moose campaign. She has usually been consulted by the Governor on affairs in Allegheny County.

Only last year her brother, Ralph Flinn, was a candidate for the nomination for auditor general on a ticket backed by the Governor in the primary.

In the succeeding general election Mrs. Lawrence was an active worker for President Hoover, heading a group of women which worked independent of—and more productively—than the organization which followed the Republican county committee.

Her activity led to some sharp feelings, but complainants were curtly informed that she was exhibiting qualities of leadership which could not be ignored.

Mrs. Lawrence is also understood to have had something to do with Judge Ralph H. Smith being appointed to Common Pleas Court by the Governor.

* * *

May Aid Pinchot Senate Movement

One report in Harrisburg was that she intended to be free next year to organize a woman's movement on behalf of Gov. Pinchot should he become a candidate for the U. S. Senate against Senator David A. Reed next year.

Senator Reed, as well as the Governor, spoke to the women yesterday, and the Senator is more approved by the controlling forces of the council than is Mr. Pinchot.

The future is conjecture, of course, but the action of Mrs. Lawrence was disquieting not only to the women, but to some of the men Republican leaders. The women party leaders, including Mrs. Charles E. Etter, of Harrisburg, Republican vice chairman and Mrs. Marion Margery, Scranton, national committee woman from Pennsylvania, have played the political game with State Chairman Edward Martin, who also addressed them yesterday.

Gen. Martin and Speaker Grover Talbot, of the House, used the occasion to review the history of the Republican party, claiming for it credit for passage of much social legislation.

* * *

Pinchot Centers On Modern Record

Gov. Pinchot, while properly venerating Lincoln, insisted the party must think in terms of the present. He cast aside history to contend that part of the present low estate of the party in the state is due to the manner in which it killed social legislation at the last session of the General Assembly.

Actually, the lesson of last week has not sunk in to many of the party leaders, as their conversation demonstrates.

And Mrs. Lawrence apparently is not in the humor to become even by inference responsible for the management of a woman's party group which believes so nearly as do the men who have shown little conception of public attitudes.

As this session of the Legislature runs on there may be some evidences of evolution as well as revolution among some members who are disturbed, even though their leaders appear to think the old order still lives.

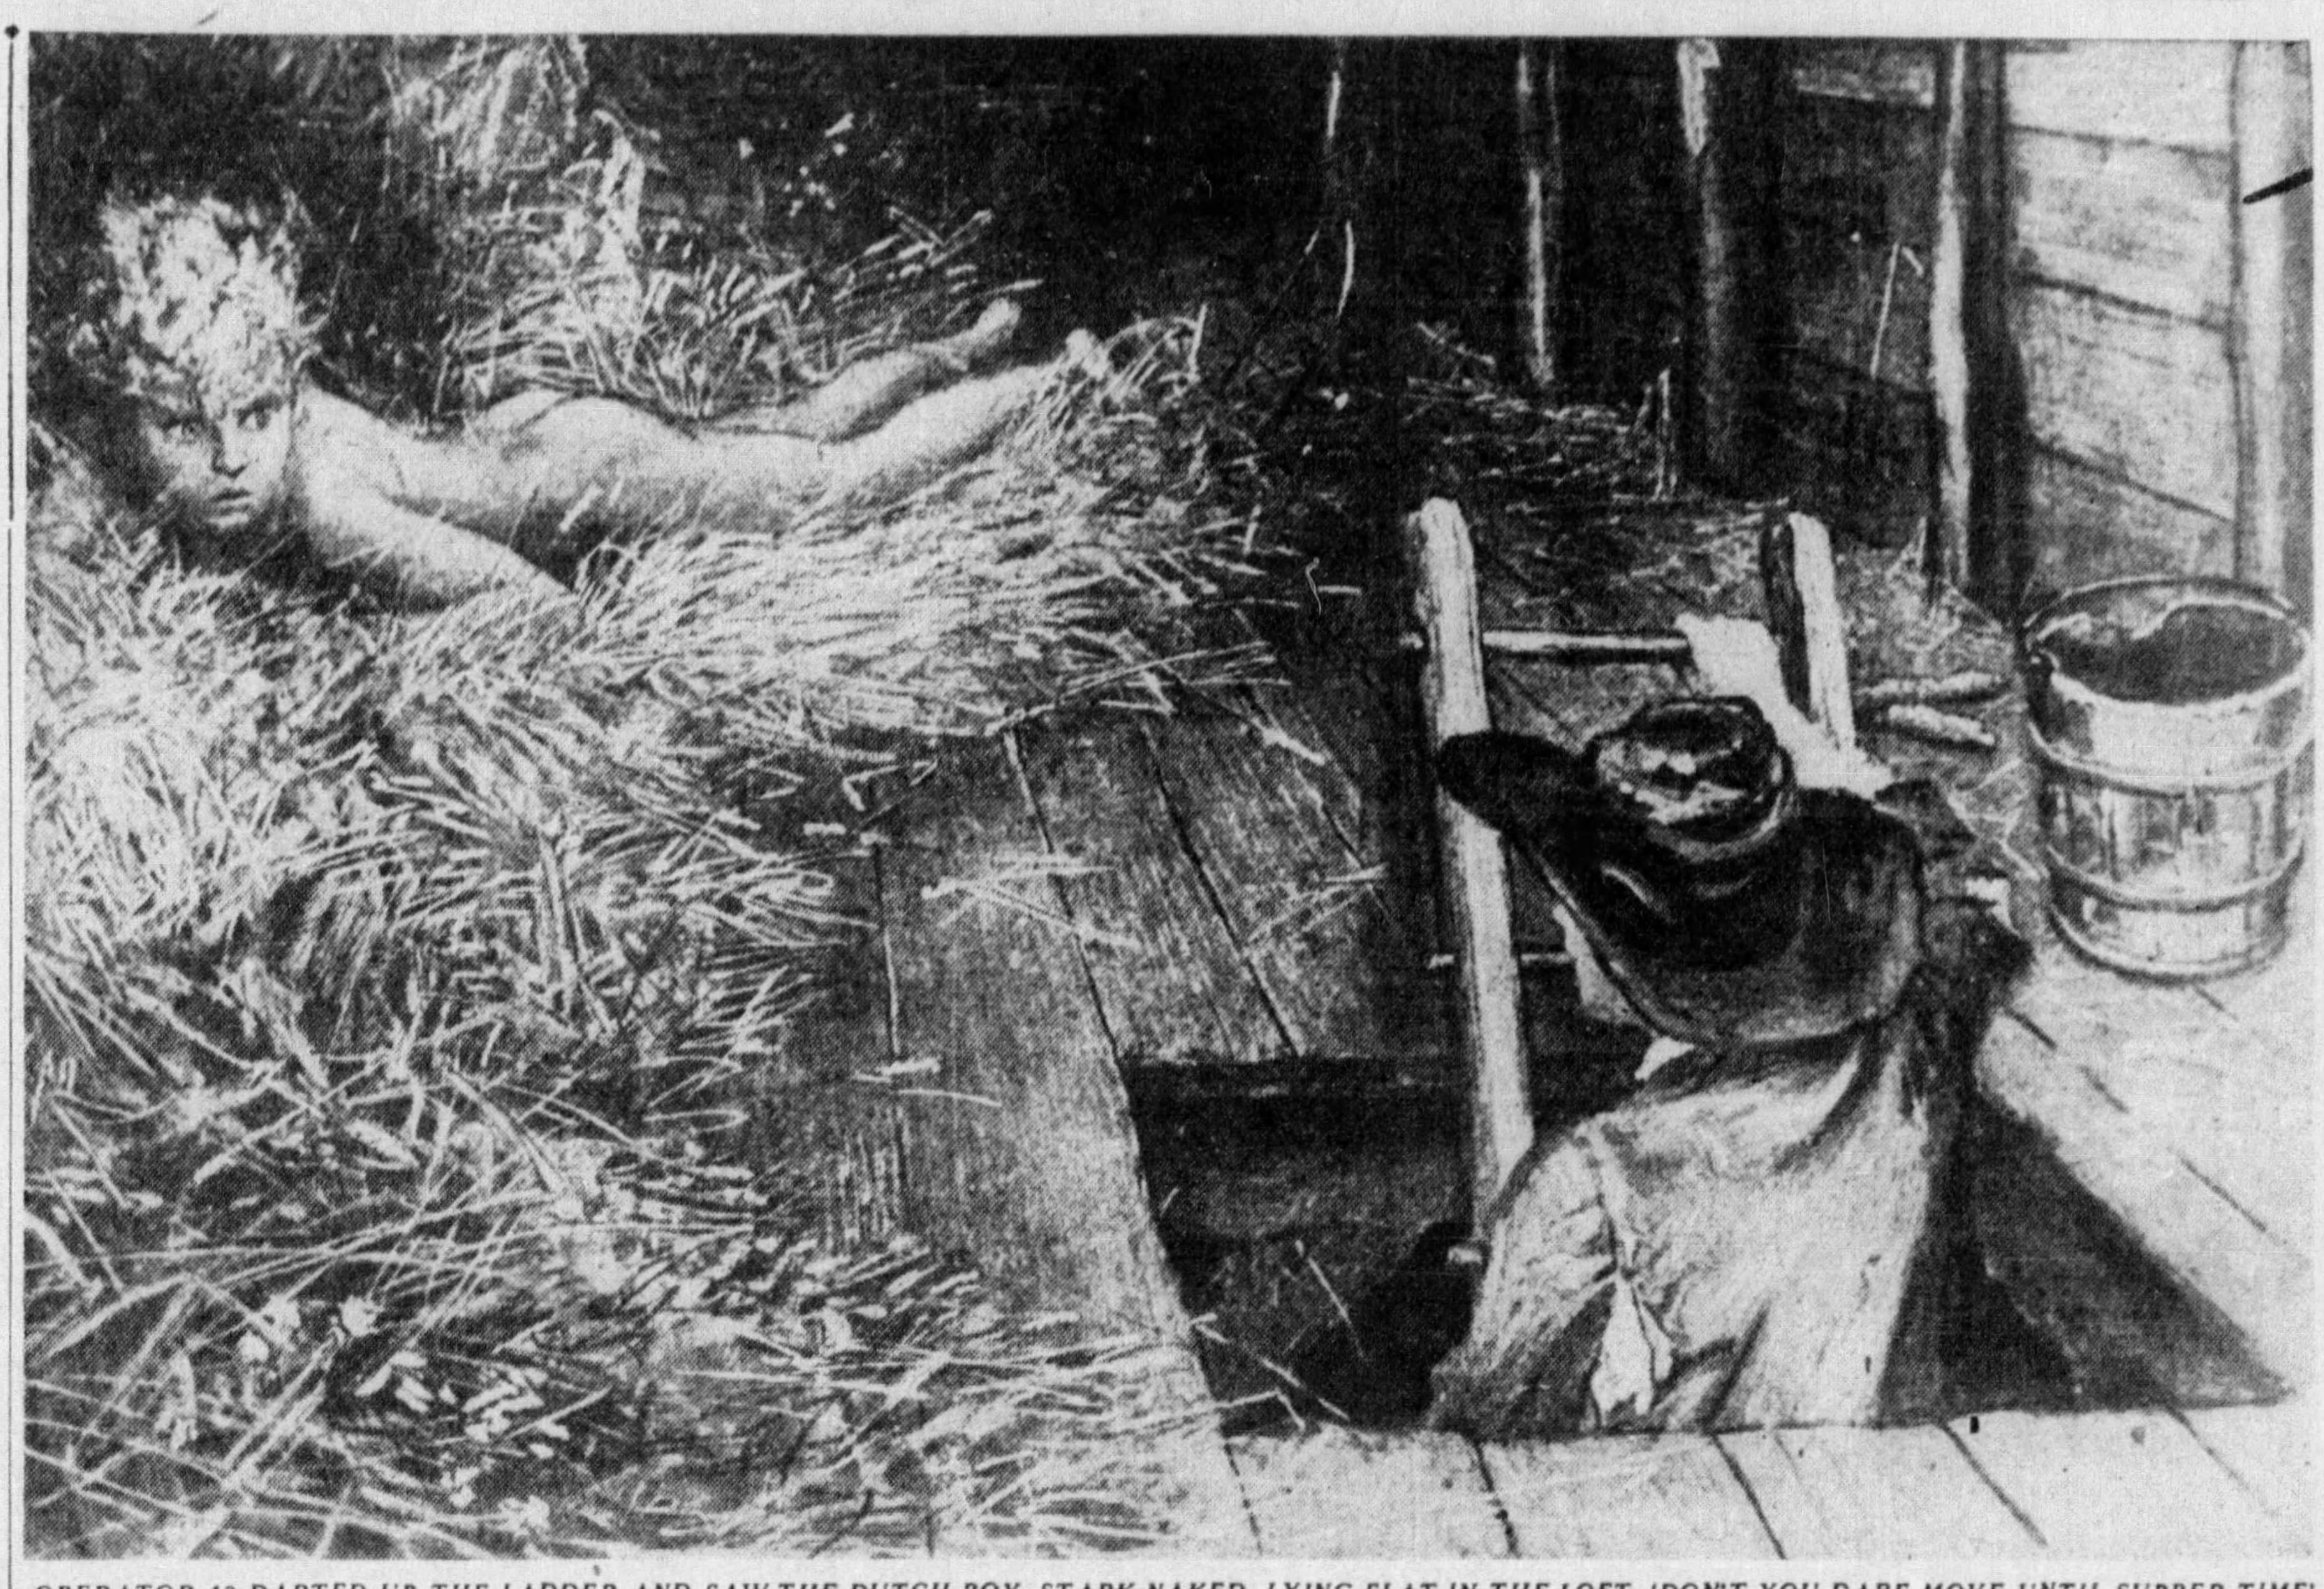
Operator 13 by ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

Girl Spy Gets New Disguise

(Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan production made for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies.)

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS



OPERATOR 13 DARTED UP THE LADDER AND SAW THE DUTCH BOY, STARK NAKED, LYING FLAT IN THE LOFT. 'DON'T YOU DARE MOVE UNTIL SUPPER TIME'

"What I gwine do, Bob?" she gasped, as they rode out into a plowed field. "I done los' mah lef' boot in de water!"

Bob turned in his saddle, exasperated, and looked down at her slim, little foot in its soaked white cotton stocking. "Debbil in ebryting dis hyah mawnin'!" he cried. "Debbil in de hosses, debbil in de gunners, debbil in yuh, too. Wha' for yuh done come wif dis hyah army, yuh lil debbil? 'Splain me dat!"

"Kaze I loves yuh, honey; I done tole yuh dat. Oh, Bob, is yuh gwine len' me a lef' boot?"

They were riding forward across a field, now in the rear of the 9th Virginia Cavalry, pouring through a gap in a snake fence.

"Ain't got no extry boot," grunted Yellow Bob, glowering at her.

"Yaas, yuh has, honey," she insisted.

The cavalry ahead halted; they could see officers' arms upflung in signal, a red guidon bobbing forward alongside of the motionless column.

"Whar yuh gwine find a extry boot, Lucille?" Bob demanded fretfully.

"What's dat yeller boot top a-stickin up outen yuh saddlebag, honey?"

"Dat is mah onliest pair of extry jockey boots what I done bring to res' my feet!" He gave her a hostile look, but wavered when her lovely, distressed, dark-fringed eyes met his. "Gor a-mighty," he burst out, "is yuh gwine take mah onliest new bes' boots, Lucille?"

She rode up closer, put aside his hand and unbuckled his saddlebag, peering and rummaging. "How come yuh is totin' all dis hyar gallus pants an' jacket an' yeller-top boots?" she demanded.

Yellow Bob said solemnly: "Dis hyah am mah onliest bes' Sunday-meetin' jockey clothes, Lucille, an' when I gits to Chambersburg I'se gwine show de Yankees how a quality nigger kin set his saddle when de Gin'ral has a march-past an' de ban' plays big an' bangin'."

"Is I gwine set beside yuh wif one boot an' half naked?" she wailed.

Sound Advice

"Kick off dat boot," he advised, an' ride barefoot lak yuh is mah hoss boy."

The girl promptly kicked off her remaining boot, stripped off the white, wet stockings and rested her bare brown toes in the stirrups.

Here was a far safer aid to disguise than a single spurred boot, which, in her suddenly extemporized role of horse boy, might have been noticed—boots being a rarity in the Confederacy and quite beyond a Negro stable lad's reach.

Far ahead several sabers shot up high in the watery light of daybreak, waved in circles, slanted forward; the gray column moved on; so did Yellow Bob, Lady Margrave, Skylark and little Lucille on Capt. Gailliard's horse.

It was 10 miles of steady riding northward to cross the Pennsylvania border. As soon as the cavalry were across, their flanking, foraging wings spread out widely, gathering in Yankee horses and cattle and prisoners from tiny hamlets and scattered farms.

All the morning Yellow Bob had been bending every effort to overtake Gen. Jeb Stuart and headquarters, but regiments and brigades and batteries obstructed him and apparently nobody had instructions to forward a dark gentleman of importance, followed by a barefoot stable boy and two led horses.

All knew him, of course; many teased him and laughed at him. However, they wouldn't let him through—or maybe couldn't; and he and his led horses and little Lucille, whom the troopers took for some stray stable lad, found themselves at noon outside Mercersburg, amid swarms of cavalry driving in herd after herd of frightened Pennsylvania horses from the outlying country

Here, on a hill, Yellow Bob left the girl to hold the halters of Lady Margrave and pretty Skylark, in the shade of some maple trees near a deserted barn and galloped off to make his way into the village below, which was full of Confederate cavalry.

New Fear

Sitting on the doorless sill of the barn was a bare-legged boy in ragged pants and jacket, staring down at the gray riders in the village.

Now, in bright, pitiless daylight, Operator 13 was becoming frightened again. It seemed certain that some trooper would recognize her presently. Certainly, too, by this time Chancellor or Miss Boyd must have informed headquarters of her detection in Martinsburg and of her escape.

Where was Vespasian Chancellor? Where was Operator 90 with his white rose? Had Gus Littlefield managed to carry the news of the raid to Mrs. Edmonds? To Averell? To Washington?

The girl shivered in her gray overcoat, where she stood barefooted in the grass, holding the three halters.

If Chancellor had joined the raiders, and if he encountered her, he would know her. She could not hope to escape those cruel eyes. That meant a drumhead hanging without any doubt at all.

This was no real disguise—this gray overcoat and slouch hat. And, under her overcoat, she wore her starched white dress of a lady's maid, and had with utmost difficulty kept it lifted above her waist lest it show.

In imagination she could see Vespasian Chancellor's narrow gaze fastened upon her, and hear his drawling, gentle voice bidding her unbutton her overcoat.

She looked around desperately with a sudden wild desire to fling herself into the saddle and ride for life. And saw in the fields on every side gray-jackets riding. Then her scared eyes fell upon the ragged, towheaded boy. Instantly she led the three horses toward the gaping barn.

The blond Dutch boy rose as though alarmed when she came close to him. She spoke smilingly, but the scared lad was ready to bolt as she collared him.

"Listen to me," she said breathlessly, "I am not going to hurt you."

He struggled wildly in her clutches; but she shoved him into the dim barn, dragging her three horses after her.

"Now," she panted, "give me your clothes!"

Terrified Boy

He was too terrified to obey. She flung three bridles around an upright staple, seized the boy and calmly stripped him.

"If you yell," she said, "I'll do terrible things to you. Go up into the haymow and lie down flat on your Dutch back!"

He went up the ladder like a panic stricken monkey. Operator 13 flung off her overcoat, tore her white starched dress from her, pulled on his ragged shirt, pants and jacket, and gathered together her overcoat, dress and stockings, shoved them into the trough of an empty stall. Then she fastened the halters of Lady Margrave and Skylark and led Capt. Gailliard's nervous horse out into the rear yard, which was thick with weeds, grown taller than her head. Here, under the sagging wreck of an ancient shed, she fastened the horse, confident that no gray-jacket would come foraging into so obviously abandoned a spot. Certain, also, that when the gray cavalry had gone on toward Chambersburg, Gailliard's horse would make noise enough when hungry, and would be discovered.

Now she ran back into the barn and darted up the ladder and saw the Dutch boy, stark-naked, lying flat in the loft, rolling terrified China-blue eyes a her.

Read This First

Gail Loveless, at 20, became a spy in the Federal service and was designated as Operator 13. In the disguise of a quadroon laundress, she was sent to the headquarters of Gen. J. E. B. Stuart, Confederate cavalry leader, who was planning a daring raid into Pennsylvania.

Capt. Gailliard, leader of Stuart's spies, flirted with her, kissed her, fell half in love with her and was ashamed of himself. He and Belle Boyd, most famous Confederate woman spy, were convinced that "Lucille Lyndon," as she called herself, was a genuine colored girl, and harmless. But Vespasian Chancellor, Gailliard's colleague, suspected her. Eventually he exposed her as a spy. She stole Gailliard's horse, struck him in the face with his own pistol and fled.

Barred from flight in any other direction, she boldly joined Stuart's cavalry as it started north on its Pennsylvania raid. She cajoled Yellow Bob, Stuart's groom, into letting her ride one of the General's horses.

Now Go On With the Story

"Don't you dare move until supper time!" she warned him. "And if you obey me, and are good, I'll send you a nice warm overcoat. Do you hear me?"

"Yaas—yaas'm!" the boy stammered through chattering teeth.

"Very well . . . And maybe I'll ask God to send you a beautiful horse, too. When the moon is up tonight, tell your father to look around here with a lantern, and maybe God will send him a very beautiful horse." She placed a lifted finger across her lips, then shook it warmly at him. "You promise?"

"Yaas'm," he whispered.

So Operator 13 descended the rickety ladder and removed it, lowering it to the gaping planks of the floor.

Yankee Prisoners

Now she went to the horses, untied them, mounted Skylark bareback, rode slowly out onto the grass, halted under the maples and looked down into the turmoil of the captured town of Mercersburg. The old-time Pennsylvania town swarmed with Confederate cavalry whose officers spoke courteously to the astonished villagers, paying for everything they took from the shops.

She could see Wade Hampton's jaunty horsemen riding in with herds of Pennsylvania horses; with Ayrshire and belted cattle, and with prisoners in beautiful new blue uniforms—men of Maj. Meyer's signal corps, surprised and taken in the fog with their horses, flags, field telegraph instruments and lances, near the Fairview signal tower.

With these signalmen were other disgusted Yankee prisoners from Logan's Twelfth Illinois Cavalry, and a number of civilians, too, fetched in under guard, lest they carry news to that huge Union Army of Gen. McClellan, surrounding this little column of Rebel riders who were so gayly and recklessly threading the divisional interstices of a hostile army 50 times their number.

* * *

It was high noon at Mercersburg; artillery and cavalry bugles were blowing; Pelham's agile gunners remounted and moved out, nonchalantly finishing their meager midday meals in their saddles; Rooney Lee's flanking cavalry spread wide, predatory wings and talons to sweep up every Yankee horse on their northward journey. Headquarters waited, watching the cavalry of "Grumble" Jones mounting along the national road and curious to learn whether Jeb Stuart really was going on to Chambersburg.

Operator 13, from her little hill, could see the General and his headquarters staff a little way below her in a small meadow. They were so near that she could recognize individuals—Engineer Capt. Blackford, Captain of Cavalry White, Maj. Von Borcke, Wade Hampton, Butler—and could see Joe Sweeney with his banjo slung across his back, riding his big gray gelding.

Down there, too, was Yellow Bob, bustling about with camp plates and a sizzling frying pan. The brigadiers and staff officers were eating in their saddles, but Stuart ate nothing, standing apart from the others, deep in consultation with a shabby fellow on a gangling racker.

And suddenly the girl recognized Vespasian Chancellor. A pang of purest fright pierced her. There was nothing to do about it. Skylark's topmost speed could not carry her through that outer ring of flanking horsemen.

A Shocked Negro

Jeb Stuart looked over his gold-embroidered shoulder and, catching his major's eye, nodded laughingly. The next moment Major Von Borcke called out something to Yellow Bob and made a jerky gesture northward.

The girl saw the mulatto mount his horse and come galloping up the hill toward the clump of maples where she sat Skylark. The halter in her stained brown hand quivered with fright.

Up the hill galloped Yellow Bob, but when he saw "lil Lucille," sitting his general's "onliest bes' hoss," the shock staggered him.

"Gor a-mighty, woman!" he squealed. "Wha' foh is yuh a-settin' onto dis hyah Skylark hoss! Is yuh went plum crazy?"

"No, suh, Bob," said the girl tranquilly, "I isn't crazy no mo'n yuh is! I gotta ride somefin', isn't I?"

"Where yuh hoss, chile?"

"Das whut I gwine axe yuh!" she said.

"Who done sneak up dis hyar hill an' steal mah onlies' lil hoss while I wuz a-walkin' an' a-coolin' Lady Margrave an' Skylark?"

"Debbil, debbil," snarled Bob. "Ef yuh hoss is stole, yuh gotta go home."

"How I gwine git home, nigger? Yuh reckon I gwine hoof it mo'n twenty mile wif er millyun Yankee soldiers chasin' me? Ain't yuh got no sense? Oh, Bob, ain't yuh love me no mo'?"

"Whut I gwine tell de Gin'ral?" he demanded.

"Ef yuh tell de Gin'ral dat yuh let lil Lucille come along, I 'spec' he-all gwine act up mighty high," she said calmly.

"'Low I ain't fixin' tuh tell de Gin'ral nuff'n," retorted Bob, rolling anxious eyes.

"Yaas yuh is," said the girl coolly. "Ef de Gin'ral axe you how come it a lil nigger is a-ridin' Skylark, yuh gwine say I is de bes' jockey stable boy in camp to he'p yuh care fo' de Gin'ral's hosses."

"Whar yuh git dem rags yuh is totin'?"

A Predicament

The girl laughed. "Someone done hook de overcoat an' de horse. Does I look lak lil Lucille in dis yar pants an' cotton shirt, Bob?" she asked, giggling.

"Yuh look lak yuh wuz a nas'y lil saucy yaller nigger, das whut yuh look lak," he replied, exasperated. "Debbil, debbil! De debbil's in yuh; de debbil's in me; de debbil's in ev'body."

"Ef yuh tell anybody dat de lil laun'ress what soaps de Gin'ral's onlies' bes' shirt is a-ridin' wif yuh, de provost gwin hang yuh!" said the girl, still giggling.

"Ain't fixin' to tell nobody nuff'n," retorted Yellow Bob sullenly. "How yuh gwine ride wif nuff'n 'scusin' de halter onto dis hyah Skylark hoss? I ain't never knowed yuh kin ride, Lucille."

"Ride better'n yuh-all," she jeered.

"War yuhh git so hoss-wise an biggity?" he growled. "'Pears lak you know a big lot too dam' much 'bout ev'thin."

Sweeney rode up the hill. "Bob," he shouted "follow headquarters guidon!"—and trotted off toward the General and the staff, whose horses were now moving off at the head of Hampton's cavalry.

Beside General Jeb Stuart rode Vespasian Chancellor on his racker; and as Yellow Bob, leading Lady Margrave, followed by Operator 13 on Skylark, fell in just behind Joe Sweeney, the girl heard Chancellor's quiet voice continuing:

Mistrusts Scouts

"Hyar's what I reckon is our situation., General: Yankee infantry marchin' west of us at five this mornin'! the Yankee cavalry general, Kenley, sent couriers to Hagerstown whar thar's a hell's mint o' Yankees—"

"I'm not going to Hagerstown," said Stuart. "But continue, Chancellor."

"Yaas, suh. Waal, suh, I reckon Colonel Imboden is keepin' Averell busy: Pleasanton remains near Knoxville; Stoneman's riders are plum tuckered over to Frederick whar the Yankee Lancers is."

"Dick Rush's Lancers?" Stuart inquired with bright interest concerning his old antagonists at Antietam.

"Yaas suh."

"I hope we'll meet them," laughed Stuart. "Well, go on with your report."

"Tha's all, suh. Only I mistrust all these hyar Yankee scouts an' spies an' fugitives that is skedaddlin' North to spread the news of this hyar raid, suh."

"You think that laundress of mine got clean away North?" inquired Stuart.

"Miss Belle an' I couldn't find hide or hair of her, suh; an' Gin'ral Stonewall's mountain pickets fired at somebody who rode a horse like the one she stole from Captain Gailliard."

"Well," said Stuart, "we can't help it now. Is that all the news you have?"

"No, suh. A trooper of the Second South Carolina cavalry deserted us when we rushed the signal station. I mistrust he was a Yankee spy in our uniform, an' that he is gone North."

After a grim silence Stuart's tanned face cleared, his blue eyes sparkled. "No use worrying," he said; "we're going to Chambersburg, God willing." He turned. "Oh, Joe," he called to Sweeney, "give us a little music, if you please!"

Vespasian Chancellor, too, looked around, and his gaze swept Yellow Bob and the ragged Negro boy in charge of Lady Margrave and Skylark.

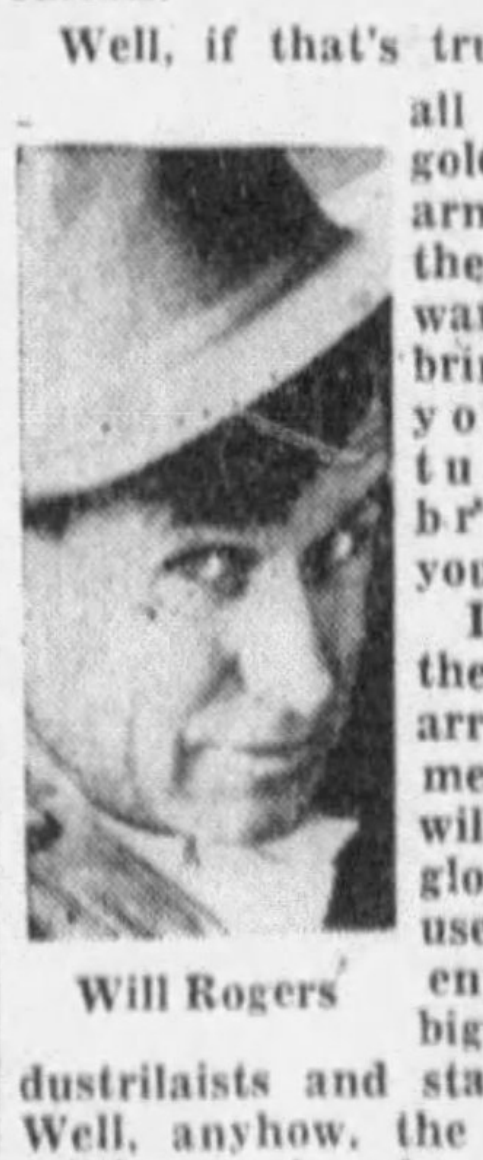
WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 15.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

An international authority on the subject claims that they are in sight of a remedy for tuberculosis.



Will Rogers

Well, if that's true, that beats all the price of gold, all the disarmament, even the stopping of wars. For you bring war on yourself, but tuberculosis is brought onto you.

It looks like the day is finally arriving when medical scientists will receive the glory that we used to bestow entirely on our big financiers, industrilaists and statesmen (hic). Well, anyhow, the world is certainly praying for this fellow to be right.. Yours, WILL.

Tammany Gets Stern Rebuke in Some Tea Cups

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

When Washington crossed the Delaware at Trenton he was splitting the difference between Philadelphia and New York.

Manhattan has gone Republican and Philly went Democratic. Now, when a New Yorker wants to feel at home he has to go to Philly.

Philadelphians are taking week-enders to New York just to breathe Republican air again.

President Roosevelt complicated matters when he invited Al Smith to the White House yesterday for a ferocious cup of tea. The wiseacres say this is a rebuke to Tammany. And it is if Al drank the tea.

Tammany Hall may be a haunted castle now. But it never was a two-family house. And if Al drank tea with the President it looks as if we will hear some music from the hidden orchestra behind the potted palms.

But until 1937 the struggle for supremacy in the hall will be an automobile race among hitch-hikers.

HOME GUARDED FROM BOMBING

East End police guarded the home of Mrs. Margaret Eckert, 6926 Standish street, last night after a note threatening to bomb the house was found in the mail box

Police were notified when the note, signed "The Watchers," was found. They believe the note was placed there by children.

Monday night Mrs. Eckert found a note threatening to kidnap her granddaughter, Grace Eckert, 14. City detectives blamed the alleged kidnap threat on family differences.

HURLEY DIES IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—An illness that became critical only a few hours before he was removed to a hospital caused the death of Edward N. Hurley, 69, one of the prominent men in the wartime history of the nation.

Hurley died last evening, and physicians laid the cause to leukemia, a disease marked by the existence of an over-supply of white corpuscles in the blood, complicated by the sudden development of pneumonia. He was stricken a few days ago after returning from Miami, Fla., and Washington.

Besides the fame he gained as chairman of the United States Shipping Board during the World War, Mr. Hurley was president of the machine company bearing his name and served as co-receiver of the Middlewest Utilities Company after the crash of the Insull utility empire.

His interests also extended to other lines of business and he held directorships in several automobile companies, utilities, railroads, traction companies, steamship lines and banks.

After the World War he was called to Paris and was made a member of the war council's committee on international labor legislation, and in 1924 was a member of the American World War Debt Funding Commission.

Nina Wilcox Putnam Seeks Bankruptcy

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—A voluntary bankruptcy petition was filed in Federal Court yesterday by Nina Wilcox Putnam Elliot, writer, who listed her liabilities as $12,136.01 and total assets of $1,977.

Among liabilities was an income tax claim of the government for 1932 income of $323.98 and a county tax claim of $64.50.

DENTISTS PICK PITTSBURGHER

Dr. D. L. Singleton, of Pittsburgh, was elected president of the Odontological Society of Western Pennsylvania at a business session today of the annual convention in Hotel William Penn.

Members elected Dr. W. Earle Craig, of Pittsburgh, as vice president. Other new officers included: Secretary, Dr. A. G. Wicks, Pittsburgh; assistant secretary, Dr. W. R. Flint, Pittsburgh; treasurer, Dr. A. J. Cross, Freedom, Pa., and exhibit manager, Dr. Leslie Waddill.

Technical papers were being presented by 23 speakers. These revealed newest advancement in dental practices. A dinner for the retiring officers will precede the annual dance tonight.

Dr. Edward J. Ryan, of Chicago, editor of Dental Digest, stressed the important position dentists hold in preventive medicine at the opening session yesterday. He said:

"The dentist can be a valuable family friend, a first line guardian of health, if he thinks in terms of general medicine and has enough knowledge to recognize the forerunners of systemic disease and refer his patients to competent physicians and surgeons. The dentist sees people who do not ordinarily come under the observation of the physician. Thus he can be an important force in preventive medicine."

FREED IN DEATH, BRANDED 'CUR' BY JUDGE

Free today of a charge of murder growing out of the death of an East End woman, Richard Callahan, former United States Marine, and his wife, were planning to return soon to England, where he once served the United States embassy.

The shadow of the murder was lifted from his life yesterday when visiting Judge R. R. Lewis directed the jury to return a verdict of acquittal. The finding ended the two-day trial in which Callahan was accused of beating to death Mrs. Marcella McCarthy, 38, in their apartment at 5560 Avondale street.

Judge Lewis, in his instructions to the jury, said:

"Repugnant as it may be for us to allow a yellow dog, a cur of a man to walk out of this courtroom a free man, it is our duty to instruct you to return a verdict of not guilty. No other verdict can be sustained on the evidence."

Throughout the trial, Callahan's pretty English wife, from whom he has been estranged several years, kept her ex-Marine husband company and encouraged him. She was reconciled, she said, because she felt positive of his innocence.

She explained that while her husband was living with Mrs. McCarthy, his alleged sweetheart and a former waitress, she and her two children were living nearby in the East End. Callahan asserted that he lived with the McCarthy woman as a boarder and for "business reasons."

CURB ON HOME LOANS FOUGHT

A protest against the Federal Home Owners' Loan Corporation's refusal to lend on obligations of home owners not recorded prior to passage of the act has been filed by Congressman Henery Ellenbogen with John H. Fahey, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in Washington.

Ellenbogen contends the wording of the act makes it possible to loan on obligations and liens "executed prior" to its date and asks that Fahey's office change its ruling.

According to Ellenbogen, many obligations of property owners are not intended to be recorded at all, such as, for instance, a note given to a bank. The bank, having full confidence in the home owner, seldom records the note, and as a result of this confidence some owners have lost their chance to borrow to meet their debt, he declares.

GANG SUSPECTS HELD IN RAID ON 'ARSENAL'

The youthful leader of an alleged bandit gang, which has blazed a broad trail of banditry and terrorism throughout the Monongahela Valley for the last two years, was captured along with three members of his alleged band by a posse of state police and Glassport police last night.

Ray Patrick, 22, of 502 Archer street, McKeesport, credited by police with being the "brains" of the alleged gang, had been sought since he slipped through a police net more than a year ago, police said.

Although three members of the band were trapped in the police raid of a year ago and sentenced to long terms in the penitentiary, police said Patrick organized a new gang which has been responsible for several score robberies and the torture of an aged recluse, including the robbery of a postoffice and the home of a priest.

UNCOVER 'ARSENAL'

Antonio Grygo, 26, of Detroit; Nick Winowitch, 25, of Romine avenue, Port Vue, and Earl Layton, 22, of 502 Archer street, McKeesport, were trapped along with Patrick in last night's roundup.

A small arsenal was found at the Archer street address, Patrick's home, police said.

Patrick was cornered in the cellar, where he shouted:

"Don't shoot, I'll give up!"

On being taken to the police station, police quoted him as saying:

"It's a good thing I didn't have a gun; I never gave in to a cop before."

GANG CONFESSED

The gang confessed, according to state police, to more than 25 crimes in the vicinity of McKeesport, including the robbery of a postoffice and the home of a priest. Patrick also admitted being the leader of the gang that in July, 1932, tortured J. W. Sailor, an aged recluse, in his cabin near Dunbar. The same gang, according to police, stole automobiles, bound and robbed a camping sextet, and were chased by police over mountain roads, abandoning a stolen automobile, wrecked after a gun battle with police. Shortly after Ralph Simpson, William Meredith and Calvin Russell, members of the gang, were apprehended and given long terms in the penitentiary.

PARSONAGE ROBBED

The new gang confessed to robbing the Port Vue postoffice on September 19, obtaining $50 of government funds and $200 from Joseph Billy, the postmaster.

While the Rev. W. A. O'Hara was saying mass in St. Cecelia's Church, Glassport, the gang admitted they had robbed the parsonage, getting $10 and a gun.

The roundup of the band was made when Chief D. J. George, of Glassport police, was tipped as to where he could find Patrick. He and Jack Lees, sergeant of Glassport police; J. A. Hoffer and J. P. O'Mara, of the state police, and Lawrence C. Kennedy and D. H. Stephens, postoffice inspectors, surrounded the Glassport house.

WAR ON SLUMS ADVOCATED BY ARCHITECTS

Twenty-seven Pittsburgh architects are making an effort to encourage slum clearance projects in this city by organizing civic leaders.

Letters outlining the program and the possibilities have been sent to leaders in the building industry, financiers, real estate men, lawyers and public officials.

SITES STUDIED

The architects report they have been studying sites in different localities, basing their surveys largely on figures submitted by the Pittsburgh Housing Association. Data regarding housing conditions is being gathered for presentation to federal authorities.

Some of the factors considered are property values, accessibility, type of housing, amount of grading required, street construction, management and rental rates.

The new Federal Public Works Housing Corporation has broad powers for condemnation of sites for housing projects, but it is not believed they will come into Pittsburgh unless a non-political local group is organized to sponsor a project.

GROUP NAMED

Other ways in which slum clearance might be undertaken would be for an individual or group to act as in the case of the Buhl Foundation in the Chatham Village development, or for the Legislature to authorize the creation of limited-dividend housing corporations with powers of eminent domain.

The architects' group, known as the Allied Architects of Pittsburgh, consists of Frederick Bigger, Robert C. Bowers, William Boyd, Lamont H. Button, Raymond A. Fisher, Thomas Hannah, William H. Harrold, Charles T. Ingham, Paul W. Irvin, B. J. Kaiser, Albert F. Link, Raymond M. Marlier, Allan H. Neal, C. J. Palmgreen, Rody Patterson, Thomas Pringle, Alfred D. Reid, Ralph M. Reutti, Robert W. CHARGES AARON EVASIVE ON TAX

C. V. Shoup, executive director of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers' League, in a radio address last night charged Marcus Aaron, president of the Board of Education, as being "evasive and indirect" in matters pertaining to the 1934 school budget.

Shoup said the Taxpayers' League does not want teachers' salaries reduced, but advocates elimination of the so-called "super-maximum provision" in salaries.

FISH ACCUSED OF AIDING NAZI DRIVE IN U. S.

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—A charge that Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York, ranking Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee, attended a German Nazi meeting in New York last Saturday almost brought the House Immigration Committee investigation of Nazi activities to a standstill today.

C. A. Hathaway, editor of the Daily Worker in New York, told the committee he was informed by a Nazi who attended the meeting in the George Washington Hotel in New York, that Fish was present.

An immediate denial that Fish had attended any such meeting was entered by his secretary, Walter Reynolds. The Congressman himself was in New York today.

Reynolds said:

CHARGE RIDICULED

"This charge is ridiculous. Mr. Fish has publicly opposed many Hitler policies, particularly that of Jewish persecution."

Chairman Dickstein (Dem.), of New York, and Representaitves Crowe (Dem.), of Indiana, and Focht (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, who are conducting the hearing, halted Hathaway, the witness. Dickstein asked:

"Suppose Mr. Fish denies that he was present, could you have this man come before us to substantiate it?"

Hathaway had described his informant as a "Mr. Z" who holds a high position in the Nazi organization in New York and has been regularly supplying information to the Daily Worker. Hathaway replied:

"I can't make promises, but I think Mr. Z would come before you in a secret session.

SECRECY OPPOSED

Representative Focht broke in:

"You are accusing Mr. Fish, a colleague, and I am opposed to receiving any proof in secret."

Hathaway retorted:

"I have other documents showing that Fish engaged in Nazi propaganda."

Crowe interrupted to say that he did not like to see the name of a colleague "besmirched" and "there ought to be some way to have a public meeting."

Fish was chairman of the special House committee which investigated Communist propaganda in this country, and has been active in opposing Russian recognition.

German Criminals Face Sterilization

BERLIN, Nov. 15.—(15.)—Pending completion of the Nazi penal code the German cabinet passed several revolutionary laws yesterday, including one for sterilization for certain classes of criminals.

Habitual criminals will face the most drastic penalties. Intoxication will no longer be considered a mitigating circumstance for crime. Vivisection and cruelty toward animals are to be made punishable.

Captain Demoted As Own Request For Studies

Capt. Louis H. Buehl, Jr., of 5260 Center avenue, of Battery E, 107th Field Artillery, wanted to attend night classes at the University of Pittsburgh, but his duties were such that he found he wouldn't have time to study. So he asked the Department of Military Affairs at Harrisburg to demote him.

This is an unusual procedure in military lines, but the Department at Harrisburg got the idea, made him a first lieutenant and assigned him to the Second Battalion headquarters of the regiment as battalion adjutant.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

Today, the one day this week when there is no coming out party, the debs met at a luncheon Mrs. James Frazer Hillman, Shady avenue, gave this afternoon in the Pittsburgh Golf Club for her debutante niece, Margery Lee Hillman, daughter of the junior J. Hartwell Hillmans.

Perhaps it's the Christmas-card-weather we're having that inspired another deb to choose red—Margery was in a smart red afternoon gown. The hostess chose black velvet with white lace. Chrysanthemums and candles decorated the tables.

Sewickley Heights was breathtakingly beautiful yesterday afternoon—the hills snow-covered, red berries glistening on gray-black-hedgerows and the filigree silhouette of leafless trees against a crisp blue sky.

* * *

Betsy Liggett carried her father's gift bouquet at her debut yesterday. It was made up of white snapdragons, shading into ice-green, waxy jasmine, gardenias and for accent and to match her red dress—deep red African daisies.

The deb wore white kid gloves having a narrow ruffled cuff just above the wrist.

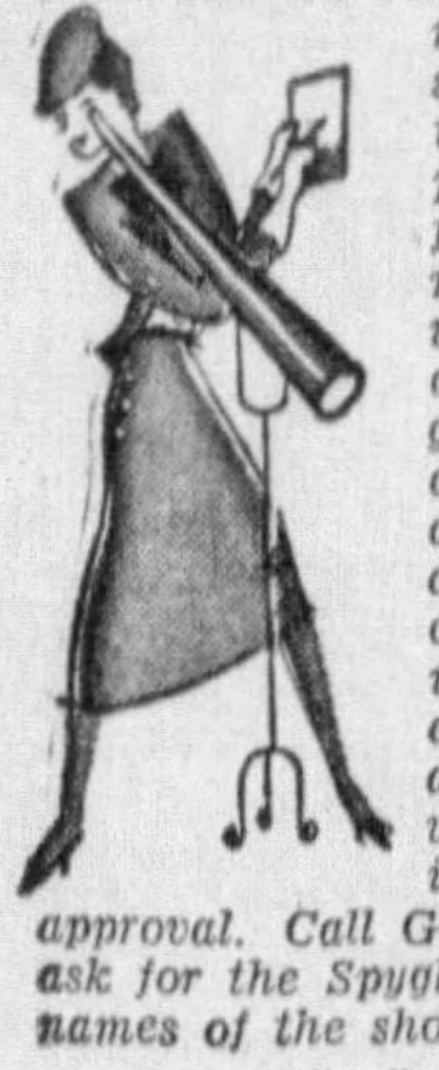
Through the Spyglass
Viewing the New



Little did we reck when we first took out our spyglass that we would be seeing such things as polka-dotted frogs . . . mincemeat with and without . . . and games which consist of a cross between archery and checkers! But we have . . . and are . . . and today's version is waiting for your approval. Call Grant 6500 and ask for the Spyglass to get the names of the shops.

* * *

Vanity cases have come and gone, but these have done the best job of bowling us over of any we've seen!

To begin with . . . no two of them are alike (which is something to make anyone turn enthusiast!) And they come in such shades as green, tan, brown, blue, black . . . many with the jars and bottles inside wearing matching lids. For there ARE bottles and jars . . . as many as 5 of them in some bags. And some of the bags with comb and place for cigaret case! And some even with two-tone powder puffs . . . .

In fact, we never saw such a selection of stunners for the price of $1.00! Suede cloth . . . leatherette . . . pigskin . . . and moire—with rubberized linings or silk ones . . . with zipper fastenings or snaps . . . and every one of them the "standup" variety which doesn't dump its contents whilst you are "doing" your face! Simply ideal for lugging 'round with you on all daytime occasions!

* * *

Now THIS little exposition is going to be a very doggy one. Being as how it's all about dogs (see how simple it is when you understand) . . . green and blue ones, too!

For one of the nicest little gifts we know about (thinking of Christmas) would be a nice fat red and blue pooch to sit on your sewing table and hold the spools of darning cotton for you. And there are seated bow-wows . . . standing bow-wows . . . and even dressed-up ones in this shop . . . ranging from 60c to $2.50, and ready to act in this capacity. (Also, a VERY intriguing Grandfather Frog in green velveteen.)

And even more of our four-footed friends! Little iron doggies, these, painted like real ones . . . costing 15c each . . . and ready to hold place-cards in their mouths if you want them to. A good way to get 'round the question of place cards AND favors!

* * *

To shed a little light on the subject (never mind WHAT subject) we suggest the new lamps we've seen for $1.98.

They're new . . . with large round glass bases (green or black) and have matching parchmentized shades, measuring 18 inches in diameter.

* * *

It's a game! . . . and we never expected to find ourselves flinging little darts at a checkerboard-gone-wrong!

Line up your party . . . give each of them a little improvised dart (the end of which is one of those suction rubber discs) and let them spend their energies throwing at this "checkerboard" to see who gets highest score! Gobs of fun . . . and saves your furniture lots of wear and tear when they begin to get rambunctious! For $1.00.

* * *

Shades of little Italy! We now discover that that onion soup for which you have all been asking is now to be had for only 15c the can . . . Hormel's, at that! A large can, too, containing 1 pound, 4 ounces of that deliciously smelly onion soup!!! . . . and wearing a receipe for it Au Gratin on its side.

And the same shop has big fat glass jars (2 lbs.) of mincemeat (with or without brandy) . . . the former for 50c, the latter for 40c. And fit to bake into the finest of fine pies. They SHOULD make two pies . . . unless your pies are abnormal ones.

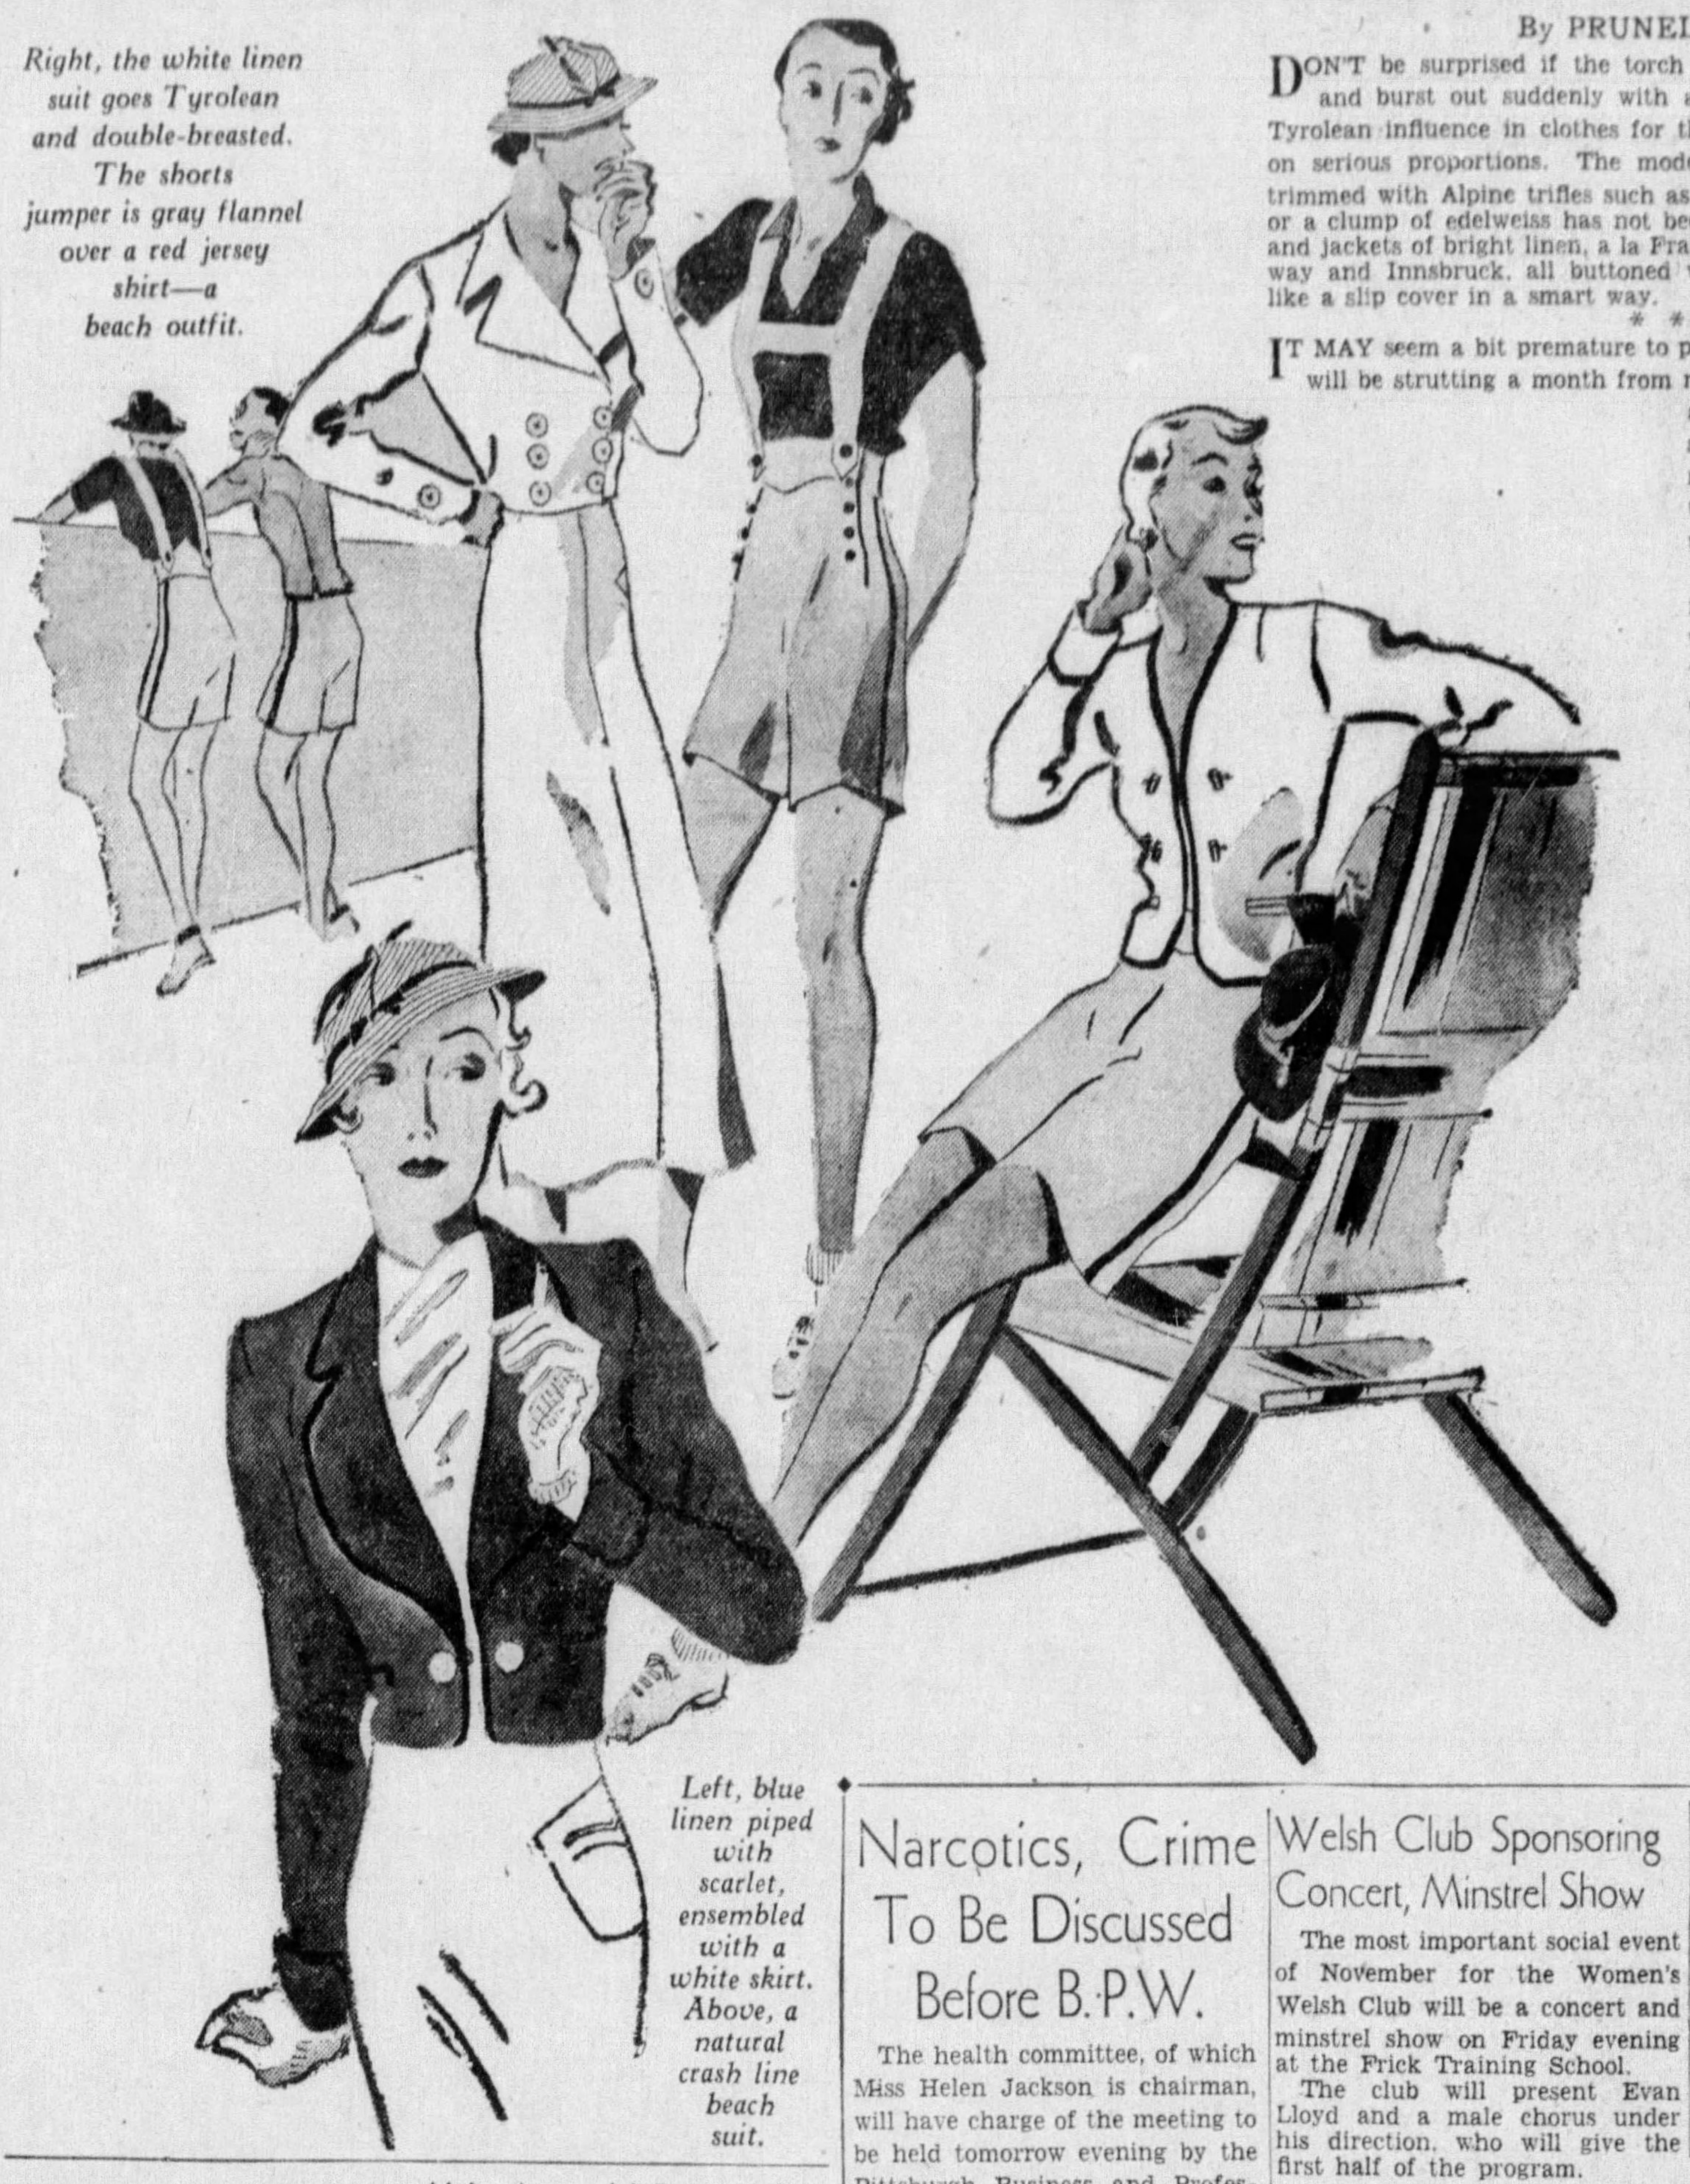
O-LE-O-LA-EE! A NEW BEACH STYLE NOTE



Right, the white linen suit goes Tyrolean and double-breasted. The shorts jumper is gray flannel over a red jersey shirt—a beach outfit.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

DON'T be surprised if the torch singers throttle their own songs and burst out suddenly with a resounding yodel or two. This Tyrolean influence in clothes for the American sports girl is taking on serious proportions. The modest beginning of a brimmed hat trimmed with Alpine trifles such as an eagle feather, a goat whisker, or a clump of edelweiss has not been enough. We are in for shorts and jackets of bright linen, a la Francis Lederer of Hollywood, Broadway and Innsbruck, all buttoned with wooden nickels and braided like a slip cover in a smart way.

* * *

IT MAY seem a bit premature to predict what the Southern beaches will be strutting a month from now, but the turn has been called and Tyrolean it is. They are swell, practical, becoming garments, calculated to show off a tan and to make frequent trips to the laundry without a tremor.

The coats have something of the impudence of bellhop jackets, which for some forgotten reason were "formal" in their last presensation to the woman who basks near the Gulf Stream.

A good swap, if you ask us—changing a pique dinner jacket into a linen knockabout jacket for sand or deck.

* * *

THE shorts with their braces to hold them on over colorful shirts offer new advantages in such garments as they can be built with a high waist that makes divided skirts more becoming to feminine figures. There isn't so much news in the hats provided for these suits. They cling to the somewhat clown shaped peak at the back of the crown, and retain likewise the rollicking brim which turns up in back and shoots down over half the brow and one cheek in front.

* * *

IF the girls follow out all the Alphine touches they well might, they will wear turned-down socks of fuzzy looking woollen beneath their leather sandals and go in for Rhine cape effects of spongey woolen for their beach robes. Alpenstocks by the seashore might be kind of silly, but a zither would certainly make sweet music on the strand.

HUSKERS' SPEED MAY PROVE UNDOING OF PANTHERS

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Nebraska Has Strong Subs. Able to Withstand Strain. Field Goal on Bounce.
◆
Yost's Start at Michigan. Fighter in Wrong Class. Buc Bosses Seek Hurler.

HUSKERS' SECOND TEAM OUTSCORES FIRST

Heinie Weisenbaugh

With an excellent second line and a flock of extra backs of rare quality, headed by the brilliant Heinie Weisenbaugh, Pitt's football team is well supplied with capable reserve material, but from all reports the Panthers will have no advantage over Nebraska in that respect in Saturday's game at the Stadium. Scouts have warned the Pitt coaches that it will be impossible to win by wearing the Huskers down, as Dana Bible's Big Six championship machine is better fortified in reserve strength than any other eleven the Panthers have met this year. As a matter of fact, the Scarlet and Cream second team has scored more points than the Husker first-stringers, and this is Nebraska's highest scoring season since Bible took over the reins.

Outstanding among the Husker reserves are the two second-team tackles—Russell (King Kong) Thompson, weighing 234 pounds, and Johnny Keriekedes, a senior who tips the beam at 251. Lee Penney's reserve at left end is John Roby, whose speed may be judged from the fact that he holds the Big Six championships in the 100-yard and 220-yard dashes.

SUBS COMPARE FAVORABLY WITH REGULARS

Glenn Justice, whose brother was a famous guard for Nebraska two years ago, has come along rapidly this fall. He is big and fast, weighing 180 pounds, and fits into the Bible system very nicely. At center, Bible has shifted a big sophomore, Ladad Hubka, over from a guard bench, and scouts report that, like the other substitutes, he compares favorably with the regular.

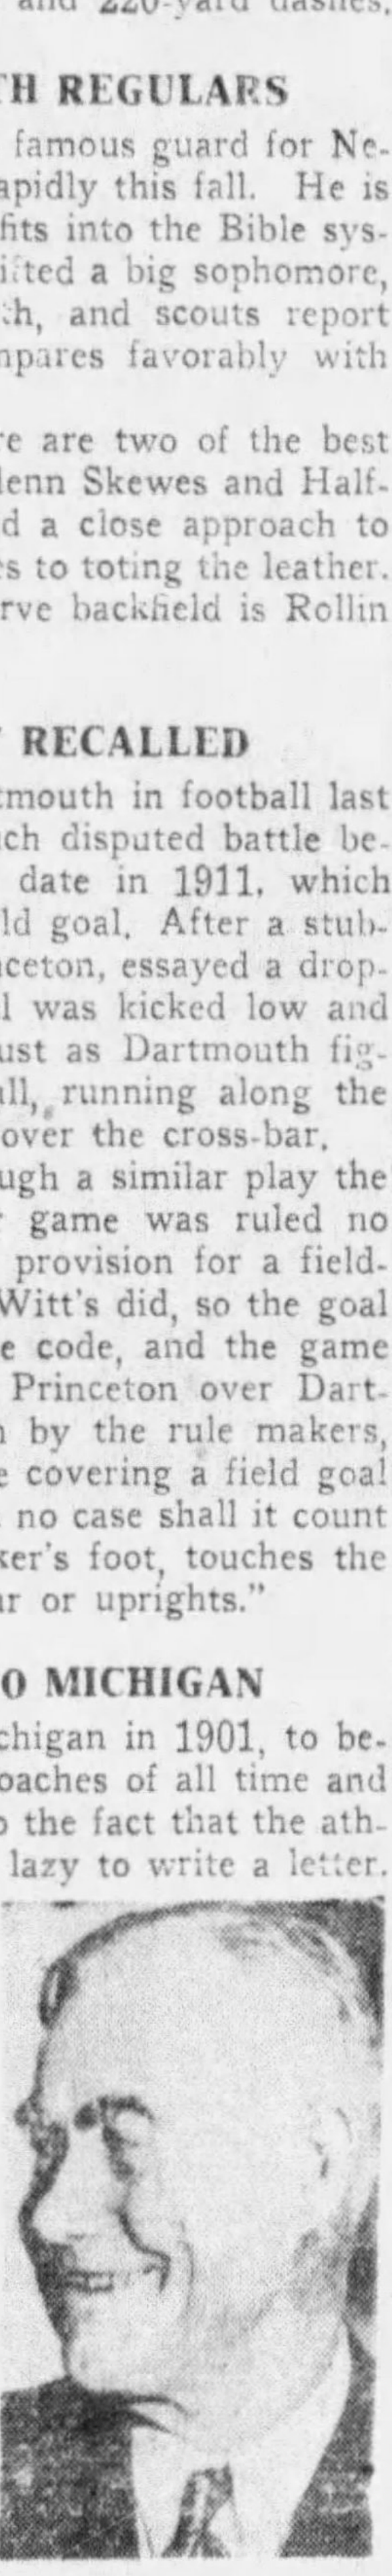
In the second team's backfield there are two of the best ball carriers on the squad in Fullback Glenn Skewes and Halfback Jerry LaNoue. The latter is rated a close approach to the famous Glenn Pressnell when it comes to toting the leather. Another serviceable member of the reserve backfield is Rollin Parsons, a veteran blocking back.

BOUNCING FIELD-GOAL VICTORY RECALLED

The meeting of Princeton and Dartmouth in football last Saturday led old grads to recall the much disputed battle between the same schools on the same date in 1911, which Princeton won, 3 to 0, on a freakish field goal. After a stubborn, scoreless struggle, DeWitt, of Princeton, essayed a drop-kick from the 35-yard line, but the ball was kicked low and bounded along the ground. However, just as Dartmouth figured itself to be out of danger, the ball, running along the ground, struck on its end and bounded over the cross-bar.

Officials allowed the field goal, though a similar play the same afternoon in the Exeter-Andover game was ruled no score. The rules at that time made no provision for a field-goal kick that struck the ground, as DeWitt's did, so the goal was not in violation of the letter of the code, and the game stands in the records as a victory for Princeton over Dartmouth. But the dispute brought action by the rule makers, and in the following year, 1912, the rule covering a field goal was amended to read, as it still does, "in no case shall it count a goal if the ball, after leaving the kicker's foot, touches the ground before passing over the cross bar or uprights."

HUFF'S LAZINESS SENDS YOST TO MICHIGAN



Fielding H. Yost

That Fielding H. Yost went to Michigan in 1901, to become one of the most famous football coaches of all time and to remain there ever since, was all due to the fact that the athletic director of another college was too lazy to write a letter. Charles Baird, the first athletic director on the Michigan payroll, recalled the circumstances while visiting in Ann Arbor and looking over Yost's modern offices. In the old days, he said, athletic directors didn't have swell offices, with secretaries, stenographers and all that. They had to write their own letters.

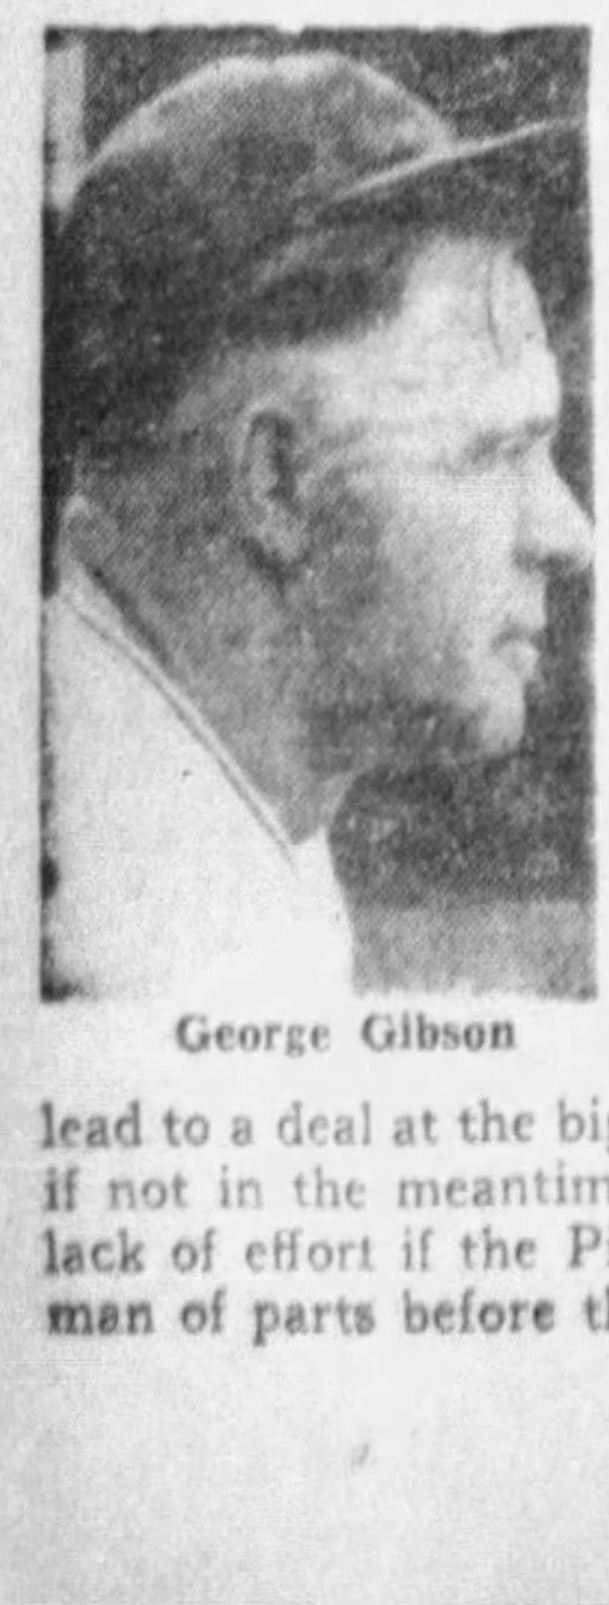
While in Chicago, arranging the Michigan baseball schedule for 1901, Baird met George Huff, then athletic director at the University of Illinois, and mentioned to him that Michigan was looking for a football coach, asking if he knew anyone who could fill the job. Huff replied that he had received a letter from "some young fellow named Fielding H. Yost," inquiring if he could be taken on at Illinois. The Illini boss added that he might be able to use Yost on some kind of job, but that it would be too much trouble to answer the letter. "Here, you take it and see if he will be any good to you," Huff concluded. Baird took the letter and wrote Yost, receiving in reply a book with Yost's football records in it. Keene Fitzpatrick and Baird looked the records over, and decided that perhaps the young fellow had some ability. They wrote him to come up and accepted him on the spot. Yost took charge of the 1901 team and has been one of football's biggest figures ever since.

WEIGHT MAY HAMPER ITALIAN FIGHTER

Genuine lightweights in this country appear to have nothing to fear from Cleto Locatelli, the Italian boxer who came over on the same ship with Joe Jacobs recently.

Locatelli, managed by Al Francis, is lightweight champion of Europe, but New York ring critics sized him up as looking big for a lightweight. Investigation disclosed that he can't be at his best under 140 pounds, which, as one observer remarks, goes also for many other fighters of the present day who are masquerading as lightweights.

MAY START PIRATE DEAL AS MINORS MEET



George Gibson

With baseball attention throughout the country centered on the annual convention of the minor leagues opening today in Galveston, Tex., Pittsburgh fans are interested particularly in the movements of President Bill Benswanger and Manager George Gibson, of the Pirates. There is no doubt that, while mingling with other major league men in attendance to watch the doings of the minors, the Buccaneer bosses will pour some trade talk into the ears of rival club heads owning players who might add strength to the local machine where it is needed most urgently.

That spot, of course, is the pitching department. At least one more seasoned and capable slabman is desired for regular starting duty, and even if they cannot succeed in landing such a man during the Galveston gabfest, the Corsair chiefs may be able to start something that will lead to a deal at the big league meetings in Chicago next month, if not in the meantime. At any rate, it won't be due to any lack of effort if the Pittsburgh club doesn't acquire a moundsman of parts before the winter is over.

DUKES MAY GET MIAMI GAME INVITATION

It may be the Dukes vs. Miami University's undefeated Hurricanes in Miami's "Rose Bowl" game New Year's Day, 1934. Leastways, indications today are pretty strong that way.

The Florida Rose Bowl feature was inaugurated last year, with Manhattan College, of New York City, coached by Chick Meehan, making the trip South and losing, 7 to 0, to the Miami eleven.

At present, Manhattan and Temple University, as well as the Dukes, are said to be under consideration for this year's game, with Temple on the outside due to what the Southern promoters deem excessive money demands. Temple has asked for a $10,000 guarantee.

Coach Elmer Layden, of the Dukes, who also serves the Bluffites as athletic director, said the school would give such an offer, if received, serious consideration, which is tantamount to saying it would be accepted.

After all, there is no reason why the Dukes should not increase their prestige further. They won eight games in a row this fall before losing to Pitt, and certainly it is no disgrace to bow to the Panthers.

W. VA. ALUMNI CONFAB SET

RIPLEY, W. Va., Nov. 15.—(AP.)—The 1933 record of West Virginia University's football team, once a major gridiron power, reads: "won 0, lost 5, tied 3," and as a natural reaction the "old grads" feel that something ought to be done about it.

So they've called a meeting of the alumni association for Thanksgiving morning at the University to discuss the situation, which means, says Mountaineer observers, that there'll be a lot of talk on what to do about the coach.

The coach is Earle (Greasy) Neale, veteran of many a gridiron war, onetime major league ball player, and target of much alumni fire this year. Neither Neale, nor Harry A. Stansbury, athletic director, is a W. Va. U. graduate. They've also been after Stansbury's scalp.

The meeting has been called by Judge Lewis H. Miller, president of the alumni, and he says that while he is entirely neutral, he feels there has been too much talk about the situation, and it's time for the grads to take some united action.

TARTANS PLAN CHANGE IN BACKFIELD

By JESS CARVER

Back in 1928, at just about this point of the season, too, Coach Jock Sutherland took a battered squad of Pitt footballers on the University's first invasion of Nebraska, playing the Cornhuskers in their own backyard in Lincoln.

The Panthers were light, in far from tip-top physical condition, and they'd been beaten twice, by West Virginia, 9-6, and by Tech, 6-0. They went out there to tackle a big, strong Husker eleven, a team boasting such stars as Blue Howell, McMillen, Munn and Sloan.

WERE AFTER REVENGE

To make matters worse, the year previous, one of the greatest elevens Nebraska ever produced and a team that apparently had everything in the way of weight and power, had been beaten here, 21 to 13, in one of the most thrilling football games ever seen in Pittsburgh.

Nebraska had that '28 game won before the Panthers even left Pittsburgh. When the squad arrived in Lincoln the day of the game, the Huskers had been installed 10 to 3 choices, and you could pick up as high as 18 points.

But the one thing that the Huskers, as a team, had lacked in '27 again was missing in 1928. That one absent quality was speed. As a result, and thanks to some great work by Mike Getto, Alec Fox, Chuck Tully, Joe Donchess and Honey Guarino, the Panthers held the Huskers to a scoreless tie, did not permit them a single first down and kept them inside their own 45-yard line all afternoon.

This year, as the Huskers come here, the situation may be just the reverse. Pitt's team is no setup, but it is not particularly fast. There are some speed boys included in its makeup, to be sure, but Nebraska, if its heroes are half as fast as they were last year at Lincoln (and they resembled a flock of Paddocks then) will outspeed the Panthers.

BIG MEN OUT

The reign of the big, slow Huskers came to an end with the advent of Coach Dana Bible's regime. He likes 'em light and fast; able to get out of their own (to say nothing of their teammates') road.

For example, the Nebraska guards, Bishop (and what a swell little footbal' this lad is, too) and DeBus weigh only 332 pounds between them. Bishop tips the beam at 161 and DeBus is 1

Still undefeated and untied in the East are Army and Princeton. Princeton's margin in some of its games has been slim, but still definite enough. Last Saturday the Tiger had perhaps the closest call when Dartmouth pressed them all the way.

Army against Harvard had little trouble, and won by a comfortable margin. I believe this Cadet team is by far the class of the East. This team has unlimited power and a fine attack.

In Jack Buckler the Army has one of the most brilliant backs of the year. This boy runs, passes and kicks with the best. His ability to throw running forward passes is uncanny, and they are the hardest to defend against. When Buckler starts wide the defense does not know whether it is to be a pass or a run. If the secondary comes up to stop the run, he will pass with deadly accuracy; if they stay back to stop a pass he will run with tremendous speed and power. Here is an outstanding choice for all-America. With him in the game I don't believe the Army can be beaten.

DUQUESNE PRAISED

Little Duquesne, which has been traveling along so well, met its match in Pittsburgh and has joined the defeated aggregations. This team has been valient all season, and deserves the greatest praise for its fine record. A defeat at the hands of a team like Pittsburgh is no disgrace, and it probably will be the only one that Duquesne will experience this season.

This week-end we again have some outstanding games, games that will settle time-honored rivalries. There are few games that will have any bearing on the championship of the East, but they will be games of intense spirit and enthusiasm.

NEBRASKA FAVORED

Nebraska comes East to tackle Pittsburgh, and I believe the Steel City lads have one of their hardest battles of the season on their hands. The Cornhuskers are plenty big, and have the tricks and power to do a good job. The western teams seem to be inspired when they play the effete Easterners, and no doubt will play one of their best games. If they do, Nebraska will win.

Dartmouth and Cornell, rivals for years, are to meet. Each team has had a disappointing season, but I will wager that this game will be one of the best of the day. For both it is extremely important to win, for a win will help plenty in an otherwise drab season. Dartmouth has been knocking at the door of victory week after week, and just failing. This will see its return to the winning column, I believe.

Princeton, undefeated, tackles Navy. The Midshipmen will make this a hard game, but the Tigers will get away with it. Columbia, victor over the Navy, and again back in stride, should take Lafayette.

HUSKERS' SPEED WORRIES PITT

pounds heavier. Gale O'Brien, the right tackle, is the heaviest man in the regular lineup, and he only goes about 210.

The Nebraska line will average 178.5 pounds, the backfield 183.5 and the team 180, which will be considerably under the weight of the Panthers.

Coach Sutherland yesterday made a shift on his line and he sought to strengthen the defense in recognition of the power of the 'Husker attack. Bob Timmons, North Side lad, was placed at left end in place of Harvey Rooker. With George Sauer, the 195-pound fullback, running at off and usually around the ends from a short punt formation, the Pitt terminals will have to be in the o' ' Pink Sat'day.

SNOW HAMPERS DRILLS

The drills at Pitt and Tech both were curtailed and hampered by the cold and snow yesterday. Over at Tech, where Coach Harpster is whipping his Skibos into shape for their breather with Georgetown, at Washington, this week, a couple backfield shifts were hinted.

If the changes are made, Owen Bowser, a sophomore, will start at halfback, and Johnny Sayles will go at fullback. Bowser is plenty fast, and if the gridiron at Washington is dry, the youngster will get his chance. He'll be paired with Dutch Vorderburg and Charley Spisak will again run the team from quarterback.

Despite Georgetown's poor showing to date, the Techs are not going to take any chances. A wet and soggy field won't help the none too potent Tech attack in any case, and an aroused Hoys defense will add to the difficulties of the situation.

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 15.—(AP.) — Paul Runyan, smallest man in top flight golf, and the tall, scholarly-looking Willie MacFarlane teamed yesterday to whip par decisively over the long No. 2 course of Pinehurst Country Club and win top money in the pro-best-ball event, opening the mid-South open golf tournament.

The White Plains pro and the big Scot from Tuckahoe, N. Y., scored a sensational 64 after a good 68 in the morning for a 36-hole total of 132, three strokes better than that of the next best pair, Dixon Barron, Port Chester, N. Y., and Tom Creavy, Albany, N. Y.

RUTH EXPECTS TO PLAY 100 GAMES IN '34

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Babe Ruth, baseball's greatest figure, was in Pittsburgh for a short stopover visit late last night, en route from Hawaii to New York City. Accompanying the home run king were Mrs. Ruth and their daughter, Dorothy, who journeyed with Ruth to the island possession, where Babe performed in his favorite role in a series of games a short time after the World Series ended.

Babe stepped off a Pennsylvania train into a wintry blast and despite his pronounced shivers, appeared to be as fit as a fiddle. As he pushed his head out of a cozy Pullman car he blurted:

"B-r-r-r-r! That's walking into a fast one! Just a couple of days ago I was sitting in the hot sun of Los Angeles watching Stanford beat Southern Cal. The thermometer was up in the 90's and here I am now right in the middle of a blizzard."

FAMILY INDISPOSED

Mrs. Ruth and here daughter were indisposed as a result of the long journey. Quoth Babe:

"The ocean trip was rough and it knocked them both out. And besides, we have averaged 347 miles a day for the past 35 days."

Would Babe be a manager soon?

"Well, now that's a hard one to answer. You can say that I'm in a receptive mood, but right now I have not an idea as where I will be. However, I will tell you one thing—I am not going to play until I fall over. I've got things fixed financially so I won't have to do that. Still I love the old game and I desire to stay in it in some capacity.

Were his legs bothering him?

"Not right now they aren't, but the strain of playing every day is great. Maybe I can knock off about 100 games next year without hurting myself, but the legs are not what they were, and I repeat, I am not going to fall over out there."

What did he think of the world series?

ASKS ABOUT DUKES

"It was a good series, and the Giants are a fine ball club. The Senators had a run of tough breaks, but that's the way things go in baseball.

"Hey, let's talk football a little. Now I'm going to ask you one. Where in heck is this Duquesne University that's been knocking off everybody? I was asked that a dozen times or more in the West and I could not give a satisfactory answer, although I figured it was around Pittsburgh. They surely have the fans talking. When I got the result of their battle with Pitt I knew they must be good.

The Bambino enjoyed the Stanford-Southern Cal. game immensely. He and his wife and daughter sat in a box with ex-President and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, together with the presidents of the college engaged on the gridiron. Ruth said:

"Stanford deserved to win that game, for it outplayed the Los Angeles boys through the last three quarters. I was glad to see Corbus kick those winning points, because it was his fumble that opened the way for the Trojan touchdown."

Ruth expects to attend the winter baseball meeting in New York and he will then head for Florida.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Many former Pitt stars will strut their stuff at the football dance to be given by the Odontological Society of Western Pennsylvania tonight in the William Penn Hotel, where the Odonts (dentists to you) are holding a three-day convention . . . Coach Jock Sutherland will be there, as will be his pal, Dr. William D. McClelland, Lou McMasters, famous basketball and track star of more than a decade ago; Homer Rowe, Joe Matson, Nick Colonna, Andy Cutler and a flock of others.

Al Quail and Red Davison, amateur boxers, are stars of the Brookline Merchants football team, and Harry McCurdy, the former Carnegie Tech player, is the quarterback . . . The Merchants play Doc McClelland's Knapils, of Arlington Heights, at Arlington Park next Sunday afternoon . . . The name of Roy Schooley, who has just died, was synonymous with hockey in the United States . . . Christy Walsh interviews Dana Bible, the Nebraska coach, over a network from WJAS Friday night . . . It is one of the All-America Board of Football programs heard weekly.

The Holy Cross scout who looked over the University of Detroit as it defeated Marquette, 22-6, went back home with the good news that his team would beat the Titans by seven touchdowns . . . He was just 11 touchdowns out of line, for when it was over, Detroit had won, 24-0, and this is the same Detroit team which lost, 14-0, to Duquesne here . . . With that seven-day ice skating race coming into Duquesne Garden and the wrestlers and box lacrosse reported due at Motor Square Garden, and the fight game on the fritz, and hockey out, Pittsburgh won't be the same thing this fall and winter . . . Just another New Deal for the folks.—HARRY KECK.

County Floor Loop Opens November 29

On Thanksgiving night, Wilmerding Y, last year's champion, meets the Lawrenceville Merchants at Forester Hall, and the Willigs, of McKeesport, take on the Y. M. H. A. club on the latter's floor.

REFEREE PROTESTED

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(INS.)—The New York Americans, of the National Hockey League, have lodged a protest against Referee George Mallinson with Frank Patrick, new managing director of the league. The Americans today accused Mallinson of flagrant disregard of the rules, and asked Patrick to keep him out of New York.

ANOTHER PRO LOOP PLANNED

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Nov. 15.—(AP.) — Professional football took a full stride forward with announcement here of almost full-grown plans for the organization of an American League patterned after the National Professional Football circuit.

The announcement by S. A. Godman, owner of the Memphis Tigers and a pioneer in Dixie professional pigskin activities, came as the culmination of a movement initially launched last January among representatives of interested cities looking to the formation of such a loop.

The new league, as its model, would be divided into Eastern and Western circuits, with Charlotte and Memphis as headquarters.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Freddie Miller, of Cincinnati, recognized by the National Boxing Association as world featherweight champion, outpointed Lew Feldman, of Brooklyn, in a non-title bout at the Ridgewood Grove arena last night. Miller weighed 127¾ pounds; Feldman, 130½.

CARDINALS GET DAVIS, DELKER FOR WILSON

GALVESTON, Tex., Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Branch Rickey, vice president of the St. Louis Cardinals, announced today that his club had traded Jimmy Wilson, catcher, to the Philadelphia National League club for Virgil Davis, catcher, and Clarence Delker, infielder.

Rickey declined to say whether there was a cash consideration.

Wilson, who formerly caught with Philadelphia, played in 113 games last year and batted .256. Davis played in 141 games and batted .349. Both Davis and Delker formerly played with the Cards.

Wilson had been mentioned previously as the probable manager of the Cincinnati Reds.

Manager Frankie Frish, of the Cards, last season sent Wilson home a week before the season ended. Wilson said he did not know the reason.

Tom Turner, president of the Portland club, confirmed the report that Portland had sold Henry Prince Oana, Hawaiian outfielder, to the Phillies for players and a cash consideration. Oana led the Coast League last year in extra-base hits and runs batted in.

Portland also traded Second Baseman John Monroe to Albany for Infielder Frank Packard.

No price was divulged. The Giants purchased James from Dallas, of the Texas League, last year.

Over this sill he must have clambered. He tip-toed here. WHY? His hand fluttered over the top of this chair as he slipped smoothly into a wardrobe. WHY? THREE GRID RACES IN DOUBT

RAMSAY TITLE CLAIM MAY BE QUESTIONED

By JULIUS LEVIN

The race for the class A championship concluded with Scott High, of North Bradock, crowned titleholder, the major portion of interest in the scholastic football campaign now centers on the fights for the City League, class AA and class B crowns.

The City League championship will be determined Friday afternoon when Peabody, champion of Section I, opposes South Hills, champion of Section II, at Forbes Field for the right to ascend the throne vacated by Perry High School, 1932 titleholder.

New Castle High School, co-champion in class AA in 1932 along with McKeesport and Jeannette, has concluded its double A campaign with a string of four victories and is eagerly watching what Greensburg and Jeannette, also undefeated this season, do in their remaining class AA engagements. The worst New Castle can get out of the championship race is a deadlock as Greensburg must meet Jeannette in its final contest.

FOUR GAMES SATURDAY

Tied with New Castle for first place with four victories and no defeats, Greensburg has a chance to score its fifth class AA victory Saturday at the expense of Williamsburg. At the same time, Jeannette will be striving for its fourth class AA conquest by engaging Washington at Jeannette. Turtle Creek plays at Norwin and New Kensington at Clairton in the remaining two class AA engagements.

The race for the class B championship remains unchanged with East Pittsburgh, Ramsay High, of Mt. Pleasant, and East Huntingdon the sole survivors as the teams near the close of the season.

East Pittsburgh sets the pace with six victories over class B opponents, East Huntingdon is second with five triumphs and Ramsey third with three victories. East Pittsburgh is idle this week-end, while East Huntingdon and Ramsay play teams not involved in the championship fight. Derry Borough is at Ramsay, while Dunbar Township plays at East Huntingdon.

RAMSAY CHECKED

Ramsay High School saw its winning streak shattered by a class A team last Saturday when Canonsburg scored an 8-0 victory over Ned Culler's boys.

While it escaped elimination in this game, Ramsay faces a new difficulty as its schedule does not show sufficient games with class B opponents. The rules call for five games with class opponents, and Ramsay's schedule reavels only four in Ligonier, Youngwood, Leechburg and East Huntingdon.

The football committee, however, may make some allowances for the game with Derry Boro this week, although Derry's admittance as a class B member does not go into force until the basketball campaign. Ramsay boasts one of the best records of the three schools involved in the title race, its list of victories including class A schools as well as a tie with Greensburg, which shares first place in class AA.

Elmer Carroll, chairman of the W. P. I. A. L., is of the opinion that Ramsay should be given full consideration despite its failure to play the required number of opponents.

The trophy committee of the W. P. I. A. L. adopted the official emblem of the league at a meeting held yesterday in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

FIVE P. V. A. C. BOXERS WIN

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 15.—Five of the eight survivors of the eliminations, for Fayette, Westmoreland, Greene, Washington and Somerset counties, which were completed at Gallatin Gardens, here, last night, wore the colors of the Pleasant Valley A. C., of New Salem, thus giving that club a heavy representation for the finals of the Western Pennsylvania amateur boxing tournament, scheduled for Pittsburgh next month.

Johnny Giachetti, in the 118-pound class; William Eley, at 135 pounds; Roy Chaplan, 147-pounder; William Wassell, 160-pound class, and George Bittner, 175-pound star, were the P. V. C. A. boxers to emerge from the two nights of action with titles.

Gene Augulek scored two knockouts last night to win the crown at 112 pounds; Sammy Angott, of the Tucker A. C., Washington, Pa., won the 126-pound crown and Pete Landini, of West Newton, took the heavyweight toga. Last night's summary:

SEMI-FINAL ROUND

118-pound class — Johnny Giachetti knocked out Joe Jankowski, first round.

112-pound class—Gene Augulek knocked out Joe Perrotte, first round.

147-pound class—Roy Chaplan knocked out Joe Robinson, first round.

135-pound class—William Eley defeated Tip Davis.

FINAL ROUND

118-pound class — Johnny Giachetti knocked out Johnny Berchek, first round.

'Harp' Visits Pros, Finds Them Gentlemanly Crew

By Howard Harpster

Carnegie Tech Football Coach: All-America Quarterback, 1928.

Between the halves of the professional football game at Forbes Field last Sunday between the Pirates and the Brooklyn Dodgers, I visited the Brooklyn dressing room, along with Al Irwin, of Tech, to renew acquaintance with Saul Mielziner and John Karcis, former teammates at Tech, now with the Dodgers.

It was three years since I had last seen Mielziner, but the only noticeable change in the big fellow was that, instead of weighing 230 pounds, as he did when playing at Tech, he now weighs more than 250 pounds. Karcis, on the other hand, was weighing 240 when the training camp started this fall and now is down to 215. And if you think these two fellows are big, you should take a rear or side view of the young man who alternates with Sol at right tackle, Mr. Ely, by name, who weighs more than 275 pounds. Ely was on the injured list and didn't appear against the local team.

PRAISES SHIPWRECK

Had a short talk with the owner of the Brooklyn team, Shipwreck Kelly, and he was still burning up over the 3-3 tie game which was played between the same teams a week before in Brooklyn. He explained that his team got three points early in the game and then, instead of fighting on for more scores, seemed content to protect the lead and play safe. When Pittsburgh tied the score with a field goal on the final play of the game it was a tough blow to Kelly's team, because it was evident that had a different style of play been used Brooklyn could have won. This was borne out by the 32-0 victory here Sunday.

Kelly, who is very wealthy in his own right, is one of the greatest ball carriers I have ever watched. Football is his hobby and it was his great love for the game that prompted him to buy the Brooklyn team. Mielziner says he never has seen a more reckless player than the Brooklyn speedster. Shipwreck will take any kind of a chance and is absolutely fearless, and, according to Saul, runs with "reckless abandon."

I met Chris Cagle, former Army great, for the first time Sunday, and he impressed me as being a quiet, unassuming, good-natured fellow, who was just as much interested in Brooklyn's success as Kelly. Cagle is part owner of the club.

PLAYERS GENTLEMANLY

The players sat around quietly, waiting for the second half to get under way. There was no commotion and very little conversation, and, just before going onto the field for the second half, the coach gathered the starting team about him and quietly pointed out mistakes in the first two quarters and gave instructions for the final half.

It was my first closeup of a professional team, and it was one that was composed of many former headline players. Yet these former stars were all working together, and no one tried to impress anyone else with his importance. There were no boisterous outbreaks and I didn't hear a single word of profanity.

In the old days, the tougher the player was the better his reputation as a professional player. Today such is not the case, for most professional players are college graduates, and, instead of being the rowdy type, they are gentlemen.

SWEDISH ARMY RIDERS WIN

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The National Horse Show's Golden Jubilee, most successful of a long string of great exhibitions, was history today, but horsemen, from owners to stable hands, were still discussing the remarkable exhibition of horsemanship shown by the Swedish army officers in winning the international military team championship.

Given only an outside chance in a field that included the proven teams from the United States, the Irish Free State and Canada, the trio of Swedish army officers last night rode out before a capacity crowd of 15,000 in Madison Square Garden and gave three perfect performances — a feat seldom seen in the show ring.

U. S. TEAM SECOND

Paced by the Crown Prince's Aida, ridden by Capt. Ernst Hallberg, the Swedes took possession of the trophy won the last two years by the United States. In face of the invaders' perfect score, the United States team from Fort Riley, Kan., was forced back to second place, being charged with four faults, all of which were made by Ugly, a half-breed, ridden by Lieut. C. W. Raguse. The other two American horses, Tanbark, with Lieut. E. F. Thomson up, and Avocat, handled by Maj. John Tupper Cole, turned in clean performances.

Sweden's victory was the new team champions' second triumph of the show, but still left them trailing Ireland and the United States in the number of blue ribbons won in military events. The Irish and Americans accounted for three each, while the Canadian army picked up two and the Czechoslovakians appearing in the show for the first time, one.

PENNSYLVANIA MAN LEADS

With Mountain Echo winning the three-gaited championship for horses under 15.2 hands for the second straight year, Col. W. H. Henderson, of Eatontown, Pa., was the ranking winner among the civilians. The master of Jane's Place carried home seven blue ribbons.

Prince H, owned and exhibited by Mrs. Simon T. Patterson, of Pittsburgh, took third place in the champion hunter ($1,000 sweepstakes).

GREAT SOCCER DUEL LOOMS

By TOM BIRKS

Taking last Sunday's form as a criterion, there is every reason to feel that the fans are going to see a real battle next Sunday when the Heidelberg and the Morgan elevens clash in the National challenge soccer cup competition.

Both teams flashed brilliant defenses in Dante Villani and Dave Matthews, and Kuten and Bobish last week, and the coming battle depends upon the ability of these sterling defenders to keep their lines intact.

Morgan will have the edge with more experienced veterans in the lineup. Villani and Matthews have been playing for many years, and know all of the tricks that a successful defender should know. Villani wore the Green and Gold when Heidelberg was the home of the national amateur champions, and Dante has received many offers to go east and turn professional.

Johnny McCosky could not get the Heidelberg line working last Sunday. The defenses were too powerful for the attacks. It is no secret that Morgan has been looking for a center forward to work along with Zinger.

A lot of competitive soccer is on for the day. The first round games for the Western Pennsylvania senior and junior championships are scheduled, together with many league games. The best game in the senior cup race finds Old Carnegie playing at Gallatin.

ALABAMA, DUKE, GEORGIA FACE STIFF TESTS

ALEXANDER'S CHOICES

W. & L. over Centre.
Georgia Tech over Alabama.
Georgia over Auburn.
Duke over North Carolina.
Tulane over Kentucky.
Vanderbilt over Tennessee.
Louisiana State over Mississippi.

By W. A. (BILL) ALEXANDER

Member, All-America Board of Football. (Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)

The Big Three in Southern football last Saturday again swept all opposition before them! Georgia scored an impressive 7-to-0 victory over Yale, and Alabama and Duke won as they pleased over V. P. I. and Maryland by scores of 27-to-0 and 38-to-7.

Bill Alexander

It indeed is a pity that none of the three meet in the remaining games. The Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets meet all three of these teams in a row, and must expect a bad afternoon from at least two of them. The dope, of course, indicates that Georgia, Duke and Alabama all are far superior to Georgia Tech, but the followers of the Gold and White have taken hope after Tech's impressive 19-to-7 victory over Florida.

The Auburn Tigers may give Georgia a hard afternoon next Saturday, as they have latent possibilities that have never been realized this season. Georgia should win, but the Tigers have a chance.

Duke meets North Carolina Saturday, and should win handily. The North Carolina team has come far this season under the excellent coaching of Chuck Collins, but Duke has too many big guns to be denied in this game.

OLD RIVALS CLASH

Alabama and Georgia Tech tie up in a blood-and-thunder battle that should prove one of the best games of the season. For years the Tech-Alabama battles have developed into knock-down, drag-out games that are not decided until the final whistle blows. The games are clean, but hard; very hard. Alabama again has the man power to win, but the Yellow Jackets are always lucky against Alabama, and have a slim chance to eke out a victory.

The Vandy-Tennessee game next Saturday will be the game in the Southland. Both scored impressive wins last week. Tennessee was particularly impressive in downing the strong Mississippi University team, 35 to 6. Vandy won as it pleased from Sewanee with a number of second-string men in the lineup, 27 to 14.

VANDERBILT IMPROVED

The Vandy team is made up of big ruggegd sophomores who have improved from week to week. They are strong defensively, and are developing power in an offensive way. They have a good chance to defeat Tennessee in spite of the great Feathers: Tennessee's super halfback. This game is a toss-up.

The Louisiana State-Mississippi game is another good one, with Louisiana State doped to win by a close score. Tulane will be too strong for Kentucky. Virginia should take Polytechnic Institute, and Washington and Lee will beat Centre.

CHILLYSAUCE

By Charles J. Doyle

Though he is a native of Canada, George Gibson, Pirate pilot, seems not to have missed the snows as he spends the off season with his daughter's family near San Antonio, Tex. Answering a note from this column, Gibby says:

"We have had a wonderful visit down here. The weather has been ideal—almost too warm. Wish I could have had Honus down, as he would enjoy the marvelous fishing. Had a catch the other day of eight bass, the lightest of which was two pounds, with the other up to five. Deer is plentiful, but I am sorry to say I will not get a chance to try my luck, as the season does not open until the fifteenth. I would like to get a crack at these Texas deer."

Gibby joined Bill Benswanger today in Galveston, where the minor league meeting got under way. Big George and Little Bill will attempt a few huddles involving other major league magnates with a view of negotiating a trade or two. The two Pittsburghers expect to attend the major league meetings scheduled for the second week of December in Chicago.

Gibson has high hopes that his catching worries will be ironed out by a young man named Art Veltman, recently purchased by the Buccos from the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast League. A converted outfielder, Veltman was a standout receiver in the faraway loop during the past season. He took part in 144 games, went to bat 500 times and made no less than 166 hits for an average of .332.

Art is a righthand hitter. Only a few years ago he was trying to crash the National portals with a finger mitt, but apparently there was something lacking as regards the ball hawk role and Veltman eventually essayed to do his stuff with the big glove and mask. Included among his hits were 12 home runs and 30 doubles. If he made any of his round-trippers in the Oakland park he was hitting them a "fur distance" as the farmer lad said.

A big assist will be credited Big Bill Hinchman, provided Art makes the major league grade as a catcher. Bill does not go into ecstasies over the budding gems, and he did not put Veltman on the loud speakers; yet Hinchman has given the lad his O. K., and that is quite a stamp, ladies and gentlemen, for Bill does not pick many bloomers. However, it would not be wise to expect him to bat around .330 in the big show. The Coast League is quite notorious for padding the old batting average.

Fight Results

At New York—Freddie Miller, N. B. A. featherweight champion, defeated Lew Feldman, 10 rounds (non-title bout); Wesley Ramey defeated Billy Hogan, rounds; Danny Rosen and Johnny DeFoe drew, 6 rounds; Johnny Bonito defeated Patsy La Rocco, 8 rounds; Charley Hodson knocked out Casper La Rosa, 4 rounds.

At Galveston—Frankie Hughes defeated Kid Wolfe, 10 rounds.

At San Jose—Claude Capley defeated Tony Curro, 10 rounds.

At Pottsville, Pa. — Johnny Greycar knocked out Gene Michaelent, 2 rounds; John Martin won by a technical knockout over Tommy Scavo, 2 rounds; Johnny Sayers defeated Rex Fallobell, 4 rounds; Frankie Pitts knocked out Paul Davis, 1 round; Andy Polischeck defeated Vic Ford, 4 rounds.

At Alexandria, Va. — Varias Milling knocked out Eddie Burl, 3 rounds.

PLAYOFF PLAN MAY LOSE

GALVESTON, Tex., Nov. 15.—(AP.)—The Shaughnessy plan of post-season playoffs among the four first division clubs, last season's innovation in determining league championships, will be tried again next year by the Texas League.

Texas League club owners voted yesterday to retain the system notwithstanding criticism that had been leveled against it from many quarters.

The action was of particular interest because it was taken only a day before a meeting of the International League, at which club owners of that circuit likely will discuss the widely-debated plan.

Warren Giles, president of the Rochester club and vice president of the International League, voiced opinion the Class AA organization would discard the system before the start of a new season and probably substitute a split season with the winner of the first half playing the second half leader. He added, however, it was unlikely denite action would be taken at today's session.

George Oakley, president of the Toronto club, expressed belief the northern division clubs, with exception of Rochester, would ask for continuance of plan.

George Weiss, president of the Newark club, said he was opposed to the plan and expressed hope the necessary three votes to prevent its retention would be obtained.

GARDEN PLANS MIAMI BOUTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Along with reports of industrial progress under the NRA comes boxing's infallible contribution to the signs of better times—Madison Square Garden has about decided to promote another winter heavyweight fight in Miami, Fla.

Jimmy Johnston, the man in the iron hat who rouns boxing for the Garden, is anything but reticent. He said:

"We're receiving fine reports from Florida. Business is much better. Believe me, there's a lot more people getting dough together right now than there was a year ago and I wish I could get my hands on some."

The Garden's plan, grammatically speaking, is to have Primo Carnera defend his heavyweight title late in February against either Jack Sharkey, Don McCorkindale or King Levinsky in the Miami Bowl.

Carnera, who defended his title against Paulino Uzcudun in Rome several weeks ago, will return here in January and is under contract with the Garden for two matches.

KELLY ANNEXES CUE CROWN

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 15.—(AP.)—George Kelly, 32-year-old Philadelphian, is national pocket billiard champion.

The red-headed Irishman captured the first national tourney last night by defeating William Mosconi, Philadelphia youngster, 125 to 98 in 29 innings.

The championship match between Kelly and Mosconi resulted when both defeated Charles Seaback, Astoria, N. Y., in play-off games, which were necessary when all three were tied for first place at the conclusion of tourney play Monday night.

In addition to winning the championship, Kelly copped all honors in the tourney, as well as setting a tourney record high run of 125. He had the best game, two innings; high total points, 1,098; least number of innings, 140, and best grand average, 7.84.

Rox, Morgans Play At Forbes Field

Forbes Field has been engaged for a game between the Rox Rangers, of McKees Rocks, and the Scott Morgans, of Homewood, which may decide the championship of Division A, Section 1 in the local lightweight sandlot football next Sunday.

The Rangers are leading the race with only two more games to play after this second meeting with the Morgans, while three more games remain in the latter team's card.

The first meeting between the teams last month, resulted in a 3-0 victory for the Rangers.

Skating Marathon Plans Announced

Announcement is made today that the seven-day ice skating marathon which gets under way following the regular skating session at Duquesne Garden next Saturday night, will not interfere at any time with the regular skating periods. The racing will be continuous, but will be done on a track outside the pleasure skating surface.

Sprints will not be held while patrons are on the ice. There will be three of these daily, at 2:30 and 8 p. m., and midnight.

LOGIC LACKING IN INFLATION EXPERIMENTS

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—It is apparent that a good many people believe in the "devaluation" of the dollar, inflation, and some "management" of the currency for the purpose of stabilizing prices.

It should at least be recognized there are different means of attempting to do them. Many methods may be tried. Some would be more reasonable than others.

So, without at this time taking any stand as to the merits of the things themselves, I would like to point out that much of the method and technique now used or proposed in our inflationary experiments is not logical.

GOLD OVERSTRESSED

First, there is overemphasis of the relation between gold and the average of commodity prices.

It seems queer that we should begin by belittling gold; abandoning the gold standard and arguing for paper money or silver; and then turn around and base our whole price-lifting policy on a manipulation of the gold basis of money!

This is what we are doing when we tinker with the price of gold and aim at a devaluation in terms of gold. Furthermore, those who look forward to stabilizing "the price level" by adjusting the size of the gold dollar are strongly emphasizing the importance of gold.

Two criticisms are important: one is that gold is not, and cannot be, the controlling factor in determining prices. The greater part of our business is transacted by check and in terms of credit. And the velocity of circulation and the volume of business are very important in making prices.

The other criticism is that we are now off gold! Nobody can have gold money. It does not even function in foreign trade. So it is now doubly futile to attempt to control prices by doing things to a non-existent gold dollar.

Second, there is much loose talk of "the general price level," as though it were a definite thing which had some precise meaning for you and me.

PRICE INTEREST DIVERSE

The only level of prices we know is an average of 784 commodities in wholesale markets. Any one commodity, such as copper or rubber, may strongly affect the whole average.

Furthermore, no one of us is interested in all these commodities, but some of us are concerned with one group and some with another. Anyhow, most of us are not interested in wholesale prices.

And we should note that wages and the price of "services" are not included.

Thus there is no reality in the so-called general price level. It is just an average of a selected list of wholesale commodities.

Suppose we did get the "price level" back to where it was in 1926. Would that mean that prices would be the same as then? Certainly not.

The same average might be arrived at by forcing the prices of tin, silver, wool and hides much above their 1926 quotation, while copper, cotton, beef and eggs remained considerably lower.

As a matter of fact, the farmers don't want 1926 prices. They want 1931 prices, which would be more favorable to them.

You see each of us produces some particular commodity, and each of us consumes a certain list of commodities. We have different interests. The average of prices may be the same in two periods, but in one most manufactured products may be high and farm products low, while in the other the thing may be reversed.

NO GENERL LEVEL

We can't equalize things by aiming at some unreal "general level of prices."

So, if we are to inflate, I say that we should do something realistic. We are off gold, so real inflation must come through paper.

As a practical matter, there is no such thing as a general level of prices, so all we can do is to cheapen the paper dollar and thus start prices in an upward direction. That is what inflationists really want.

AYRES DECRIES STRIKE PALL

International News Service.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 15.—What probably is the first complete picture of the nation-wide results of strikes was given today by Col. Leonard P. Ayres, prominent Cleveland banker and economist, in his monthly business survey.

Approximately 212,000 men are on strike throughout the country at the present time, creating a depressing influence, Col. Ayres stated, and he described the conditions as "unusual as they are deplorable."

The economist discussed the new Washington gold policies at great length, concluding that "their influences on prices have not yet become clearly established."

He chided farmers for "the swelling volume of protest from the agricultural regions." Ayres claimed that the purchasing power of the farm dollar was greater at the present time than in 1932 and added that "farmers are faring relatively well as compared to industrial workers."

Col. Ayres continued to stress his doctrine that a sound dollar, encouraging private enterprise, would be a cure for the depression.

Mr. Forbes

My experiences here in Cleveland make me ask.

They parallel so closely one's experiences in New York.

FOR EXAMPLE:

Bank troubles have been very bad and everybody curses bankers and all their doings.

Thanks partly to some meteoric but ill-fated Napoleonic promoters, aided and abetted by banking interests that have been equally ill-fated, speculation reached fever pitch throughout this community during the boom. Result: tragic, colossal losses.

Real estate, over-boomed, is dead, and until now governmental "relief" has not gone much beyond the talk-talk-talk stage. (This has just begun to be cured.)

Unemployment has been very serious—but is bettering a little.

Most of the local millionaires—there are some multi's among them—are now too poor to contribute to charities. (The family of Cleveland's most noted, ultra-rich philanthropist is, you are told, "absolutely broke.")

NRA is execrated by some, extolled by others. The Ford-Johnson feud is a hot theme here as elsewhere.

Both optimism and pessimism are freely expressed over the national outlook. Short-visioned men shake their heads and fists. Long-visioned men point to worldwide recovery and ask,

"Can America be far behind?"

And they answer emphatically,

"America will lead."

DOES THE foregoing represent the status in your own community? I rather think it does.

THE CONCLUSION one draws is that the whole nation has suffered acute travail, that recuperative forces are at work, that modest progress has been made, that many are still both sore and skeptical, but that faith in the ultimate outcome is becoming more pronounced than abject fear.

TWO OF Cleveland's once-foremost banks, like Detroit's, went under and are being liquidated—painfully slowly, victims complain. What is the banking position now?

I sought out a youngish banker, who, having earned an usual reputation as a bank examiner and as a solver of tough financial problems elsewhere, was brought to Cleveland, made his mark and is today president of the fine old, conservative National City Bank of Cleveland. Since February its deposits have increased fully 200 per cent.

Said this upbuilder, Sidney B. Congdon:

"The banking situation is very thoroughly stabilized. Our banks are able to take care of the requirements of the community and provide any short-term commercial credit that may be needed and properly granted.

"Economic conditions improved from May through August. Since then they have shown stability rather than fresh gains."

BECAUSE OF its geographic situation, Cleveland is a stronghold of heavy industries, especially metals. Construction and other permanent activities have been peculiarly hard hit, of course, but there is such diversity of products that the midsummer national pick-up immediately registered here.

King White, youthful member of the famous automotive family, who is the go-getting president of the Cleveland Tractor Company, tells me that production expanded substantially in the third quarter after a long lean period and that he is not discouraged over the outlook. Government funds are being harnessed to machinery and equipment on a growing scale, and should prove distinctly helpful in stimulating employment.

His plant payroll is away ahead of a year ago.

And I find that this is almost a universal condition.

I NOTE that nearly all younger executives are full of vigor and faith and fight. They have no thought of hoisting the white flag.

DIVING DOLLAR BEWILDERS TRADERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Financial markets continued under the spell of the diving dollar today and most traders and investors appeared to be as highly confused as in recent sessions.

Although the R. F. C. held the gold price to yesterday's rate of $33.56 an ounce, the American monetary unit dropped to new low levels in foreign exchange markets. Sterling soared 13½ cents to $5.41, another post-war peak, and French francs jumped .11 of a cent to 6.55, also a new high. Stocks, grains, cotton and other commodities dipped and rallied narrowly, with business generally at about one-half yesterday's volume. Federal bonds again lagged and corporation issues were mixed. Foreign gold obligations maintained their advance.

While American Telephone declared the regular quarterly dividend, according to expectations, the stock was virtually unchanged. National Distillers and American Commercial Alcohol got up about a point each. Minor gains were recorded by shares of Allied Chemical, Sears Roebuck, American Can, du Pont, Westinghouse, Chrysler, Case, American Smelting, Union Carbide, United States Smelting and Standard Oils of New Jersey and California. The utilities drooped, both Consolidated Gas and Public Service of New Jersey easing to new lows for the year. Alaska Juneau and McIntyre Porcupine sagged a point and there were many fractional declines.

Aside from numerous conjectures regarding the outcome of the foreign exchange situation, Wall street pondered over the address of Secretary Wallace in which the agricultural executive pointed out that America must take a position for reducing tariffs or curbing production, or decide on a compromise between the two.

Some bankers were of the opinion that this speech apparently reflected the purpose of the administration to move further toward a managed economy in which earnings of both industry and agriculture, at least for a period, will be controlled by governmental edict. The financial district was disposed to agree with the secretary's warning that, no matter which course the nation finally decides to pursue, "a great many people are going to be hurt."

Most disturbing to banking circles recently has been the sharp declines of United States government securities. In line with this bond market factor, some quarters believed that more substantial support would be accorded the federal list if further acute weakness is apparent.

The Treasury, it was recalled, will have to negotiate nearly $1,000,000,000 of financing on December 15, and firmness of government listed loans will be necessary if high interest rates are not to be encountered. Also, it was estimated, the government may have to borrow between $4,000,000,000 and $6,000,000,000 in the next 12 months in order to carry out the recovery program.

Announcement that Secretary Woodin will take a few months' leave of absence and that Henry Morgenthau, Jr., governor of the Farm Credit Administration, will succeed Dean Acheson as under-secretary of the Treasury, created little stir in market circles. Interest was expressed, however, in the authoritative statement that no change was contemplated in the present gold buying policy by which it is hoped to control commodity prices.

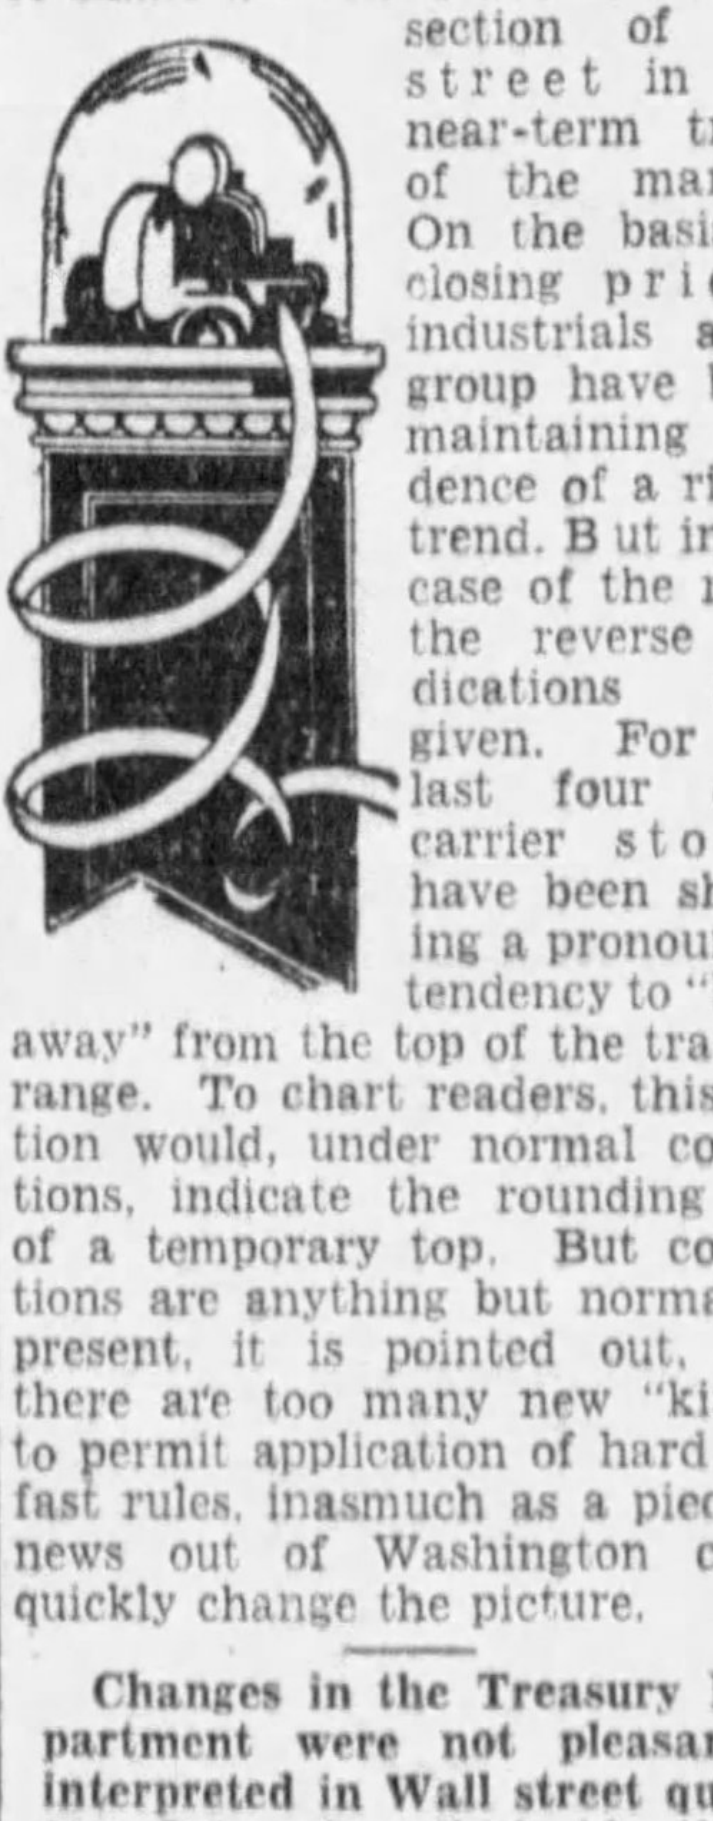
Action of Rail Shares Disturbs Chart Followers



Behavior of the rail shares during the last few days has tended to shake the confidence of a large section of the street in the near-term trend of the market. On the basis of closing prices, industrials as a group have been maintaining evidence of a rising trend. But in the case of the rails, the reverse indications are given. For the last four days carrier stocks have been showing a pronounced tendency to "back away" from the top of the trading range. To chart readers, this action would, under normal conditions, indicate the rounding out of a temporary top. But conditions are anything but normal at present, it is pointed out, and there are too many new "kinks" to permit application of hard and fast rules, inasmuch as a piece of news out of Washington could quickly change the picture.

Changes in the Treasury Department were not pleasantly interpreted in Wall street quarters. Interests actively identified with the government bond market were plainly nonplussed by the news. The changes were regarded as indicating further shortening of the ranks of those holding fast to conservative monetary views and strengthening of the position of inflation advocates. Government securities suffered a fresh sinking spell in the wake of the announcement.

Coincident with the announcement that Mr. Morgenthau will assume charge of the Treasury it was stated authoritatively in Washington that the administration contemplates no change in its present policy of attempting to control commodity prices through gold purchases here and abroad. This statement was emphatically made in highest administration circles and was believed to effectively dispose of reports arising from the fact that the gold price remained stationary today that some modification of policy was in prospect.

Renewing of persistent selling developed in the utility shares through the forenoon. Consolidated Gas was heavy and United Gas Improvement was offered in substantial blocks though meeting good absorption. Resumption of liquidation in that quarter of the list coincided with the publication of fresh data on proposed rate schedules to go into effect on distribution of power generated at Muscle Shoals. The scale of rates set forth in schedules compiled by the Tennessee Valley authority naturally contrasted with those ruling over a wide area where power is generated by privately owned corporations.

The regular quarterly dividend of $2.25 a share on the capital stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company was ordered by the directors today. The disbursement totals around $42,000,000, but of this amount about $2,000,000 will be deducted by the company for payment to the government as the tax on corporation dividends. This tax, which will be automatically rescinded with formal repeal of the prohibition amendment on December 5, is collected from individual stockholders, corporation-owning shareholders being exempt because of their general tax liabilities.

Estimates place the total of cars loaded with revenue freight moved by the railroads last week at about 573,000. This would be about 34,000 less than in the preceding week if the forecasts are substantially correct. The total, however, would show a spread of about 36,000 cars, or 6.7 per cent over the same week last year. This would make the fourth consecutive week in which the trend of loadings by comparison with the same week last year has been upward. The depth of the drop from a week ago is probably accounted for in part by the election day interference to business. In the corresponding week last year loadings dropped 51,000 cars from the preceding week.

PACKERS SPURN HOG OFFERS

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Commission men stuck to their guns today and doggedly asked $4.60 for the best hogs on sale. Packers shrugged their shoulders and walked away, the net result being that only underweight hogs, pigs and packing sows were selling, these mostly at steady prices.

The situation ended the first week today and was very much "as is." It all started last Wednesday with demands for $4.50 for the best hogs. The price has been advanced a dime to $4.60, but the buyers refused to meet this price.

The government purchased Monday's holdovers, estimated at 9,000, late yesterday at the asked prices and now has some 28,000 hogs, most of them purchased Saturday. Some of these have been processed into meat and contracts for more were let today.

The major packers have received enough hogs on direct billing to satisfy their wants.

Most of the outside centers reported heavy arrivals with trade slow and prices ranging from barely steady to 10 and 15 cents lower.

Cattle trade was semi-demoralized. The yards were glutted with strictly choice grain-fed steers scaling more than 1,000 pounds, and for which there was no outlet.

POWER OUTPUT GAIN LARGER

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Production of electricity in the United States during the week ended November 11 by the electric light and power industry amounted to 1,616,875,000 kilowatt hours, comparing with 1,520,730,000 kwh. in the similar week in 1932, an increase of 6.3 per cent, according to the Edison Electric Institute. Output in the week ended November 4 showed an increase of 3.8 per cent over the like 1932 period, while that for the week ended October 28 showed a gain of 5.8 per cent.

The exposition flyer of the Michigan Central broke all records for passenger traffic on a single train in the period between May 27 and October 31, officials of the line said. The train brought 64,827 passengers to Chicago from Boston and New York.

HOLIDAY MERCHANDISE

Early buying of holiday merchandise is reported to be in good volume and merchants in various parts of the country are represented as confident that the aggregate trade will run well in excess of last year's.

FLOUR PRODUCTION

Flour production in leading domestic milling centers in October aggregated 5,326,905 barrels, compared with 6,199,179 barrels in the same month last year, General Mills, Inc., reports.

LOCAL STOCKS IRREGULAR, NARROW

Prices were irregular on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today but the general list held to a narrow range and volume of business was a little under yesterday's rate of turnover. The fuel leaders were handled in small volume and only nominal price changes were recorded in that section. The oil producing company shares were quiet and practically unchanged. Among the miscellaneous specialties, D. L. Clark stood out with a gain of a full point over its last previous price, recorded several days ago.

Pittsburgh Brewing preferred fell back more than a point in the early session as the street awaited word from today's meeting at which stockholders will vote on a plan to change the par value of the stocks. The bond setup will remain unchanged.

GRAIN PRICES TAKE TUMBLE

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Disregarding a steep upturn of British exchange rates, grain prices took an early downward course today. Sharp notice was taken that the Washington quotation on gold had not been lifted.

Opening ⅜-⅞ lower, wheat afterward showed a material further drop. Corn started unchanged to ⅞ off, and subsequently underwent an all around setback.

Rallies in wheat prices were helped by word of liberal export business overnight at Winnipeg, but the recovery was only fractional and did not hold well.

Corn and oats averaged lower with wheat, while provisions were without any aggressive support.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

WRITER URGES INVESTMENT LAW CHANGE

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Universal Service

Mr. Rukeyser

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—With the dollar wobbly, numerous adjustments need to be made lest an individual's or an institution's economic position be impaired.

The problem in the United States is complicated by the division of legal authority between the federal and state governments.

Though the federal government, through Congress, has the exclusive right to fix the value of the monetary unit, the state governments have control over the investments of life insurance companies, savings banks and personal trusts.

In times of inflation, the legal requirements for institutional or trustee investment, though suitable in time of monetary stability, are likely to be a detrimental straitjacket, since they insist on purchase of claims to a specified number of dollars.

SHOULD RELAX RULES

Accordingly, state superintendents of banks and of insurance—and the legislatures which set up basic laws under which they operate—should immediately give consideration to the desirability of relaxing the rules of investment to give leeway to responsible management to hedge to some degrees at least against a shrinkage in the value of the monetary unit.

The state supervisory officials have already stretched their discretionary authority by permitting companies to take up their bonds at an arbitrary value instead of current market value.

In the same spirit, they ought to consider for the period of instability permitting such institutional investors to perform hedging operations within certain limits.

EXTREME SOLUTION

An extreme solution would permit the institutions to go as far as to invest in selected common stocks until the threat of inflation is definitely over, whereas a more moderate concession would entail relaxation of the rules only to the extent of permitting investment in approved convertible bonds or in bonds payable in foreign currencies as well as in dollars.

Theoretically, the institutions are not affected by inflation since they can pay off their liabilities to policyholders and to depositors in cheap funds, but, where the institutions are mutualized, their true interest is the same as that of their policyholders or depositors. Any offsetting gains from investment straddles could be passed along to the real owners, whose position otherwise would become impaired.

Extreme and uncontrolled inflation of the German type does not appear likely in this country, but in Germany unbridled inflation went so far as to make the fixed premiums on life insurance inadequate to meet the current operating expenses of the insurance companies.

LIKELY TO INTERVENE

A study of the German situation indicates that at length the government is likely to intervene and arbitrarily readjust conditions between debtors and creditors. At the end of inflation, Germany finally found it expedient to come to the aid of the creditors, and arbitrarily fixed the value of mortgages, for example, at 25 per cent of their original value. Accordingly, some German students are of the opinion that those who invested in fixed obligations came out better than those who purchased common stocks.

However, in France, where inflation was successfully controlled, fixed investments were reduced in real value by revaluation to the tune of 80 per cent, whereas at the top of the 1929 boom a list of 100 selected French stocks equaled 100 per cent of their pre-war gold value, according to a study made by W. S. Landis, of the American Cyanimid Company.

Dr. Landis' survey indicated that textile stocks came out best, showing a profit in gold; chemical stocks at the peak of the business boom enabled investors to come out even; but certain other types of stocks, such as railroad issues, showed a net loss in gold value.

U. S. Bond Trading Heaviest in 9 Years

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Trading in U. S. Government issues on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday totaled $8,837,000, the largest day's trading since December 11, 1924, when volume amounted to $10,729,000. Prices were lower with losses ranging up to 24-32 of a point.

PRICE OF GOLD UNCHANGED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—The administration today fixed the price of domestic newly mined gold at a point far below the dollar figure abroad.

The dollar, meanwhile, fell from $5.27½ to the pound at the London opening to $5.37½. This in turn carried the dollar value of gold at London from $34.03 to $34.68. In New York the pound sold above $5.41.

By contrast, the price of RFC purchases of new mined gold was set at $33.56, unchanged from yesterday.

Only once before has the Washington figure been put below the world price. Then the circumstances were similar to those of today, weakness in government bonds have cropped out the day before.

The drooping dollar was carrying government bond quotations downward with it. This trend, if continued, would make it extremely embarrassing for the Treasury when the time comes to borrow the more than $6,000,000,000 it must obtain in the next year to carry on the recovery program.

In the previous instance, the trend was reversed after the domestic gold policy had been temporarily eased off. The dollar strengthened and bond prices made up some of their losses.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Heavy profit taking broke silver futures prices sharply today. Active months declined 80 to 120 points from the high to establish net losses of from 32 to 55 points.

Bar silver was off ¾ of a cent at 44¾ cents an ounce.

Open Market for Home Owners Loan Bonds To Be Important

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

AN OPEN MARKET for bonds of the Home Owners Loan Corporation will be provided within a week. This step, announced by John H. Fahey, new chairman of the corporation, will supply a valuable need and may be expected to remove much of the uncertainty surrounding this type of semi-government obligation.

The bonds have been traded on an over the counter basis but such markets are unsatisfactory since wide spreads usually exist between bids and offers. In addition, bonds, which do not enjoy continuous open markets, do not carry, as a general rule, the investment prestige which they otherwise would command. The absence of an open market usually has an adverse effect on the price and the willingness of prospective holders to take them.

The elimination of such adverse factors to the desirability of securities is of particular importance in the case of Home Owners Loan Corporation bonds.

* * *

Bonds Are Exchanged For Home Mortgages

THE HOME OWNERS Loan Corporation was established to prevent foreclosures on mortgages on homes. The corporation is a government sponsored organization authorized to take over home mortgages in danger of foreclosure and to give its own bonds in exchange to the mortgage holders.

Its bonds are guaranteed in interest but not in principal by the United States government. Had the bonds been guaranteed in both respects, there would have been little question of their value. But the fact that only interest is guaranteed, has made their market worth and their desirability uncertain.

The establishment of an open market will make their value and liquidity readily ascertainable. It may be expected to have the effect of increasing the desirability of this type of security and to make holders of mortgages more willing to agree to conversion.

* * *

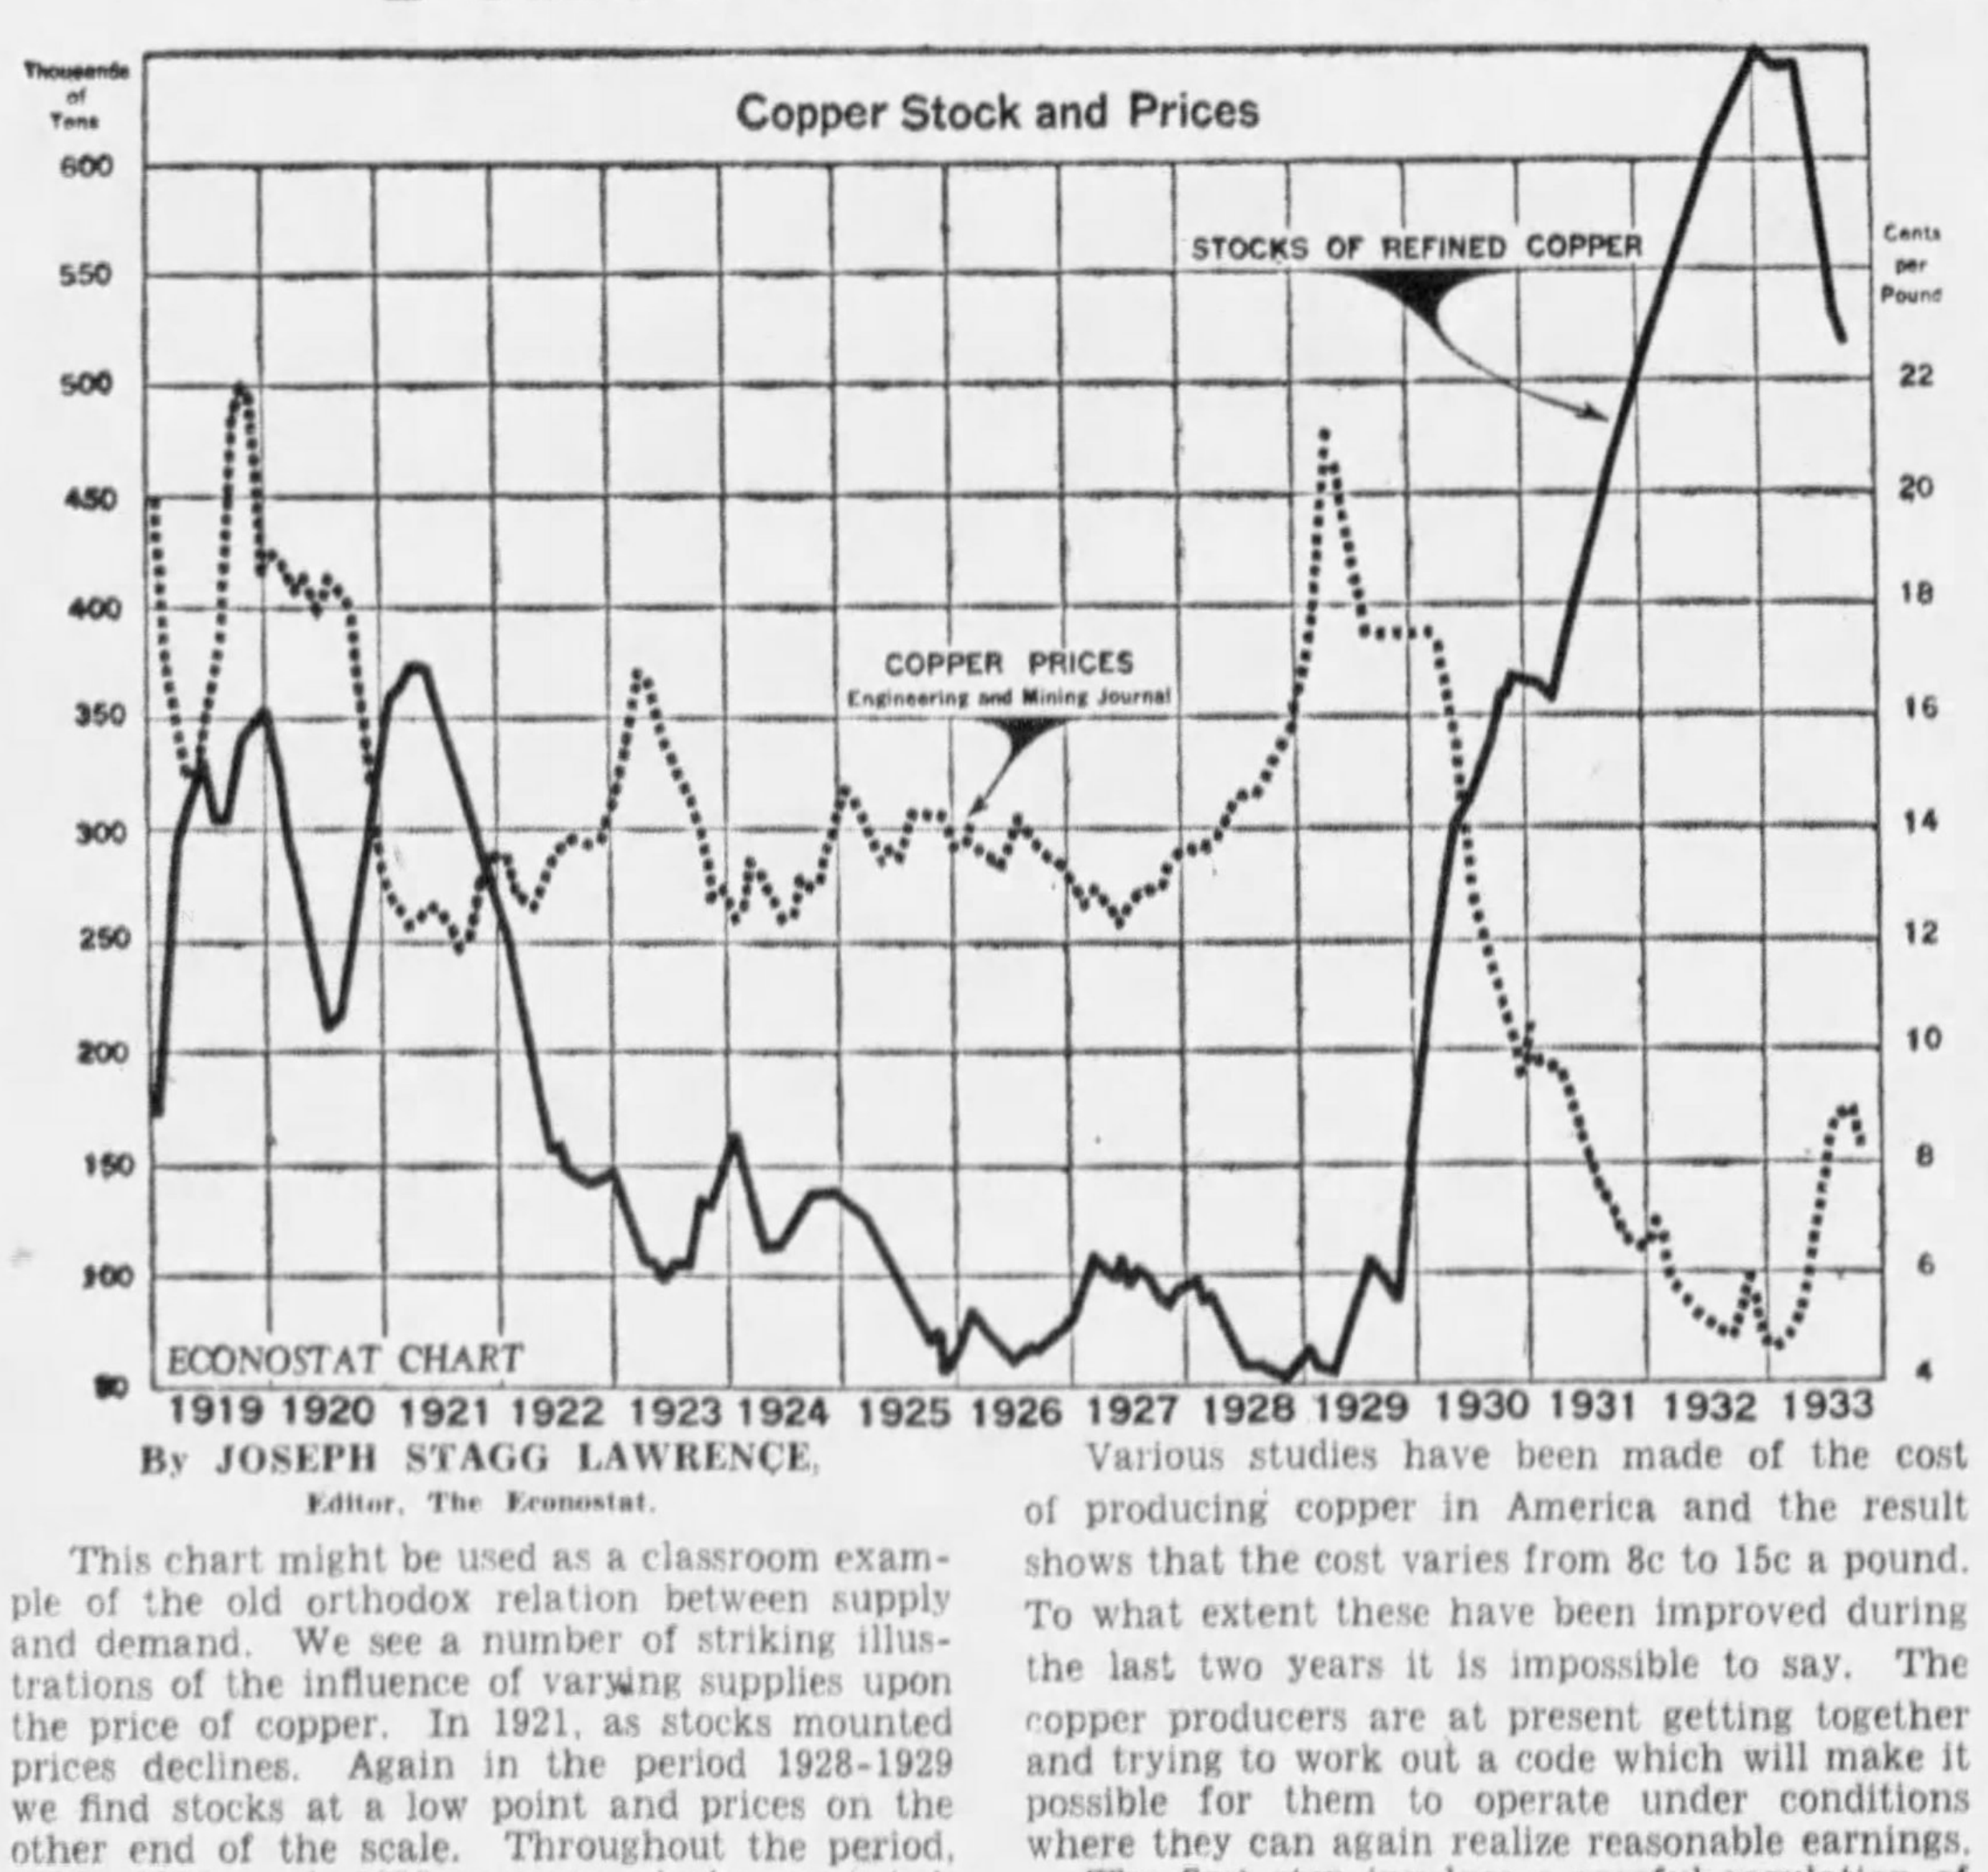
Closed Banks May Take New Bonds

THE CORPORATION is authorized to issue $2,000,000,000 of bonds. Up to the present time, however, only $20,000,000 are outstanding. The organization is endeavoring to release $1,000,000,000 in closed bank funds through the trading of bonds for mortgages. Up to the present time most banks have been hesitant about accepting the bonds.

It is hoped that the establishment of an open market will break down some of this hesitancy on the part of banks as well as on the part of individuals.

The $1,000,000,000 of mortgages at which the corporation is aiming are held in closed banks in 10 states, the laws of which permit trading into bonds. These are Pennsylvania, California, New Jersey, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, New York, Massachusetts and Iowa.

Copper Supplies and Prices Follow Economic Precedent



By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE,

Editor, The Econostat.

This chart might be used as a classroom example of the old orthodox relation between supply and demand. We see a number of striking illustrations of the influence of varying supplies upon the price of copper. In 1921, as stocks mounted prices declines. Again in the period 1928-1929 we find stocks at a low point and prices on the other end of the scale. Throughout the period, 1930, 1931 and 1932, copper stocks mounted, reaching entirely unprecedented levels, accompanied by a decline which reached equally unprecedented levels at the other end of the scale.

Although the present price copper represents a very substantial improvement over the low points reached in 1932 and 1933, it is still far short of the level which copper producers feel is necessary to enable them to remain in business. The cost of producing copper varies a great deal with the location of the ore and its richness. Some of the very high-content ores in Africa are said to yield copper which can be sold at a profit at so low a price as 5c a pound. It is doubtful if any American producer could sell his output at this price and survive.

Various studies have been made of the cost of producing copper in America and the result shows that the cost varies from 8c to 15c a pound. To what extent these have been improved during the last two years it is impossible to say. The copper producers are at present getting together and trying to work out a code which will make it possible for them to operate under conditions where they can again realize reasonable earnings.

The first step involves a careful regulation of production and an equally careful management of the enormous copper stocks which have been accumulated. The copper men have not been able to get together on a number of vital points because of a conflict of interest.

The country does not produce as much copper as it fabricates. The largest fabricators import a substantial part of their copper, purchase the output of United States smelters and use the product of their own domestic mines. They are obviously not in favor of allocating their fabricating capacity among the custom smelters and feel that this is a phase of the copper industry which they should manage themselves. What the final outcome will be it is difficult to forecast.

Steel Prices.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Steel prices unchanged.

ORDERS CHECK STEEL DROP

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Iron Age says:

"Steel production has apparently struck at least a temporary resistance level. Public works awards are heavier, automotive steel requirements have improved moderately and export business has picked up, especially in tin plate, but the combined gains have not been sufficiently large to foreshadow a material increase in mill operations.

"While the scheduled rate of ingot output at the beginning of this week was 27.1 per cent of capacity compared with 25 per cent a week previous, reports of current operations assembled by the 'Iron Age' reflect no perceptible change in production. Present engagement at 26 per cent of capacity being identical with this publication's estimate for last week. The Pittsburgh, Wheeling and Cleveland rates remained unchanged at 21.38 and 40 per cent respectively.

"The automobile industry will not get into volume production on new models until late in December and is not expected to buy additional steel in quantity before January or February. Similarly, impending orders from the railroads for rail and rolling stock are not likely to affect steel output materially during the remaining weeks of this year.

BREWING PLANS PAR CHANGE

Stockholders of Pittsburgh Brewing Company will vote today upon a plan to change the par value of both preferred and common stock from its present $50 par to no par and reduce the capital to $6,500,000 from the present $13,000,000. Exchange of the new no par stock share for share for present outstanding stock will be made. Accumulated dividends now accrued on the preferred stock will remain and be attached to new preferred and be payable on the new no par value preferred stock. The new no par preferred stock to bear cumulative dividends at the rate of $3.50 per per share annually the same as at present on the preferred stock.

The company reports for the year ended October 31 net income of $764,287 after depreciation and all other charges. This compares with a loss of $353,330 in the preceding year.

Fred C. Klussmann, president of the company said:

"Such reduction in the capital stock of the company will wipe out the present deficit on the balance sheet and permit payment of dividends out of future earnings as bared."

COTTON EXPORT VOLUME UP

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—The department of commerce said that exports of cotton from the United States from August to October inclusive were 252,000 bales over the same period last year.

Exports this year amounted to 2,446,000 bales valued at $126,309,000 compared with 2,194,000 bales and $89,613,000 for the same three months of 1932.

October exports amounted to 1,047,000 bales valued at $53,323,000 compared with 869,000 bales and $45,131,000 for September and 1,008,000 bales valued at $39,692,000 for October, 1932.

For the three months larger shipments were made to Japan, United Kingdom, France, Italy, Spain and Canada, whereas smaller shipments were made mainly to Germany, China, Belgium and the Netherlands.

U. S. Agents Study Coast Oil Output

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—The times says government agents, presumably from the Department of the Interior, are in Southern California making a special study of oil production.

It was reported unofficially the government was not pleased with the breakdown under the formula of the supplemental oil code because it brought about a sharp cut in production at Kettleman Hills, from which the government derives considerable revenue. The field was cut back from 59,700 to 44,580 barrels daily.

To Be Awarded to Boys and Girls of School Age for the Best Sets of

HOW TO DO IT

Color this picture with crayon or water color, but do not send it in until the complete series of 12 has been printed. There will be one picture in the Sun-Telegraph every day. No. 4 will appear tomorrow. This is a fine opportunity for all school classes to participate.

Read These Simple Rules

1—Anyone in the Pittsburgh area can enter this contest except professional artists and employees of the Sun-Telegraph and their families.

2—You are to color the drawings as nearly as possible to their natural colors. Use crayon or water colors.

3—The decision of the judges will be final.

4—Neatness and form of presentation will be the basis for judging the entries.

5—It is not necessary to buy a paper to enter the contest. You may trace these drawings from papers on file at the public libraries or at the Sun-Telegraph office.

6—You may enter as many sets of pictures as you wish; the more you enter the better your chance to win.

7—One picture will be published each day starting Monday, November 13.

8—Do not send any drawings to this office until you have a complete set of twelve pictures.

9—Contest starts November 13 and closes midnight Monday, November 27.

10—Send all entries to the Thanksgiving Coloring Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Telegraph Square, Pittsburgh, Pa.

The Girl Who Won

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XXXII.

It rained that night—after Nollie's romantic reunion with Tony down by the lakeside.

It started raining at half past seven o'clock, just as she and her hostess were sitting down to dinner.

But, after the thrice-blessed afternoon, nothing could put a damper on Nollie's happiness.

What dear, what wonderful things Tony had said to her!

How his eyes had lighted with a shiny eagerness!

Love! Oh, was this love? What other name could one give to this strange, this magical feeling?

She wore her little chiffon dress that was patterned with bright flowers in tender blues and pinks. Above it, her face was like a drift of almond blossom.

Mrs. Judson regarded her approvingly, half envyingly. "My dear, if only I had your complexion!"

"It's the life up here—so restful," said Nollie shyly.

She couldn't tell this kind creature anything of her meeting of the afternoon, with the servants waiting on the table.

She ate with hearty appetite. Mrs. Judson noticed that, and was correspondingly pleased.

She liked this whole-hearted, fresh young girl—so different from the women of her own world.

And Nollie had looked so peaked those first few days, and—as Mrs. Judson chided her—"had no more appetite than a sparrow."

Tonight the scene was changed. Nollie bloomed like a bright flower.

She chatted gaily of this and that—drew out her hostess.

But half the time, and more, her thoughts weren't on Mrs. Judson's talk.

"Light the log fire in the livingroom, and take the coffee in there," the hostess instructed a servant at the conclusion of dinner.

LIKES COMFORT

It was cosy in the long, low,-raftered livingroom.

An enormous sofa was drawn up in front of the crackling fire, with a couple of tiny serving tables at each end.

Enconsced there with their coffee, and Mrs. Judson smoking one cigaret after another, the two were very much "en rapport."

"When one gets to my age, one loves one's comforts," appreciatively declared Mrs. Judson.

Nollie laughed. "I feel as luxurious as a Persian pussycat. I think in my last incarnation I must have been a cat," She was curled up in a corner.

"I don't believe it. There's nothing in the least feline about you. I'll say you've a nice nature."

"'Oh, thank you very much. You honor me, Mrs. Judson.

The widow poured herself a tiny glass of benedictine. She sipped it like a connoisseur. She had already offered Nollie some, but Nollie had declined it.

She needed no stimulus of any kind tonight. In her heart was a paean of thanksgiving.

"This is the real stuff made by the Benedictine monks. Sure you won't have some?"

"No. I'll have a cigarette if I may? This is grand coffee, Mrs. Judson."

"Call me Virginia—or Jinny. Don't let's keep on being formal."

Nollie flushed girlishly. She had a shy nature.

"You're awfully nice to me. You'll never guess who I met this afternoon? The young man of the letter!"

"Good heavens! You must have let him know that you were here?"

"Honest-to-goodness, cross-my-heart I never sent him a line or message."

"Then how—? But of course he thought that you were I—or I was you! And he found out about this ranch!"

WIDOW AMUSED

"He's on a fishing trip. He's camping on the far side of the lake. I was out with Fury and I ran right into him accidentally.

The widow laughed hilariously. "What a blessed mix-up! Upon my soul! He comes here on your track, thinking you are the owner of the property!"

Nollie felt dashed. She flushed in the bright fire-light. It sounded exactly as though Virginia Judson, cynical of men as she was, thought Tony O'Brien was a fortune-hunter.

The widow read her sensitive reaction. But before she could speak, Nollie explained: "I told him right away I wasn't you at all—"

"Of course, my dear. You should have asked him to the house. I'd like to meet the young man."

Nollie said slowly: "He did ask if he might call tonight. But I thought—well, I didn't want to be presumptuous—"

"You dear! You're simply priceless, as they say over in Europe!"

"Now you're laughing at me. But honestly, Mrs. Judson—Virginia, I mean—I understood you wanted to be quiet. I didn't think you wanted visitors."

Mrs. Judson raised amused eyebrows. "But this house is big enough for you to entertain half-a-dozen admirers, if you feel that way, my dear. You mustn't be so meticulous."

Nollie was uncertain what the last word meant. But she knew that Mrs. Judson was being generous.

"I'll tell you what we'll do, dear child. I'll send Hayasha—" —(this was the Japanese butler)—"down to the young man's shack tomorrow morning with an invitation up to dinner for the evening."

MAKES PLANS

"I—I'm sure he would enjoy that," rejoined Nollie. It had been on the tip of her tongue to explain that she was meeting Tony in the afternoon—but, after all, there was no necessity for such frankness. Mrs. Judson thought her quite naive. Why let everybody in on her private business.

"We'll have a nice dinner for him," continued Mrs. Judson briskly, "and afterwards, when we've had coffee here I'll suddenly discover that I've letters to write—or papers to read—or the cook to interview—and you and he can have a long pow-wow in privacy!"

Nollie protested this, but half heartedly.

How wonderful to sit with Tony in this shadowy room! Together with him to gaze into the heart of the glowing embers!

Would they see a future there for themselves? Or would she be overcome with that stupefying shyness?

She dreamed of him that night as the rain poured down among the pines and firs outside her windows.

Morning broke radiant and beautiful.

Immediately after breakfast, Hayasha was dispatched to the young men's shack with the invitation for dinner.

The oriental came back beaming. Mr. O'Brien accepted with much pleasure.

At 11 o'clock a wire came over the telephone from the nearest postoffice, many miles away.

"Good Lord!" groaned Mrs. Judson, "that woman, Rhoda Vane, telegraphs to say she arrives here early this evening.

Synopsis

Nollie Day, stenographer at an exclusive hotel, is befriended by wealthy Mrs. Judson, a widow. Nollie goes to a theater in place of Mrs. Judson, where she meets handsome Tony O'Brien. She reveals her own identity but Tony does not hear her. Next day, Tony telephones and learns Mrs. Judson has gone abroad. Nollie wants to clear her identity, but is unable to get in touch with Tony. Mrs. Judson returns and ask Nollie to become her secretary and visit her ranch. Nollie accompanies Mrs. Judson to a garden party and meets Rhoda Vane. Rhoda seems to dislike Nollie. Nollie and the widow leave for the ranch after inviting Rhoda. Nollie is surprised when she meets Tony near the ranch. Tony is pleased when she tells him she is not Mrs. Judson. He explains that he is an attorney, not rich, but has many wealthy friends.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Do you know that the average shoe worn by the girl of 20 is 6B? Good news that; feet are getting bigger and better. Time was when size 4 was a social disgrace. The ancient regime believed in pushing their pedals into the smallest possible space, with the result that development was retarded, tendons were under strain, and distressing deformities were even more common than they are now. On a large woman an extremely small foot is out of proportion and cannot be regarded as a beauty asset. The heavyweights need to give special attention to comfortable shoes that provide them with a steady foothold on floor or pavement. Heels should measure not higher than one and one-fourth inches.

Be careful when fooling with hangnails; the flesh around the nails is specially sensitive to infection. Soak the hands in warm soap suds, dry, apply a few drops of olive oil, work up the shreds with the orange wood stick, snip away with the curved needle point scissors.

JOHN PAUL JONES CAPTURES THE SERAPIS (Sept. 23, 1779)

The American-French Alliance expanded the war against Britain all over the Atlantic. The British merchant ships traveled in huge convoys. John Paul Jones, a Scotsman, who had settled in Virginia, commanded a flotilla including French ships flying the American flag. One of his most gallant attacks upon the British was the capture of the Serapis out of a huge convoy and near the British shores. (United States History)

CARACTUS AND WIFE BEFORE CLAUDIUS, ROMAN EMPEROR

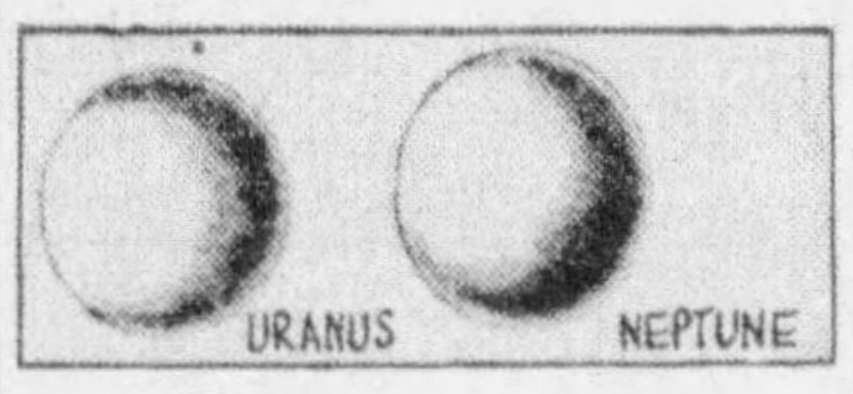
Caligula (37-41) heir to Tiberius, at first a mild emperor became a cruel tyrant, declaring himself a god and his horse a consul. He was murdered.

Emperor Claudius (41-54) encouraged art, literature. He was successful in Rome and abroad, conquered Mauretania (Morocco), parts of today's Germany and Britain, the latter not disturbed since Julius Caesar's time.

Caractus, chieftain in Northeast Britain, fought desperately; he was captured and carried with wife and children as prisoners to Rome. His wife is pictured begging the imperial couple for mercy; Caractus standing unbroken in his bonds. Claudius died, poisoned by his wife, Agrippina.

HEROES

Jupille, a shepherd boy, saw a mad dog attacking his chums. He grabbed the animal and, though severely bitten, held it until the boys fled. Jupille's life was saved by Pasteur, who made that time his first inoculations against rabies. Statue at left in the Pasteur Institute, Paris, is a beautiful monument to the boy's heroism and Pasteur's great discovery. (Character Building)



URANUS AND NEPTUNE

These planets have no definite markings.

Their mean density was calculated as about 1.3 resp. 1.2 times that of water; the surface gravity is about 0.9 of that of the earth on both planets.

The ninth and outermost planet of the solar system, Pluto was only recently discovered. Its great distance and small size made observations difficult and up to now little definite information could be learned about it. For the sizes, distances, velocities and moons of planets see Pict. Ed. of Sept. 15 and Oct. 23.

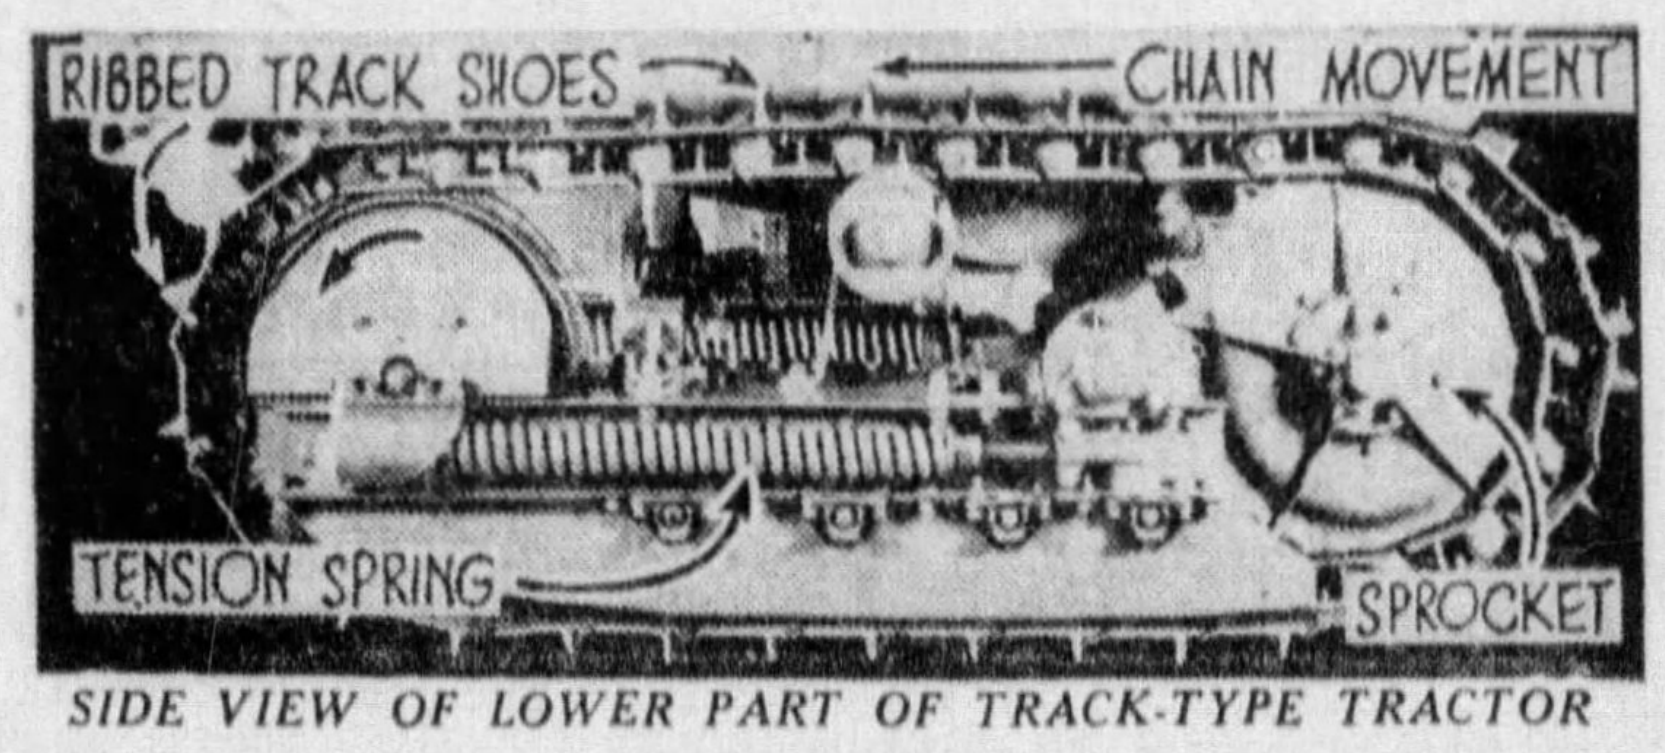
OSMOSIS, A NECESSITY TO PHYSICAL LIFE (Chemistry)

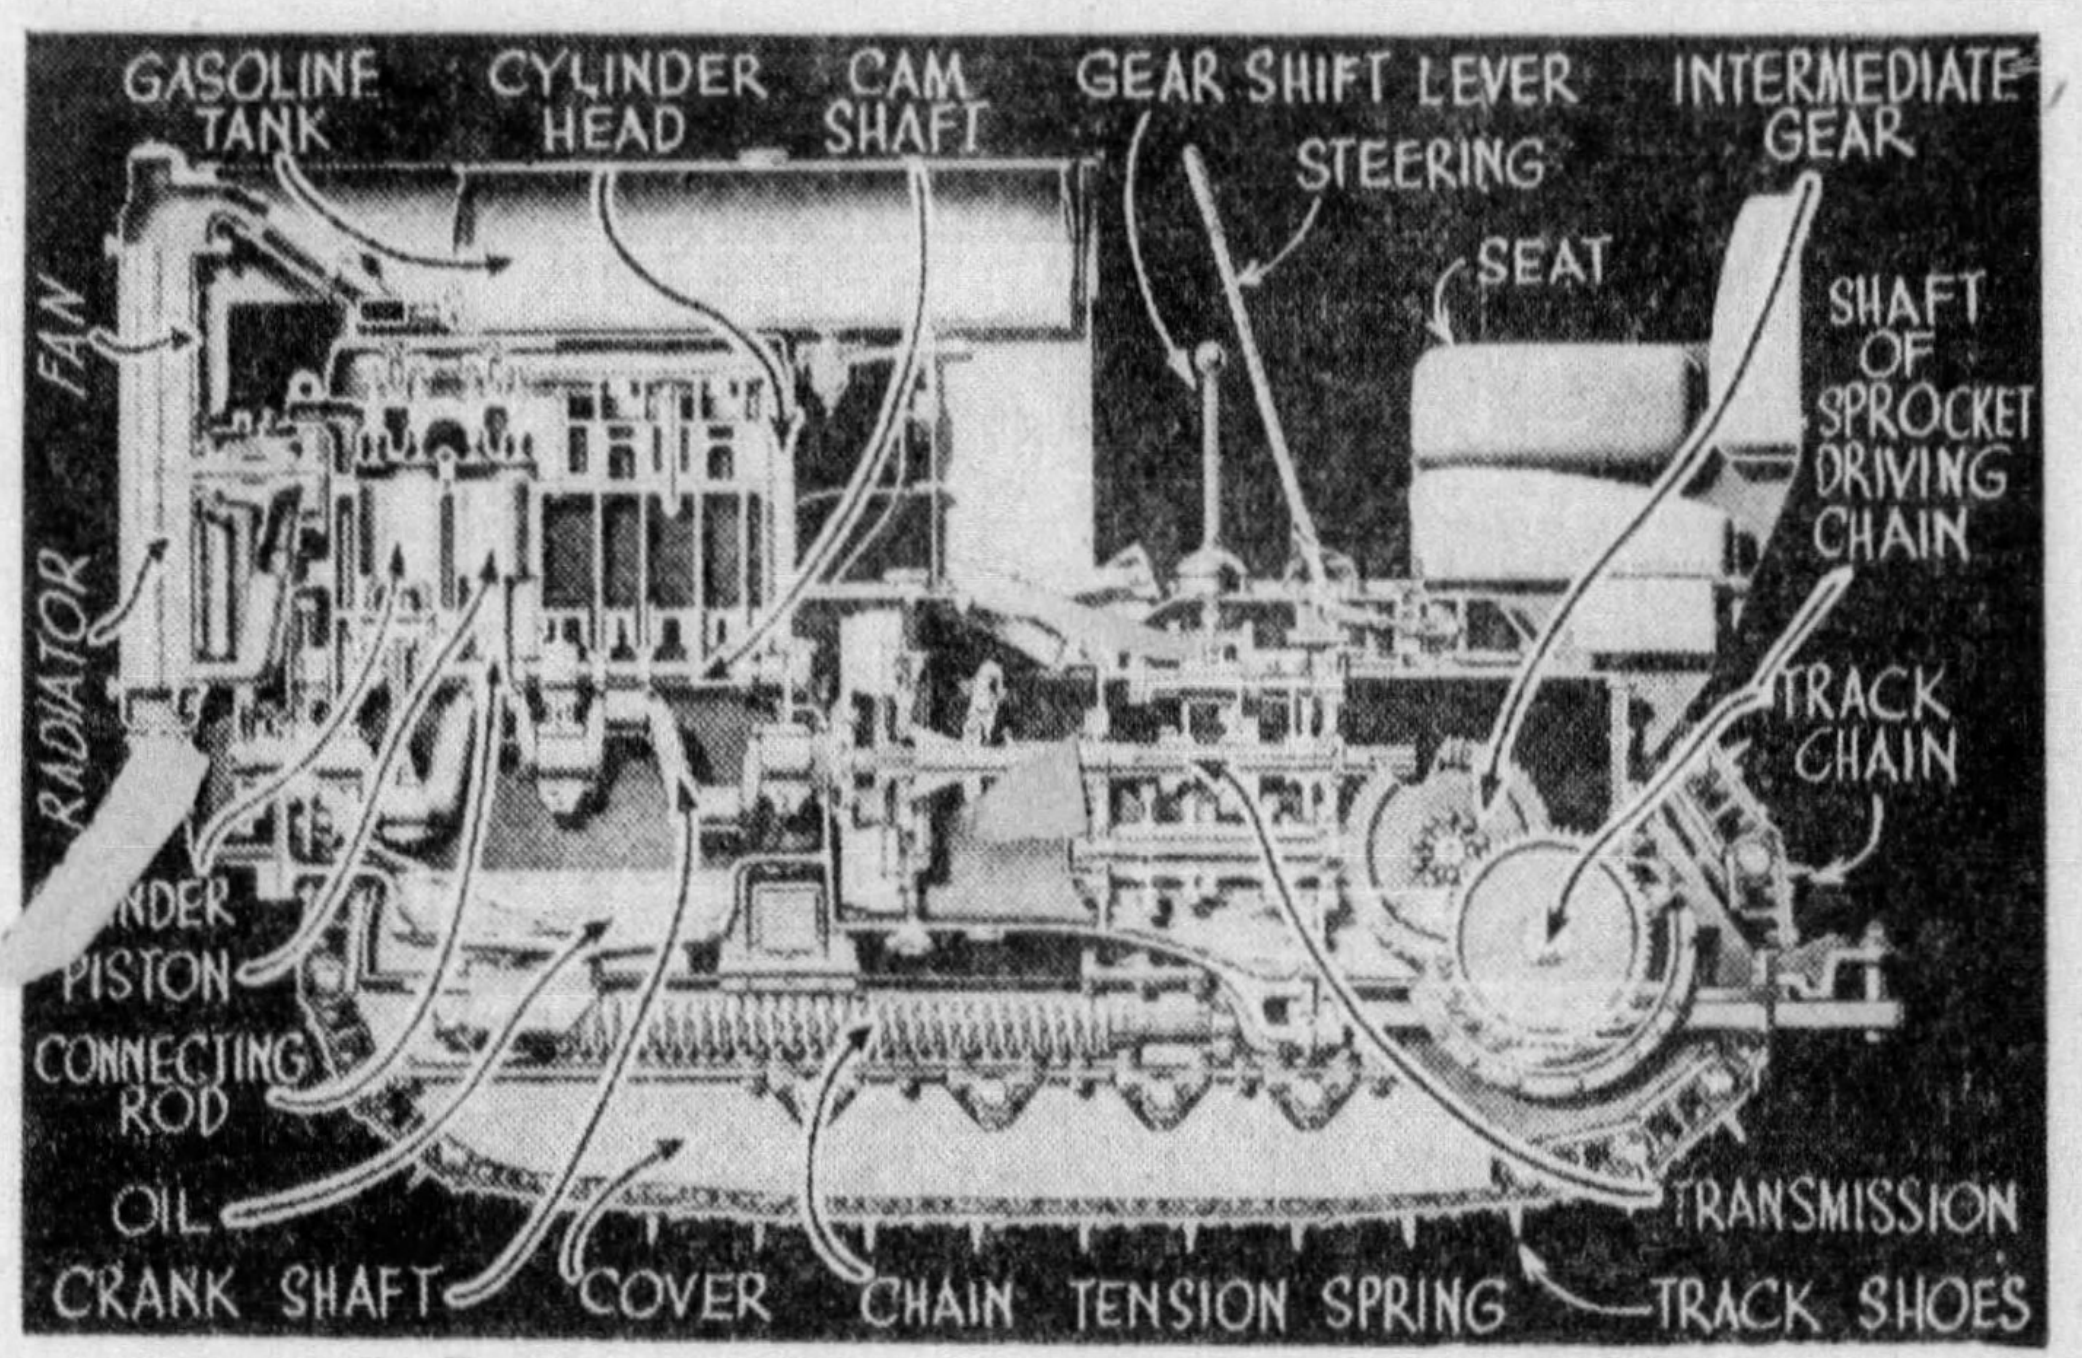
Osmosis is the pressure caused by molecules of a solute prevented to disperse in the solvent. Above, right: Sap flow in a plant, chiefly dependent upon osmosis.

Above, left: A vessel is divided into spaces A and B by a semi-permeable membrane (C) (parchment paper, bladder tissue, etc.), which lets the molecules of solvent through but arrests those of the solute. A, is filled with solution (say, sugar, dissolved in water); B with solvent (say, water). Sugar molecules (solute) tend to disperse into B, but are prevented by C; hence they draw the solvent (water) from B through C into A, increasing the volume of the solution (center). After reaching an equilibrium, the solution will form a column in pipe P, the presure of which equals the osmotic pressure, proportional to the concentration of the solution and also to its absolute temperature, and equal with the pressure exerted by the solute when in gaseous state occupying the volume of the solvent.

Osmotic pressure is one main cause of the transference of liquid and dissolved substances to and from the cells of living things.



SIDE VIEW OF LOWER PART OF TRACK-TYPE TRACTOR



Courtesy of Allis Chalmers Co.

THE TRACK-TYPE TRACTOR (Transportation)

This tractor, instead of wheels, has on each side an endless chain of ribbed track-shoes, propelled on rollers (above). The machine runs on its own tracks laid in front and picked up behind. The steering is done by driving only the outer chain and disengaging the inner chain by a clutch. The motor and transmission are similar to those of the wheel-type tractor (see Pict. Ed., Nov. 13). Speed is 2¼-5¾ miles an hour forward and 2½ miles in reverse. Advantages: The weight of tractor and grip of the ribs are distributed to a large surface, causing little pressure, not packing the ground, enabling operation on loose or wet soil, important in agricultural work.

The military tanks of the World War were essentially armored track-type-tractors, equipped with guns, so are the present tanks built for greater speed.

Distillers Need Not Worry

The distillers pledge their moral obligation to the public and ask that popular set of people to sip slowly and tread softly.

Usually, this advice has percolated through the other side of the fence. It was always the reformers and the prohibitionists who urged us to shun rum and its terrors.

The distillers promise to make their product as pure as a mountain stream above timber line.

But they fear an abuse of hospitality from a fervent and enthusiastic clientele. They can handle the carriage trade but are afraid of the boys who drive up on foot.

It seems that this problem is strictly up to the individual. Wine is still a mocker. Strong drink is still raging. And mixing them dilutes neither.

There always have been and always will be people who cannot handle the sizzling barley and the scorching rye. The distillers seem to recognize this fact. And rightly so.

In his early days the writer confesses to remembering vividly many instances when the next waiter was a policeman.

And it seems to us that the solution of the rum rebus will remain in the capacious hands of the law. Neither the distillers nor the ultimatized consumer will be the judges of demeanor or deportment as set down by Article 456, Section 89, in the book of fragant indulgence.

Those who want to sing shall be accompanied by the Police Glee Club. Those who want to dance shall whirl with a blue-coated partner. Those who are afraid to go home in the dark shall be escorted and those who desire to quarrel will be accommodated until their fury is vaporized by the application of soothing hickory to the skull.

Each case will have its vagaries and whims treated with the serums and toxins best qualified to produce law and order in the shortest possible time.

We are afraid that the distillers have little to fear. Although the wave is high the official clubbing arm will still rise and fall with the tides. The officers will manage to lessen the hilarity of the individual without subtracting from the gaiety of the nations.

The clang of the belled wagon shall resound through the land unto all the inhabitants thereof.

It proclaims liberty at the rate of one teaspoonful an hour.

The Cause of Crime

Decent Housing Would Help to Restrain People From Anti-Social Conduct.

Judge James H. Gray made an impressive assertion in his address before the Retail Credit Men's Association.

He declared most criminals are on the verge of destitution.

We can expect no improvement in moral stamina, he added, no cut in the $800,000 a year cost of operating the Criminal Court, until those now half-starved are furnished an opportunity to live decently.

Judge Gray is right.

The question then arises: What can be done to raise the standard of living of the unfortunates from whom the majority of criminals are recruited?

One thing that can be done is to get rid of the slums in which thousands of Pittsburghers live amid conditions of unspeakable squalor.

The NRA offers to provide money for slum clearance.

Gov. Pinchot and the Legislature will not have made the most of their opportunity for valuable social service if they do not move energetically to take advantage of this offer.

The City Manager Plan

What Is Best for the City, Not for the Republicans or Democrats, Is the Question.

When there was no prospect of termination of the Regular Republican Organization's control of the city government its representatives in the Legislature would not permit the passage of an act authorizing the citizens to vote on the city manager plan. Democratic legislators favored the measure.

Now that the Republicans have lost control of the city government they seek to revive the city manager proposal. A bill similar to the one killed at the last session will be introduced by the Republicans if a way can be found to do it under Gov. Pinchot's call.

It looks like a scheme to embarrass the Democrats or to deprive them of some of the power that they gained in last week's election.

But the important question is, not how the passage of such a bill would affect the Democratic or Republican organizations, but how it would affect the city.

Nobody who believes in democratic government should object to a referendum on the subject, through which the people would decide directly by their own votes whether or not they desire a city manager.

How to Improve the Parks

Fireplaces and Drinking Fountains for Picnickers Would Be Appreciated by Multitudes.

The federal government has asked Pittsburgh and other cities to put jobless men to work in the parks, and has offered to pay the wages of 500,000 such park workers for three months.

Director Edward G. Lang, of the Department of Public Works, has been asked how many men Pittsburgh can employ and on what projects they will be used.

We understand the department has in mind putting several hundred men to work cleaning out underbrush and on small drainage jobs and other maintenance tasks which have been neglected during the last year because of curtailed appropriations.

It occurs, however, that this offers a chance to get some benefits beyond mere maintenance operations.

An inquiry concerning the things in which the parks are lacking brings the suggestion that there are not enough fireplaces and drinking fountains for picnickers. These are especially needed in Schenley Park, it is reported.

More tennis courts, and more bridle paths, are other suggestions.

Work that will increase the facilities for all sorts of wholesome recreation will be well worth while.

Plight of the Schools

Only Federal Leadership, Supported by the States, Can Solve the Educational Problem.

With Armistice Day, the American people concluded their thirteenth annual observance of American Education Week.

This year's observance has laid bare the crisis that now exists in public education North, East, South and West.

Speaking for the Roosevelt administration, George F. Zook, United States Commissioner of Education, makes public the following official findings regarding the present plight of the country's educational system:

First, more than 2,280,000 children in this country today who, under most compulsory education laws, should be in school, are not getting schooling.

Second, nearly 2,000 rural schools in 24 states have not yet opened their doors for the autumn term.

Third, one out of every four cities has been compelled to shorten the school term, and 715 rural schools that opened in September will have to close before Christmas.

Fourth, 16 institutions of higher education in different parts of the country have been discontinued since last year.

Fifth, 259 school districts in 29 states have defaulted on their indebtedness and a total of $40,000,000 in warrants issued by school districts to pay teachers remain unpaid.

Sixth, one of every four American teachers now employed is being paid at the rate of less than $750 a year, although the unskilled factory worker, under the minimum blanket code rate of the NRA, gets $728.

This appalling revelation of what has happened to public education in this country presents a problem that can only be solved by federal leadership strongly supported by all the states of the Union.

Under the American system of government, the control of education is a sovereign function of the state.

But the promotion of education is as much the bounden duty of the federal government as it is of the several states.

Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln are among the great Presidents who have recognized and emphasized the fostering of education as a federal responsibility.

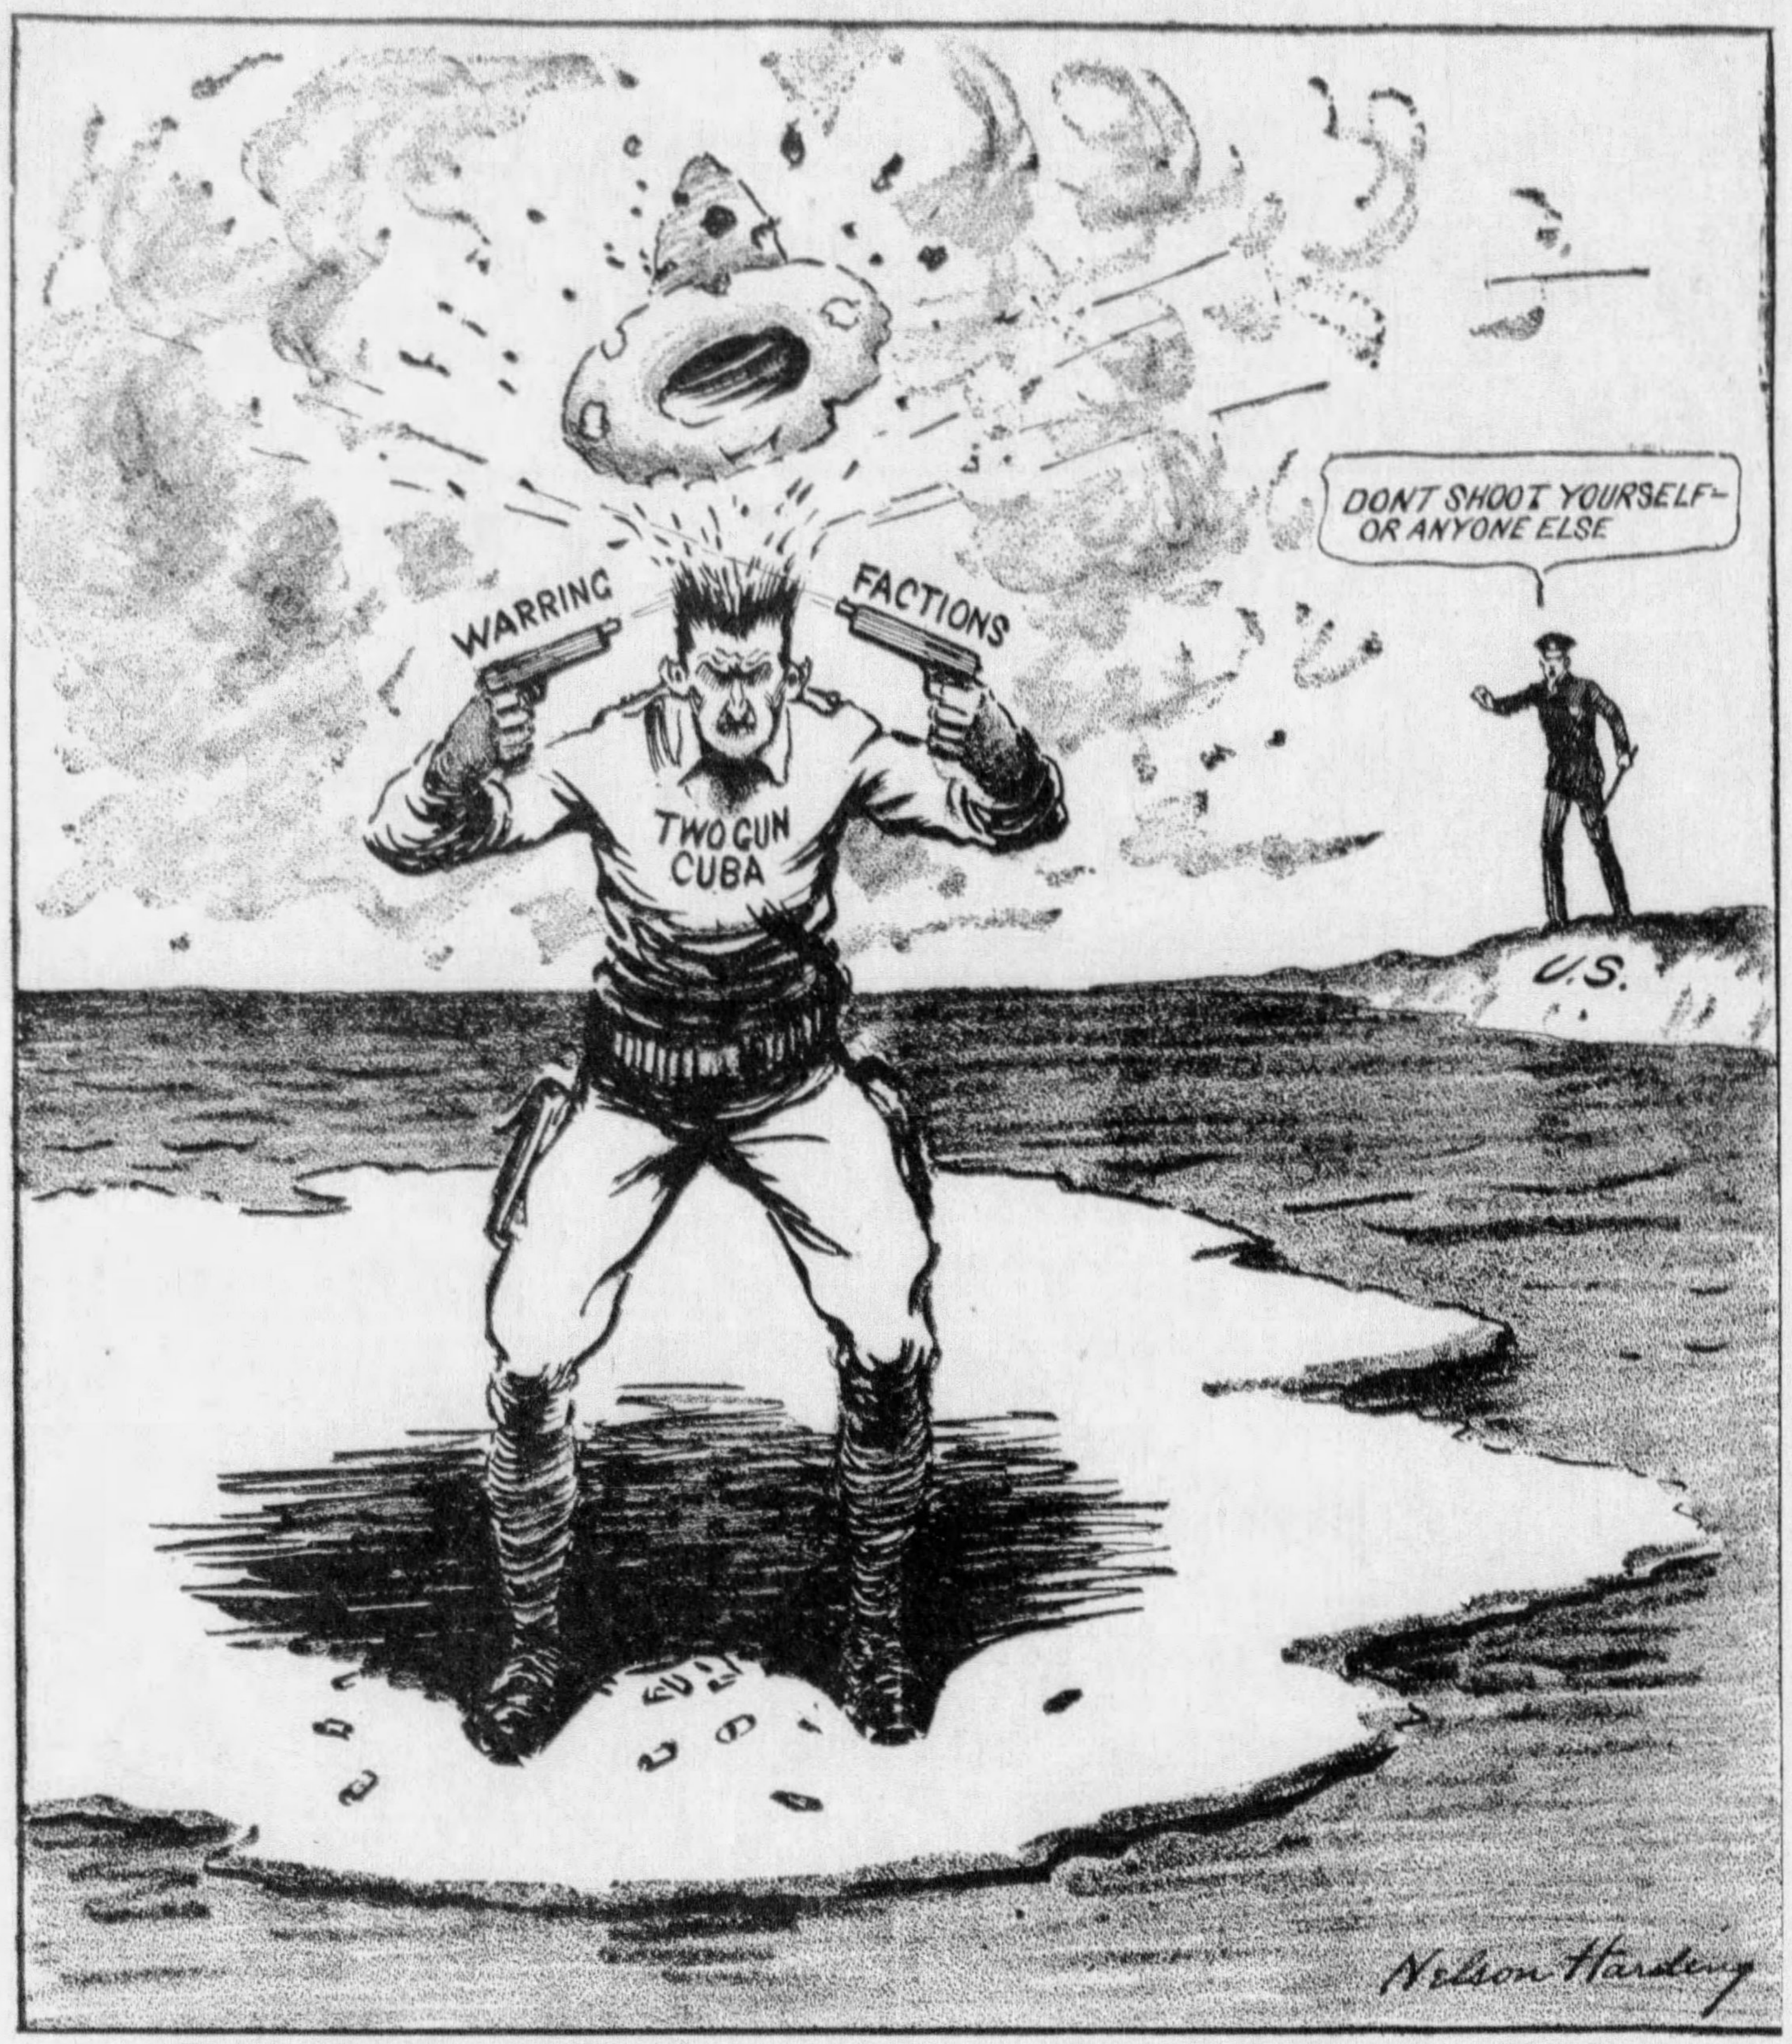
Their teachings were applied by Calvin Coolidge, when, as President, he urged upon Congress the establishment in the federal city of a Department of Education.

The crisis in American education, to which the national observance of American Education Week has directed attention, offers the Roosevelt administration one of its greatest opportunities.

This is the opportunity to place education upon an equality with agriculture, commerce and labor in the cabinet of the President and thus establish "a federal headquarters for education that shall be competent to meet the increasing national responsibility for education."

His Own Target!

By Nelson Harding



We hate to see our neighbor stand
With blazing gun in either hand
Aimed at his own distracted head
While chaos threatens that fair land.

Peace, neighbor, to your troubled State,
Cease firing ere it is too late;
Let reason take the place of wrath
Lest self-destruction be your fate.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Sam H. Harris is about the only Mauve Decade producer to have success producing these days. With the stage generally picking at the coverlets, he has produced the largest quota of hits, the biggest being "Of Thee I Sing." He was down to the cushion when that became a smash.

Modest and scorning usual Rialto affectations, he is one of untheatrical temperament fascinated by the theater. He began as a fight promoter on the East Side, finally piloting Kid McCoy. Later a partner of George M. Cohan, a mutually profitable combination founded on a brass rail hand-shake.

His Barrie-like shyness has the same flair for inspiring confidence that distinguished Charles Frohman, Irving Berlin, George S. Kaufman et al turn out tunes and lyrics for him when others get only a promise. In the same easy fashion, he acquires cream of the acting talent.

Out of the sidewalk ruff-scuff, his wits edged on Ghetto flagstones, he salts his enterprises with beauty and dignity of a surprising sort. Even his first night audiences, hand-picked, have a Cartier sparkle.

Berton Braley as a college boy in Montana with curly brown hair wore an ensemble completely brown, smoked a huge brown pipe and led a brown bull dog. Today he is known out yonder as "Brownie." Many minnesingers have expressed a flair for single color effects. Keats was partial to deep blue; Shelly, green; Amy Lowell liked yellow and Wilde, of course, was fond of purple.

* * *

J. Harold Murray has become one of the wealthiest American actors. He is best remembered for his singing in "Rio Rita"—every cafe he enters the orchestra begins to play it. His estate, near Killingsworth, Conn., is a show place of the section. While his earnings have been tremendous, the bulk of his fortune resulted from his friendship with Matt Brush. Brush began talking him in and out of the market. Lots of pals will take you in but few will take you out.

* * *

The passing of few American writers so evoked the editorial pen as that of Ring Lardner. A friend of the humorist was able with the help of several clipping bureaus to round up 915 editorials that appeared after his demise. Doubtless a number escaped and the European output has not been compiled. What had inspired most of the panegyrics was Lardner's unfaltering devotion to literary purity. He never wrote a line or a word deviating the slightest from his high ideal. What a record!

The newest wrinkle in pocket lighters is a lipstick sized dingus that heats by the air pull through the cigar or cigaret end. It was given impetus when Adolphe Menjou flourished one in a jaunty man-about-town film. More than any other, Clifton Webb is beseiged by marketers of such dress accessories. The exploiters figure that if he is spotted with one the article is made.

I walked the other dusk through Water street, once the roughest, toughest, loudest brawling street in Manhattan. Today wayfarers are scattery and the serene and white-fronted mission of Jerry McCauley seemed to blend perfectly into the placid picture. The block in the 300's where John Allen's famous bagnio once offered a hell-roaring bluster was equally quiet. "The" Allen was hailed by reformers of that day as "the wickedest man in New York." But in comparison to modern machine gun baby killers he was somewhat a saint.

* * *

On Water street, too, I saw a sawdusty fly-blown lunch room whose chalked windows revealed this Quixotry: "White bean soup with ham hock, soupy hash and skillet gravy." Despite the smudgy look, it almost touched off a drool.

* * *

I wondered, walking on, if there are others for whom gravy has a magnetic-like attraction. Not as a food but for splattering purposes. Any time they bring gravy near me I get anything from a lapel spot to a lap drench. So much so that when I see a gravy bearer in the offing I am afflicted with a sort of gravy palsy. Just a mention of it and I go into a rhumba. But I'm just dandy around soup.

The Glamorous Days

Everybody is wondering if the glamour and gayety of the old pre-war days will return with the advent of Repeal and the Mae West figure.

* * *

There was an old refrain, in those days, which ran something like this—

The people of Broadway never go home!—
They know neither sun nor moon.
For two a. m. is the same to them
As two in the afternoon!

THERE WAS A COLOR AND A CHARM IN THOSE DAYS SON!

That sounds pretty tame to the debutante, who has just beat the milk-man to the door. Two a. m. is now "the shank of the evening."

* * *

But there WAS A COLOR and a charm about life before prohibition corked the spirits, and denatured alcohol ruined the digestion—and about New York life in particular.

* * *

Every popular restaurant in the Big Town had a PERSONALITY—an individuality and an atmosphere all its own. So different from the monotonous jazziness of the present-day night-clubs.

* * *

I was only a cub "newspaper soubrette" and the boy friends were all young reporters, so I can't remember much about the glittering and regal women or the ambrosial cooking at Delmonico's or Martin's.

* * *

But there were other haunts quite as colorful—and more amusing. There was the old Cafe Boulevard on Second avenue, with its haunting Hungarian orchestra.

* * *

And there was the delightful cooking at the Beaux Arts, where the Boy Friend took you on pay-day. And Mouquin's on Sixth avenue, where everybody went for lunch, and you got such DEE-licious fried frogs-legs, and set in little booths and held hands under the table.

* * *

And there was naughty "Little Hungary," where the wine was free with the dinner—and Rigo, the gypsy violinist, came around to your table and gazed soulfully into your eyes, while he played—off-key. And everybody sang "O Sole Mio"—and made love.

THERE ARE NO COLORFUL PLACES LIKE THE ONES YOU HEAR ABOUT!
WELL HERE'S HOPING THEY COME BACK!

And there were all the little Italian table d'hote places—each with its specialty, its "red-ink" and its own clientele. Variety, charm, atmosphere everywhere!

* * *

Will the old glamour and picturesqueness come back? It takes years to build up a tradition and an atmosphere. And somehow, clocks don't run backward!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

When They Hit Below the Belt

Another vicious letter this morning. Anonymous, of course. They nearly always are. No, I wasn't surprised. They're the usual thing. I've actually had "form" ones! Sometimes a half dozen writing friends will receive duplicates in the same mail.

What are they about? Any subject will do as long as the sender can achieve his or her one end, which is simply to hurt.

Do you indorse honesty? Sneeringly they inform you that "everybody knows you writers are all liars—simply writing whatever you're paid to write; not caring whether it's true or not."

Do you advocate purity? Leeringly they insinuate that you're "no better than you should be" yourself.

Do you criticize the Status Quo—demand a better deal for the Under Dog—suggest a general housecleaning for America? Promptly you're labeled "traitor—spy—filthy, sneaking, thieving Red!"

Do you, out of pity for some other broken-hearted mother, share your own grief, as you'd share black bread and sour wine? Then you're "showing off—trying to get sympathy for yourself—pretending you had a child, which you probably never did, anyway."

So they come—sneering, leering, snarling, snapping. Every popular columnist gets them by the thousands. O. O. McIntyre had something to say about them the other day.

Of all columnists, none is more respected or beloved than "Odd," and justly so. Quiet, friendly, always fair, he goes his way—telling of the beauty and charm, the quaintness and pathos of life as he sees it—making us more stupid and peevish souls his debtors. Yet the Snipers are out to get "Odd," too. For he says—

"In all my years of writing I have never answered those correspondents who hit below the belt. Time takes care of them."

It does, indeed! Time, and their own cussedness. For how does a Secret Sniper get that way? Is he really disturbed by your treatment of a subject? Does he sincerely desire to serve society by advancing more intelligent ideas and showing up your nonsense?

No, indeed! If such were his motives, you could respect them and him. Constructive criticism is a fine thing. An honest enemy is a gallant foe. But no such healthy impulse lies behind the wallops "below the belt" of the Secret Sniper.

The Secret Sniper is secret, and a sniper, because he's soured. He's soured by his own sense of inferiority.

The Secret Sniper, like other human beings, wants his place in the sun. And should have it. But he won't endure the long grilling required to get it. He wants God—and Society—to hand him his Good Luck on a silver platter—Right Now! And when that doesn't happen, he sees red.

His frustrated egotism then proceeds to build a drama about his own defeat.

Forthwith, he proceeds to turn any and every chance remark into a personal insult. If his friends and family are indifferent to him, he's peeved. If they're exasperated, he's persecuted. As for columnists—he "hates 'em one and all, damn their eyes!"

For are they not occupying the space and monopolizing the glory which should be his, by rights? Why, if he had the break, he'd make 'em all look like two-spots!

This being impossible, he does the next best things. He snipes—sneers, slanders and belittles. And out of it all he gets an immense satisfaction. He'll "larn 'em!" He'll show the world that he has power, too! He'll make people afraid of him—make people pay attention to him!

Why is a Secret Sniper? That's why.

Why is it best to ignore Snipers—"let time take care of them"—time and their own cussedness? That's also why.

And so, the next time someone hits YOU below the belt, remember "Odd"—and tell him we're all grateful.

Only, darn it! Philosophy may be fine—but what a bang I'd get out of giving one of them a swell sock in the eye!

Human Side of the News

The Ghosts That Haunt the Tower of London—Sir George Younghusband's Experience

By Edwin C. Hill

THE ghost of a queen, murdered by a king's decree, walks abroad in the Tower of London as Big Ben booms the midnight hour. The Tower, that great irregular mass of grim, gray stone buildings which rise up starkly in the east end of London by the dark-flowing river, is the most interesting spot in all England.

Blood has flowed there in crimson rivers. It has been the prison of kings, queens, princes and prelates, and their scaffold and their tomb. The citadel has been not only fort, but palace and treasury and prison as well.

Elizabeth, the red-haired queen, Elizabeth who made England great, whose only conscience was the security of England, whose only morals were the prosperity of England, was imprisoned there by her sister, Mary, and came very near, indeed, to laying her fair young head upon the block as her mother, Anne Boleyn, had done before her.

Today, if you stroll among the frowning towers of the citadel, treading in the paths of history, your thoughts carried back over the surging and tumultuous events of nearly nine hundred years, you will see, within a garden plot, the simple stone that marks the place where Queen Anne Boleyn submitted her pretty neck to the axe of the headsman of King Henry the Eighth.

* * *

Where Essex Dropped the Ring

AND only a little way distant is the tower where the young Earl of Essex, Elizabeth's lover, spent his last days of stubborn pride. You will see the very window from which he dropped a ring into the hands of a vindictive and revengeful woman, the ring that would have saved his life had it been carried to Elizabeth. And if you care to look upon the very ring, the simple ring that the fond queen placed upon the finger of her handsome young lover with the injunction that, no matter what his offense, it would be forgiven if he sent her the ring as a token—why, you will find it set into the tomb of Elizabeth herself in Westminster Abbey.

A yeoman of the guard, uniformed as the guard was in the days of Henry the Eighth, arouses the governor of the tower with a tale of wonderment. On post near the Bloody Tower, near the Traitor's Gate, a woman in white appears to him. He is breathless with his startling experience, his broad, red face pallid from the shock. He has seen this woman in white, a figure like shimmering moonlight. He swears it on the Book of Books.

As he stands transfixed in fear the booming strokes of midnight reverberate from Big Ben, down London River, at Westminister. The woman in white passes him without a sign, the light shining through her ethereal form. She is young and she is very lovely and her face is unutterably sad. The soldier of the guard sees her face clearly and is stirred by the feeling that somewhere he has seen it.

And that is true; for it is the slim and graceful form and the witching face of that gay and unhappy queen, Anne Boleyn, Elizabeth's mother, who was beheaded within 10 yards of where the soldier of the guard stands trembling; and her face has been pictured throughout England for these 300 years.

The grim old Tower is tense and tremulous with such weird appearances of the dead who should lie quiet in their graves. The men whose duty it is to guard the citadel for the throne do not laugh at these tales of white ladies who walk in the moonlit night. They, themselves, veteran officers of his Majesty the King, have seen strange things within the cluster of towers that William of Normandy raised and the Plantagenets and the Tudors and the Stuarts who came after him.

Younghusband's Strange Experience

THAT fine soldier who carried the British flag into Tibet years ago, Sir George Younghusband, the last man in the world to lay stress on fanciful things, had himself an utterly inexplicable experience. When he retired from active service in the British Army, Sir George was made the keeper of the Jewel House. Under his watch and ward are the great crown jewels of England, the Kohinoor that blazes in the crown of Queen Mary and the incredible Cullinan diamond that is the glory of the crown of King George the Fifth.

And one afternoon, some years ago, as I sat at tea with General the Honorable Sir George Younghusband, in his private apartment in Wakefield Tower where the crown jewels are kept, the old soldier of the Indian Frontier and of the Himalayan passes told me over our cigarets and tea of an experience that he himself could vouch for.

Sir George's apartment in Wakefield Tower faces onto the Bloody Tower, the Bloody Tower where the great Earl of Northumberland lost his head.

"And one night," said the General, as he gazed out over misty London River and the protests of the shipping came to us through the mantling fog, "I was shaving in my dressing room. My back was to the very heavy oaken door which gives into my apartment, and as I plied my razor, looking into the mirror, I saw the great door open silently, slowly and widely. I cut a gash in my cheek, so startled I was, and then, as I faced about, razor in hand, the heavy door closed as silently and slowly as it had opened.

"That is not all. Many times I have lain in bed and heard the footboards of the passage which connects with this apartment creak under unseen feet. I have heard those steps approach my door, and I have lain tense as the heavy old wroughtiron latch of the door was lifted by a hand through which no tide of human blood could have flown. I do not pretend to explain these things, sir. I tell you what I, myself, have heard."

Dry Law Repeal Speeded By State Conventions

By James T. Williams, Jr.

IT IS taking the American people much less time to remove prohibition from the Federal Constitution than it took them to put it there.

This is because Congress prescribed one method for the ratification of the Eighteenth Amendment, which added prohibition to the Constitution, and another method for the enactment of the amendment providing for repeal of prohibition.

The Eighteenth Amendment was submitted to the several states for ratification by the Sixty-fifth Congress, December 18, 1917. It took three-fourths of the states more than a year to ratify this amendment, January 29, 1919.

The Twenty-first Amendment, which repeals the Eighteenth Amendment, was submitted for ratification by the Seventy-second Congress on February 20, 1933. It will be formally ratified on or about December 5 of the same year when the state conventions elected last week for that purpose meet to carry out their mandate.

As the late James Bryce tells us in the American Commonwealth, "the men who sat in the Convention of 1787, were not sanguine enough, like some of the legislating sages of antiquity, or like such imperial codifiers as the Emperor Justinian, to suppose that their work could stand unaltered for all time to come."

The framers of the Constitution wisely provided in Article V, two methods of framing and proposing amendments.

1—Congress, by a two-thirds vote in each House, may prepare and propose amendments.

2—The Legislatures of two-thirds of the states may require Congress to convene a Constitutional Convention.

* * *

Two Methods Of Amending

THE TWO methods of enacting amendments set forth in Article V are:

1. The Legislatures of three-fourths of the States may ratify any amendment submitted to them.

2. Conventions may be called in the several States, and three-fourths of these conventions may ratify.

Whenever the Constitution has been amended, the amendment has been prepared and proposed by Congress. No drafting convention of the several States has ever been summoned.

When the Constitution itself was submitted for ratification, it was prescribed that the ratifying method should be by conventions called in the several States.

All amendments to the Constitution have hitherto been ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the states. The Twenty-first or Repeal Amendment is the first in which Congress prescribed ratification by state conventions.

Experience has proved the wisdom of the state convention method of ratification. Had Congress provided for the enactment of the Repeal Amendment by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the states, it might have taken the American people years instead of months to get rid of the evils of prohibition.

It would have been much easier for organized minorities in the several states which are still opposed to the repeal of prohibition to work their will with the State Legislatures and delay ratification of the Repeal Amendment.

* * *

Superiority Of Convention Method

THE SUPERIORITY of the state convention method of ratifying an amendment to the Federal Constitution, as Postmaster General Farley has pointed out, lies in the fact that it gives "the whole voting population of the states a chance to have their will" about one of the most vital duties which an American citizen is called upon to perform—amending the Federal Constituion.

Since its adoption in 1789, more than 3,000 amendments have been offered in Congress to the Federal Constitution. Of these only 26 have been submitted by Congress to the states for approval, and only 21 of these have received the consent of three-fourths of the states required for ratification.

Of the amendments still pending, the only one upon which state legislatures are still voting is the child labor amendment. Fifteen states have ratified this amendment, and it is being pressed for ratification in a majority of the other states.

Had Congress prescribed the state convention method for ratifying the child labor amendment, it would probably now be in effect. Special interests supporting child labor find it easier to prevent action by state legislatures on this amendment than they would to defeat its ratification by state conventions elected directly by the people for that purpose.
